562. In any case in which a person is convicted of theft in a building, dishonest misappropriation, cheating, or any other offence under the Indian Penal Code punishable with not more than two years' imprisonment before any Court, and no previous conviction is proved against him, if it appears to the Court before whom he is so convicted that regard being had to the youth, character and antecedents of the offender, to the trivial nature of the offence and to any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, it is expedient that the offender be released on probation of good conduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond with or without sureties, and during such period (not exceeding one year) as the Court may direct, to appear and receive sentence when called upon, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour :

Provided that, where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the third class or a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised, he shall record his opinion to that effect and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class, or Sub-divisional Magistrate, forwarding the accused to, or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in manner provided by section 380.

Proposed amendment to the section.—For section 562 of the said Code, the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

"562. (1) In any case in which a person is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than three years, or of an offence punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely 317, 325, 335, 380, 381 or 420, and no previous conviction is proved against him, if it appears to the Court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character or antecedents of the offender, and to the circumstances under which the offence was committed, that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period (not exceeding three years) as the Court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour.

Provided that, where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the third class, or a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised, he shall record his opinion to that effect, and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class or Sub-divisional Magistrate, forwarding the accused to, or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in manner provided by section 390.

(2) An order under this section may be made by any Appellate Court, or by the High Court when exercising its powers of revision.

(3) When an order has been made under this section in respect of any offender, the High Court may, on appeal when there is a right of appeal to such Court, or when exercising its powers of revision, set aside such order and in lieu thereof pass sentence on such offender according to law.

Provided that, when the order under this section is made by a Magistrate acting otherwise than under section 34, the High Court shall not, under this sub-section, inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class.

(4) The provisions of section 122 shall, so far as may be, apply to all sureties offered in pursuance of the provisions of this section."

Notes.

1. OBJECT AND SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

1. Object of the Section—(1) "I fancy the idea of the Legislature in framing S. 562 Cr. P. C. was that sometimes, offenders (and in especial, youthful offenders) without being persons of depraved character, may on occasion succumb to sudden temptation, for example, a poor youth without an anna in his pocket sees suddenly displayed before him, some property which is worth his stealing. He, having never previously committed any crime whatever, succumbs to temptation and steals the property and is caught. The Legislature very humanely and very properly allows the Magistrate in such a case as that, to give the young man another chance, and to deal with him under S. 562 Cr. P. C.—19 P. R. 1916

(2) This section is a tardy recognition of a principle well established in England. It is one of the wisest features of the new Code, but being a provision hitherto entirely unknown to Indian Law may not be properly understood at first by lower ranks of Magistracy.—8 M. J. 197.

2. S. 562 Cr. P. C. does not apply when the accused has been convicted.—Where an accused person has not only been convicted but also sentenced, the provisions of S. 562 Cr. P. C. become inapplicable to the case.—20 Cr. 392 (A)

3. Section must be strictly interpreted.—When an Act gives a special power, that power must be limited to the purpose for which it is conferred.—[1 N. 18 (19) ; 1 B. R. 857 ; 7 C. 157 ; 12 M. 297] It is an evasion of the law to treat as aggravated an ordinary offence, and to introduce a different jurisdiction or a lower scale of punishment.—[4 N. 18 (5 C. 717 ; 12 M. 54) ; 1 B. 502 ; 19 B. 340 ; 5 C. N. 372) ; 13 P. L. 1915]

4. Discretion of the Court not crystallised by the terms of the section.—In order to give a Court jurisdiction to release an offender under this section, there must co-exist two conditions precedent, there must be no previous conviction proved, and the offence must be one of those specified in the section. If these conditions are fulfilled, the Court has jurisdiction, the exercise of its discretion, to act under the section. But in exercising its discretion, the Court must have regard to the points specified in the section, as to the youth, character and antecedents of the offender, to the trivial nature of the offence and to any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed. The intention of the legislature is not to make it essential that the offender must be young, that the offence must be trivial, and that there must be extenuating circumstances but merely to indicate the lines on which the discretion of the Court should be exercised.—2 L. B. 65 (F. B.), 6 C. N. 1915

5. S. 562 should be applied to petty cases.—In a petty case arising out of a squabble between two girls of 16 and 14, the younger girl was convicted of slapping the elder's cheek and pulling her hair and was sentenced to seven days' rigorous imprisonment. Held that the case should have been dealt with under S. 562 Cr. P. C. [12 Cr. 242 (L. B.)] Where the person is in a good position in life, he should rather be dealt with under this section than be whipped [9 P. W. 1907]
6. Insane persons.—The section does not apply to the case of insane persons. A Magistrate who convicted the accused under S. 304—A, I. P. C. has no power also to pass an order under S. 562 Cr. P. C. Under S. 341 Cr. P. C. he should, on conviction, have merely reported the case to the High Court for orders.—11 M. T. 404.
7. The 'term of imprisonment' and not the 'nature of the offence' is test for applicability.—Where a boy of 18 years was convicted under S. 324 I. P. C. read with S. 511 I. P. C. and the Magistrate ordered him to execute a bond with a surety under this section. Held, the object of this section was to provide a lesser and an alternative remedy for a certain class of cases. Though the maximum sentence under S. 324 I. P. C. is three years, an attempt to commit the offence is only punishable with imprisonment for 18 months. The term of imprisonment and not 'the nature of the offence,' being the test as to the applicability of this section, in cases as the present, the order of the Magistrate was legal.—3 L. B. 30
8. Interpretation of the Section.—In order to enable a court to exercise the power conferred by S. 562, it is not necessary that the offender should be young, that the offence should be trivial, and that there should be extenuating circumstances. The mention of these conditions and of the character and antecedents of the offender merely indicates generally considerations with regard to which the discretion of the Court should be exercised in dealing with first offenders who are convicted of any of the offences specified in the section.—2 L. B. 65.
9. Scope of the Section.—"I am clearly of opinion that the word 'cheating' in the same Section covers the offence of cheating in all its forms and is intended to include offences punishable under Ss. 418, 419, 420 as well as under S. 417 of the Indian Penal Code."—Piggott J. in 12 A. J. 465. Con 23 P. W. 1908
[Note per contra.—See 562 is not in terms applicable to convictions of cheating and thereby dishonestly inducing delivery of property under S. 420 I. P. C. or of using as genuine a forged document under S. 471 I. P. C.—17 B. R. 921 41 M. 533 22 Cr. 150 (P) 23 P. W. 1908 16 P. R. 1911—21 Cr. 465 (Pat) 3 L. B. 95 (F. B.).]
10. Cases of theft.—The offence of stealing a cow and taking it to a slaughter yard cannot be regarded as a light one calling for lenient treatment under S. 562 Cr. P. C.—[10 S. 185]. Theft by a servant under S. 381 I. P. C. is not one of the offences included in S. 562 [1 N. 139]. The word 'theft' in the section refers to theft in its simple form [23 P. W. 1908] S. 562 Cr. P. C. is inapplicable to the case of an accused, who has been convicted of an offence of theft of his master's property, for he is liable to punishment under S. 381 and not S. 350 I. P. C. Held also that the accused had aggravated the offence by making imputations on the chastity of the complainant's wife.—[13 P. L. 1913]

11. Offence of retaining stolen property.—The offence of receiving or retaining stolen property is not one of those offences mentioned in S. 562 Cr. P. C., as it is punishable under S. 411 or S. 414 I. P. C. with more than two years' imprisonment.—2 B. R. 343 1 L. B. 150
12. Criminal Breach of Trust.—A person convicted of Criminal Breach of trust cannot be released on probation under this section.—7 B. R. 14: 111
13. Offences under Ss. 454 and 308 I. P. C.—When a person is convicted both under Ss. 454 and 350 I. P. C., no order can be made under S. 562 Cr. P. C., as a person convicted under S. 454 I. P. C. not coming under S. 562 cannot be released on executing a bond, although the other offence is referred to in this section.—2 Weir 731 (Krishna)
14. S. 562 does not apply to a charge of house-breaking.—S. 562 Cr. P. C. does not apply to the case of a person convicted of house-breaking.—18 Cr. 409 (M)
15. Lurking house-trespass.—S. 562 does not apply to a case in which a person is convicted of an offence under S. 457 I. P. C.—15 C. P. 11 19 P. W. 1910.
16. Section applicable to adults.—Sec 562 is not restricted to juvenile offenders only.—Where the accused were charged with theft of a quantity of wood, about 138 mds valued between Rs. 12 and 50 and had been about 2 months in the lock-up and there was no previous conviction standing against any of them. Held that the Magistrate had jurisdiction to take action under S. 562 Cr. P. C., even though none of the accused (except one) was under the age of 30.—11 P. R. 1916 2 B. R. 517 24 A. 306: 2 L. B. 314 (O4) C. B. 7 15 Cr. 469 (M)

[Note.—Under S. 562 Cr. P. C., the first offender with a past good character and antecedents, need not necessarily be a youth, such an offender may be advanced in age. The first essential is that the accused must be a first offender, and if he is one, the extenuating considerations which entitle him to the indulgence, are his youth, character and antecedents.—2 L. B. 817]

17. The Section does not apply to conviction under the Railways Act.—This section applies only when a person is convicted of one of certain offences punishable under the Code, and not of an offence under the Railways Act.—1 N. 139.

II. MAGISTRATE WHO MAY ACT UNDER THE SECTION.

18. Second class Magistrate.—A second class Magistrate who had not been specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise jurisdiction under S. 562 Cr. P. C. cannot act under the first part of the section, although he has been invested under the former Code with all the powers specified in the fourth Schedule of the Code which contained no provision corresponding to S. 562 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 731 (Dowdham).
19. Powers of the Magistrate to whom case is submitted under S. 562 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate to whom proceedings are submitted under S. 562 Cr. P. C. has authority, if on perusing the evidence, he comes to the conclusion that the accused is clearly not guilty, to acquit him—(1915) 2 U. B. 55
20. Powers of a Magistrate to whom the case is submitted under S. 380 supra.—See Notes under S. 380 (p. 666 Supra)
21. Only the case of the accused to be dealt with under S. 562 Cr. P. C. should be submitted.—Two accused one of whom a boy of 11 years were charged with the offence of theft. The second class Magistrate by whom they were 2 B R 112.

III. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

22. Conviction must be recorded.—A formal conviction must be recorded before a bond can be required under S. 562 Cr. P. C. A minor should not be required to give a bond personally under this section—2 L. B. 137.
23. Court cannot ask accused to appear on a day fixed to receive sentence.—In dealing with an accused under S. 562 Cr. P. C., it is not competent to a Magistrate to ask him to appear in Court on a day fixed to receive sentence; all he can do is to release the accused on probation of good conduct for a certain period and to direct him to appear and receive sentences when called upon during such period—2 B. R. 702.
24. Accused cannot be put merely on personal recognizance.—Where the accused was merely put on his personal recognizance under this section, held that the Magistrate should take from the accused, a bond that should fulfil the requirements of S. 562 Cr. P. C. i. e., the bond should be taken not only for good conduct, but also to appear and receive sentence when called upon, and in the mean time to keep the peace.—2 B. R. 112
25. The section under which conviction is had must be clearly specified.—Where the charge was in the alternative, either of theft under S. 380 I. P. C. or receiving stolen property under S. 411 I. P. C. and the Magistrate while convicting the accused, did not say of which of these offences he convicted them, held that in the absence of a conviction for theft, the Magistrate was not competent to pass an order under S. 562 Cr. P. C. The order was reversed and the Magistrate was directed to pass a legal order of conviction and of sentence consequent thereon—1 B. R. 857.
26. Minor may execute a bond.—The third proviso to S. 118 supra "that when the person in respect of whom the inquiry is made is a minor the bond shall be executed only by his sureties" applies in terms only to bonds under that section which is seldom used against minors and when similar provision is not found in this section which was enacted chiefly for the benefit of youth.
- section "on his entering into a bond with or without sureties" are clear—4 L. B. 12 overruling 2 L. B. 137 see 2 L. B. 168
27. Procedure when accused unable to furnish security.—The proper course is for the Magistrate to ascertain before passing an order

IV. APPEAL, REVISION ETC.

Appeals.

28. (1) "It seems to me to be clear under the provisions of S. 380 that..."
30. (3) Subject to the law of limitation, a convict is entitled to prefer his appeal, even after the expiration of the term for which the bond under S. 562 Cr. P. C. was executed—20 P. R. 1917.
31. Power of Court of appeal to pass orders under S. 562 Cr. P. C.—The powers conferred by S. 562 Cr. P. C. upon a court by which a first offender is convicted, are by virtue of S. 423 (d) exercisable by the High Court, sitting as a Court of Appeal [24 A 308]. By the use of the words "Court before whom he is convicted" in S. 562, it is not intended by the Legislature to limit the power of making orders under that section to the Court of the first instance. The proviso to the section is inconsistent with the view that this was the intention of the Legislature. [29 M. 567; 24 P. R. 1904; But see 16 P. R. 1911.]

32. Proper order to be passed by the Appellate or Revisional Court.—Where a Magistrate convicts a person of an offence under S. 420 but deals with him under S. 562 Cr. P. C., the proper course for the Appellate or Revisional Court is not to direct a retrial, but to set aside the order under S. 562 and remand the case to the Magistrate to pass a lawful sentence.—16 P. R. 1911; 23 P. W. 1908; 3 L. B. 95; 4 N. 18.
33. Revision.—The High Court in revision, acting under Ss 439 and 423 Cr. P. C., cannot set aside an order under S. 562 Cr. P. C., and of its own authority substitute for that order a sentence of whipping or of imprisonment.—37 A. 31 20 Cr. 99 (N). 155 P. L. 1911.
34. Revision optional with the High Court.—Although S. 562 Cr. P. C. cannot be properly used in cases falling under S. 457 I P. C. yet, where it has been wrongly applied by a Magistrate, it is optional for the High Court on revision side to interfere or not, as it thinks fit upon a consideration of all the circumstances, with the discretion thus used by the Magistrate.—19 P. W. 1910.

35. Power of High Court in revision.—The High Court has the power to quash conviction of the accused who have been dealt with by the appellate Court under S. 362 Cr. P. C. even if the convicts have not moved the High Court to exercise that power.—67 P. L. 1912; See 21 P. L. 1914.
36. S. 562 compared with S. 31 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897).—S. 31 of the Reformatory Schools Act, extends very considerably the provisions of S. 562 Cr. P. C., which, although later in date, is a reproduction of earlier legislation. The section read with the definition of youthful offenders, enables practically any Court, at any rate concerned in the matter, in the case of an offender under fifteen to deliver him to his parents with or without sureties for his future good behaviour.—14 A. J. 1158. See also Cr. Rev. 204 of 1904 (A). See All Man p. 376

563. (1) If the Court which convicted the offender, or a Court which could have dealt with the offender in respect of his original offence, is satisfied that the offender has failed to observe any of the conditions of his recognizance, it may issue a warrant for his apprehension.

(2) An offender, when apprehended on any such warrant, shall be brought forthwith before the Court issuing the warrant, and such Court may either remand him in custody until the case is heard or admit him to bail with a sufficient surety conditioned on his appearing for sentence. Such Court may, after hearing the case, pass sentence

564. (1) The Court, before directing the release of an offender under section 562, shall be satisfied that the offender or his surety (if any) has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place for which the Court acts or in which the offender is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions.

(2) Nothing in this section or in sections 562 and 563 shall affect the provisions of section 31 of the Reformatory Schools Act, 1897

Previously convicted Offenders

565 (1) When any person, having been convicted of any offence punishable under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, is again convicted of any offence punishable under either of those Chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, by a High Court, Court of Session, Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, or any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, such Court or Magistrate may, if it or he thinks fit, at the time of passing sentence of transportation or imprisonment on such person, also order that his residence and any change of residence after release be notified, as hereinafter provided, for a term not exceeding five years from the date of the expiration of such sentence.

(2) If such conviction is set aside on appeal or otherwise, such order shall become void.

(3) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may make rules to carry out the provisions of this section relating to the notification of residence by released convicts.

(4) Any person refusing or neglecting to comply with any rule so made shall be punishable as if he had committed an offence under section 176 of the Indian Penal Code.

Proposed amendment to the section.—For section 565 of the said Code the following section be substituted, namely :—

"565. (1) When any person having been convicted—

(a) by a Court in British India of an offence punishable under sections 215, 189A, 489 B, 189 C, or 489 D, of the Indian Penal Code, or of any offence punishable under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII of the said Code with imprisonment of either description for a term of three years or upwards, or

(b) by a Court or Tribunal in the territories of any Native Prince or State in India acting under the general or special authority of the Governor General in Council, or of any Local Government, of any offence which when committed in British India, have been punishable under any of the aforesaid sections or Chapters of the Indian Penal Code with like imprisonment for a like term, is again convicted of any offence of the same kind, or punished under any of those sections or Chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards by a High Court, Court of Session, Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Subdivisional Magistrate or any Magistrate of the first class, such Court or Magistrate may, if it or he thinks fit, at the time of passing sentence of transportation or imprisonment on such person, also order that his residence and any change of, or absence from, such residence after release be notified, as hereinafter provided, for a term not exceeding five years from the date of the expiration of such sentence.

(2) If such conviction is set aside on appeal or otherwise, such order shall become void.

(3) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may make rules to carry out the provisions of this section relating to the notification of residence or change of, or absence from, residence, by released convicts.

(4) An order under this section may also be made by an Appellate Court, or by the High Court when exercising its powers of revision.

(5) Any person against whom an order has been made under this section, and who refuses or neglects to comply with any rule so made, shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with a fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

(6) Any person charged with a breach of any such rule may be tried by a Magistrate of competent jurisdiction in the district in which the place last notified by him as his place of residence is situated."

Notes.

1. S. 565 should not be applied when the offence is only technical.—Where the offence of theft is of a trifling nature and is merely technical, it should not be treated more seriously with reference to S 75 I. P. C. An order under S 565 Cr. P. C. will not be justified in such a case.—1 P. L. 1914

2. Appellate Court cannot make the order when the original Court was not so empowered.—S 565 requires that the order should be made by the trying Magistrate at the time of passing sentence. But the omission of similar provisions in S. 565 to those of S. 106 Cr. P. C. leads to the inference that the Appellate Court or Court of Revision cannot set aside an order under S 565 by a Magistrate not empowered, and substitute an order by itself to the same effect.—8, S. 310.

3. S. 221 (7) does not apply to an order under S. 565 Cr. P. C.—The provisions of S. 221 (7) Cr. P. C. do not apply to an order under S 565 Cr. P. C. and such an order can be legally passed without the previous sanction of the Government. The offence of conviction on which it is based, having been mentioned in the charge.—9 N. 88.

4. Order cannot be passed in the absence of previous conviction.—Where there is no previous conviction, an order directing an accused to notify his residence is illegal and must be set aside.—8, M. T. 352.

5. Order on the basis of previous conviction by foreign Court.—Where the accused was convicted in a Feudatory State under an Act identical in terms with the Indian Penal Code, it would be illegal to apply this section.

the strength of foreign convictions—1 N. 137: see 7 C. P. 21; 4 N. 177.

6. Sec. 565 does not apply when the sentence is one of whipping.—The order contemplated by S. 565 of the Cr. P. Code, can only be passed where the convict is sentenced either to transportation or imprisonment. The section does not extend to cases where the Court, instead of passing that sentence, passes a sentence of whipping—12 B. R. 901.
7. The Section does not apply when the conviction is one for attempt.—Where either the previous or subsequent conviction of an accused person is under S. 511 I. P. C. for an attempt to commit an offence punishable for a term of three years or upwards under any of the sections specified in Ch. XII or Ch. XVII of the I. P. C., the Court trying the case has no power to proceed and pass an order against him under this section—17 P. R. 1907.

8. Temporary absence need not be notified.—A person against whom an order is passed under S. 565 Cr. P. C. is merely bound to notify his residence or change of residence after release. As long as he retains his residence in the same place, his temporary absence from home for a day or two does not require notification—40 M. 789.
9. Penalty for refusing or neglecting to comply with rules.—Cases under S. 565 (4) Cr. P. C. should be dealt with under the first part of S. 176 Penal Code—31—M. 548, 1 N. 133; See 15 C. 388.

1. Any order passed against a convict under S. 565, Act V of 1898, shall be entered on the warrant of imprisonment.

2. A convict against whom such an order has been

The following rules shall be also clearly explained to the convict before he leaves the jail, he shall be told for what period he is required to observe them, and a copy of them shall be given to him.

attendance shall be not less than fourteen days before his departure when he is moving to the jurisdiction of another Police station and not less than seven days when he is moving to a place within the jurisdiction of the same Police station. If for any reason he do not, within seven days of the date on which he has notified that his change of residence will begin, take up his residence at that place, he shall at once notify, in the manner above set out, any other change of residence he intends to make.—Burma Gazette, 1902, Part I, p. 63. In addition to these rules, the following rules are also in force in Bengal and Assam, viz:—

5. If the convict intends to travel to another district, he shall not less than seven days before his departure, similarly notify the place to which he intends to proceed, and the probable dates of his arrival at and departure from such places.—See Calcutta Gazette, 1902, Pt. I, p. 97, Assam Gazette, 1900, Pt. II, p. 640.
6. In applying the foregoing rules to the case of a wandering man having no "residence" in the sense of a fixed place of abode, the place of residence shall be deemed to be the place where he sleeps, even if he remains there only one night. On his release, he shall be asked under Rule 2, where he intends to stay and be told, that if he moves about the country, he must always notify the place of his temporary abode to the Police.—Notification, Bengal Government, No. 313 J, dated 14th January, 1902. G. L. No. 2 of 15th March, 1902.

II MADRAS

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-sec (3) of S. 565 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Governor in Council is pleased to make the following rules to carry out the provisions of the said section relating to the notification of residence by released convicts:—

1. When an order has been passed under S. 565, Code of Criminal Procedure that a convict shall notify his residence and any change of residence after release for a specified term, the Court or Magistrate passing such order shall attach a copy thereof to the warrant of commitment issued under S. 353 of the Code in respect of such convict.

2. A convict in respect of whom such an order has been passed shall, when called upon by the officer in charge of the jail in which he is confined, state before his release, the place at which he intends to reside after his release, naming the village or town and the street therein.

3. After release, and on arrival at his residence, he shall, within twenty-four hours notify at the nearest Police station that he has taken up his residence accordingly.

Notes.

Rules under Calcutta Rent Act.—Rule 4 of the rules granted by the Local Government of Bengal under the Calcutta Rent Act, is not an "enactment" within the meaning of S. 5 (2) of the Criminal Procedure Code.—25 C. N. 661.

S. 9.

Notes.

Effect of "making over" cases for disposal to Additional Sessions Judge by the Sessions Judge.—In a case in which an appeal was made over to the second Additional Judge, but circumstances subsequently occurred which made it more convenient for the Sessions Judge to hear the appeal himself, held that there was nothing in the Criminal Procedure of the work of that Sessions Court, and the making over of the case did not amount to a transfer.—19 A J. 952.

10 (1) In every district outside the presidency towns the Local Government shall appoint a Magistrate of the first class, who shall be called the District Magistrate.

(2) The Local Government may appoint any Magistrate of the first class to be an Additional District Magistrate and such Additional District Magistrate shall have all or any of the powers of a District Magistrate under this Code or under any other law for the time being in force as the Local Government may direct.

(3) For the purposes of sections 192, sub-section (1), 407, sub-section (2), and 528 sub-sections (2) and (3), such Additional District Magistrate shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Magistrate.

Changes introduced

(1) The words "for a period not exceeding six months" have been omitted. This omission does away with the necessity of repeating the notification appointing an Additional District Magistrate, should an occasion arise for the extension of the period.

(2) An Additional District Magistrate will now exercise not only the powers of the District Magistrate under the Code, but also "under any other law for the time being in force"

(3) "The Local Government may appoint any Magistrate of the first class to be an Additional District Magistrate and such Additional District Magistrate shall have all or any of the powers of a District Magistrate under this Code or under any other law for the time being in force as the Local Government may direct."

The Joint Committee of 1922 however restored both the sections "We do not see sufficient reason for the alteration."—S. 192 and 528

Notes.

Scope of the expression "all the powers of a District Magistrate."—Where under S. 10 (2) Cr. P. C., the Local Government confers on an Additional District Magistrate "all the powers of a District Magistrate under the Code" such powers are not confined to those enumerated in Schedule III (v) of the Code, but include all powers with which a District Magistrate is invested under the Code (including power to pass an order of sanction under S. 197)—24 Cr. 116. (M)

Notes.

Temporary disability of District Magistrate due to illness—There is no vacancy in the office of the District Magistrate and no temporary succession to such office within the meaning of S. 11 of the valid order transferring the case from the file of that Court to his file—24 O. C. 235.

D.—Courts of Presidency Magistrates.

18. (1) The Local Government shall, from time to time, appoint a sufficient number of person (hereinafter called Presidency Magistrates) to be Magistrates for each of the presidency-towns, and shall appoint one of such persons to be Chief Presidency Magistrate for each such town.

(2) The powers of a Presidency Magistrate under this Code shall be exercised by the Chief Presidency Magistrate, or by a salaried Presidency Magistrate, or by any other Presidency Magistrate empowered by the Local Government to sit singly, or by any Bench of Presidency Magistrates.

(3) A Presidency Magistrate may be appointed under this section for such term as the Local Government may, by general or special order, direct

(4) The Local Government may appoint any person to be an Additional Chief Presidency Magistrate, and such Additional Chief Presidency Magistrate shall have all or any of the powers of a Chief Presidency Magistrate under this Code or under any other law for the time being in force, as the Local Government may direct.

Changes introduced

(1) The words "any person" in the new sub-clause (4) which provides for the appointment of Additional Chief Presidency Magistrates have been introduced for the following reason: "We think there is force in the suggestion of the Calcutta Bar Library Club that it is not necessary to restrict the appointment of an Additional Chief Presidency Magistrate to persons who are already Presidency Magistrates, and we have therefore substituted the words "any person" for the words "any Presidency Magistrate." It is of interest to note that the Select Committee of 1916 sought to restrict the appointment of Additional Chief Presidency Magistrates to persons who were already Presidency Magistrates." It may be noted in passing that the relation between the Chief and the Additional Chief Presidency Magistrate is left undefined. It is left no doubt to the discretion exercisable by the Local Government under S. 21 (2).

21. (1) Every Chief Presidency Magistrate shall exercise within the local limits of his jurisdiction all the powers conferred on him by this Code or which by any law or rule in force immediately before this Code comes into force are required to be exercised by any Senior or Chief Presidency Magistrate, and may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make rules consistent with this Code to regulate—

- (a) the conduct and distribution of business and the practice in the Courts of the Magistrates of the town;
- (b) the times and places at which Benches of Magistrates shall sit;
- (c) the constitution of such Benches;
- (d) the mode of settling differences of opinion which may arise between Magistrates in session; and
- (e) any other matter which could be dealt with by a District Magistrate under his general powers of control over the Magistrates subordinate to him.

(2) The Local Government may, for the purposes of this Code, declare what Presidency Magistrates including Additional Chief Presidency Magistrates are subordinate to the Chief Presidency Magistrate, and may define the extent of their subordination.

Changes introduced.

The amendment to Cl (2) is consequential upon the amendment introduced in S. 18 by which "Additional Chief Presidency Magistrates" are created.

29. (1) Subject to the other provisions of this code any offence under any other law shall, when any Court is mentioned in this behalf in such law, be tried by such Court.

(2) When no Court is so mentioned, it may be tried by High Court or subject as aforesaid by any Court constituted under this Code by which such offence is shown in the eighth column of the second schedule to be triable.

Changes introduced.

The changes introduced supply an omission. Trials under Special Acts, even when no reference is made therein to the particular Court or Courts entitled to try the offender, are made subject to the special provisions applicable to the trial of European British subjects.

29A. No Magistrate of the second or third class shall inquire into or try any offence which is punishable otherwise than with fine not exceeding fifty rupees where the accused is an European British subject who claims to be tried as such.

Trial of European British Subjects by second and third class Magistrates Sec 29A has been added by the Criminal Law Amendment Act 1923 (XII of 1923).

29B. Any offence, other than one punishable with death or transportation for life by any person who at the date when he appears or is brought before the Court is under the age of fifteen years, may be tried by a District Magistrate or a Chief Presidency Magistrate, or by any Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise the powers conferred by section 8, sub-section (1), of the Reformatory Schools Act, 1897, or, in any area in which the said Act has been wholly or in part repealed by any other law providing for the custody, trial or punishment of youthful offenders, by any Magistrate empowered by or under such law to exercise all or any of the powers conferred thereby.

Changes introduced.

Section 29B is new. It makes a special provision for juvenile offenders. "In view of the fact that the Reformatory Schools Act 1897, has to a considerable extent been repealed in Madras by the Madras Children Act 1920, and may be repealed elsewhere, we have proposed an addition to the new S. 29A to

S. 32.

Notes.

Deterrent sentences to be passed only in exceptional cases.—"Deterrent punishments are now regarded only as of utility—and it cannot be denied that they have, under circumstances, their value—in what are luckily as a rule exceptional circumstances. When waves of imitative crime, such for example (and I speak from personal experience) garroting, gang robbery (or dacoity as it is called here) and forgery of counterfeit coin or notes, commence to sweep over a State, judicious and increasing severity may properly be utilised to check and deter such an inundation: again in times of public tumult, when there is danger of a wide breach of public peace or security, or where a highly organised or what one may call semi-professional association of persons engineer series of offences, such as swindling or burglary, deterrent punishments may be with caution advantageously inflicted,—such a category is naturally not exhaustive but illustrative only; and sound knowledge of the facts of the case is essential.

Section 35 of Indian Companies Act not governed by S. 32.—Under S. 35 of the Companies Act, a Magistrate is bound to impose a fine of Rs. 500 in respect of each offence of issuing a share-warrant not to be stamped. The fact that S. 32 is not more than two such share-warrants have been issued.—20 C. 676

ting that imprisonment in a Reformatory shall terminate on payment of a fine.—(93-00) L. B. 491.

Sentences which Courts and Magistrates may pass upon European British Subjects.

34A. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 31, 32 and 34—

(a) no Court of Session shall pass on any European British subject any sentence other than a sentence of death, penal servitude, or imprisonment with or without fine, or of fine, and

(b) no District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class shall pass on any European British subject any sentence other than imprisonment which may extend to two years, or fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or both.

Note.—Section 34 has been inserted by the Criminal Law Amendment Act 1923 (XII of 1923).

35. (1) When a person is convicted at one trial of two or more offences, the Court may, subject to the provisions of section 71 of the Indian Penal Code sentence him, for such offences, to the several punishments prescribed therefor which such Court is competent to inflict; such punishments, when consisting of imprisonment or transportation, to commence the one after the expiration of the other in such order as the Court may direct, unless the Court directs that such punishments shall run concurrently.

(2) In the case of consecutive sentences, it shall not be necessary for the Court, by reason only of the aggregate punishment for the several offences being in excess of the punishment which it is competent to inflict on conviction of a single offence, to send the offender for trial before a higher Court;

(a) in no case shall such person be sentenced to imprisonment for a longer period than fourteen years;

(b) if the case is tried by a Magistrate (other than a Magistrate acting under section 31), the aggregate punishment shall not exceed twice the amount of punishment which he is, in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict.

(3) For the purpose of appeal the aggregate of consecutive sentences passed under this section in case of convictions for several offences at one trial shall be deemed to be a single sentence.

Changes introduced.

(1) The scope of the section has been limited by the provisions of S. 71 I. P. C. The words "subject to the provisions of S. 71 of the Indian Penal Code" added to Cl. (1) leave no room for doubt. The explanation has been repealed as unnecessary.

Rulings rendered obsolete.—11 C. 349; 19 C. 105 (110); 18 C. 725 (728); 4 C. J. 90; 23 B. 706 (F.B.); 17 B. 260 (F.B.); 12 M. 36; 1 Weir 34; 2 A. 101; 10 A. 63; 10 A. 146; 1 L. B. 3; 6 L. B. 160; 31 F. R. 1891.

By substituting the words "the aggregate of consecutive" for the word "aggregate," the Legislature has now definitely confined the operation of Cl. (3) to the cases of consecutive (as opposed to concurrent) sentences only. The amendment follows the rulings cited under S. 35 (107) at p. 51. See also Note No. 5 below.

Rulings rendered obsolete.—15 C. N. 734; 17 C. N. 72.

Notes.

1. Change of Law. Under the Code of 1882, there was no provision in the Code to pass concurrent sentences.—(97) 17 A. N. 207.
2. Cumulative Sentences—When, in the same penal statute there are two clauses applicable to the same act of the accused, cumulative punishments are not to be awarded unless it is so expressly provided in the statute—11 B. H. 13.
3. Sentences in separate trials cannot be made concurrent—Where separate trials are held and separate sentences passed upon the accused at each trial, the sentences under S. 397 Cr. P. C. must be served consecutively. The Court has no power in such a case to direct under S. 35 of the Code, that the sentences do run concurrently as that section relates to sentences in cases of convictions of several offences at one trial.—19 A. J. 310
4. Separate sentences can be inflicted only in case of distinct offences.—Where an offence is committed cannot be inflicted under S. 35 Cr. P. C. and S. 71 I. P. C. Thus, where a person commits house-trespass and attempts to murder an occupant of the house, he may be convicted of both these offences, but a separate sentence for each such offence is not justified.—22 Cr. 198 (L.) 40. Whenever any person holding an office in the service of Government who has been invested with any powers under this Code throughout Continuanee of powers of officers transferred any local area is appointed to an equal or higher office of the same nature, within a like local area under the same Local Government, he shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, or has otherwise directed, * * exercise the same powers in the the local area in which he is so appointed

Changes introduced.

- (1) By substituting the word "appointed for the word "transferred," the Legislature has met the objection raised by Markby J. in 2 C. 117 that the posting
- officer not transferred but appointed on his return from leave to an equal or higher office of the same

- nature, to exercise the powers with which he was invested before he went on leave (Sec. 2 B. R. 530)
- (2) By the omission of the words "continues to," the Legislature confirms the decision in 3A 503 (F.B.), 15 C P 15 and 14 Cr 239(A) [S 40(3)], that a reverted officer ceases to exercise the powers with which he was invested during his temporary incumbency of a higher office of a like nature.

Notes.

Refusal to join police in search of a suspect no offence.—The Law does not intend that Police officers should have a general power of calling upon members of the public to join them in doing the work for which they are paid, such as tracing out the whereabouts of an absconding criminal, or collecting evidence to warrant his conviction. By refusing to join in such a case, a person does not incur criminal liability.—21 Cr. 591 (A.)

45. (1) Every village headman, village-accountant, village-watchman, village police-officer, owner or occupier of land, and the agent of any such owner or occupier in charge of the of that land and every officer employed in the collection of revenue or rent of land on the part of Government or the Court of Wards, shall forthwith communicate to the nearest Magistrate or to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station, whichever is the nearer, any information which he may possess respecting—

Village headmen, accountants, landholders and others bound to report certain matters.

- (a) the permanent or temporary residence of any notorious receiver or vendor of stolen property in any village of which he is headman, accountant, watchman or police-officer, or in which he owns or occupies land, or is agent, or collects revenue or rent ;
 - (b) the resort to any place within, or the passage through, such village of any person whom he knows, or reasonably suspects, to be a thug, robber, escaped convict or proclaimed offender ;
 - (c) the commission of, or intention to commit, in or near such village any non-bailable offence or any offence punishable under section 143, 144, 145, 147 or 148 of the Indian Penal Code ;
 - (d) the occurrence in or near such village of any sudden or unnatural death or of any death under suspicious circumstances ; or the discovery in or near such village of any corpse or part of a corpse, in circumstances which lead to a reasonable suspicion that such a death has occurred or the disappearance from such village of any person in circumstances which lead to a reasonable suspicion that a non-bailable offence has been committed in respect of such person.
 - (e) the commission of, or intention to commit, at any place out of British India near such village any act which, if committed in British India, would be an offence punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459, 460, 489A, 489B, 489C, and 489D
 - (f) any matter likely to affect the maintenance of order or the prevention of crimes or the safety of person or property respecting which the District Magistrate, by general or special order made with the previous sanction of the Local Government, has directed him to communicate information.
- (2) In this section—
- (i) "village" includes village-lands ; and
 - (ii) the expression "proclaimed offender" includes any person proclaimed as an offender by any Court or authority established or continued by the Governor-General in Council in any part of India, in respect of any act which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460.

appoint one or more persons with his or their consent to perform the duties of a village-headman under this section whether a village-headman has or has not been appointed for that village under any other law.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The words "in charge of the management of that land" introduce a necessary restriction. The operation of Cl (1) is now confined to those agents only who are actually concerned in the management of the property in question
- (2) The word "possess" has been substituted for the word "obtain," thus making it obligatory to give information only when the persons specified in Cl (1) have personal knowledge of the fact. See (00) A. N 207
- (3) The reason for amplifying subsection (d) is as follows: "We think that, in the cases referred to in Cl (d), the obligation to give information should only arise when a reasonable suspicion exists that a non-bailable offence has been committed." (Joint Com, 1922)

- (4) The scope of subsection (e) has been amplified by the addition of twelve new sections, s. 231 to 238 refer to offences relating to counterfeit coins. and Ss 489A to 489D to counterfeiting currency-notes

2. Mukaddam and Kotwar in C. P.—Under S. 45 of the Criminal Procedure Code, every Mukaddam and Kotwar is bound to communicate forthwith to the nearest Station House Officer or Magistrate, the occurrence in and near the village of any sudden or unnatural death or any death under any suspicious circumstances—23 Cr 345 (N)
3. Meaning of "unnatural" death.—In the ordinary sense of the word "unnatural" means "not according to nature." A natural death means death on account of disease, old age etc., i.e. death brought about by the operation of the ordinary laws of nature. An unnatural death means a death caused by unnatural means e.g. accident, murder culpable homicide, etc. In 23 Cr 345 (N.) Halifa A J C held, that to come within the meaning of the word "unnatural" as used in S. 45 of the Cr. P. C., so as to require to be reported immediately, the effect (death) must occur fairly soon after the cause (accident etc.). In that case one T. B. fell from a height and was killed from the effects of that fall, that would surely not have been regarded as a death which had to be reported forthwith, though it would be just as unnatural as if T. B. fell and died within a few minutes of his fall or had been killed by it instantaneously."

Notes.

Application of subsection (3) to the Punjab Frontier.—The limits laid down by subsection (3) of S. 46 do not apply where the Punjab Frontier Crimes Regulation III of 1901 is in force (28 P R 1834) "But this section gives a right to cause the death of a person against whom those portions of the Punjab Frontier Crime Regulations 1897, which are not of general application may be enforced, etc."—See s. 34 of the Regulation.

B—Arrest without Warrant

When police may arrest without warrant.

54 (1) Any police-officer may, without an order from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest—

Notes.

1. Issue of warrant by Magistrate amounts to "reasonable complaint."—In order to justify a police officer to arrest without warrant any person "against whom a reasonable complaint has been made that he has been concerned in a cognizable offence," it is not necessary that the complaint should have been made to the police officer himself. It is sufficient that a reasonable complaint should have been made to any person who was entitled to entertain it—e.g.—a Magistrate and that the latter after taking the statement of the complainant had acted upon it and had issued a warrant for the arrest of the person concerned. 3 U. P. (A) 198.
2. Power to arrest under S. 54 not confined to any particular local area.—Section 54 Cr. P. C. gives the police power to arrest without a warrant a person who is charged with a cognisable offence and "it seems to me that it makes no difference so long as it is within British India," (Kumarswami Sastri, J.), that it is to say, a police officer is authorised not only to arrest in such cases within the limits of his own Police Station but anywhere in British India.—41 M. J. 441.

S. 55.

Notes.

1. Magistrate cannot order bad character to leave any place.—The law does not authorise a Magistrate to order any person to leave any place under threat of being prosecuted as a bad character—19 A J. 951 : ((97) A N 59 R)
2. Power to order further detention after discharge.—Where persons arrested on suspicion under S. 55 in connection with a case of dacoity are discharged from custody, no Magistrate has any authority to direct their further detention in custody on a different matter unless and until they had been re-arrested by the Police under S. 55 of the Cr. P. C.—43 A 186.

The officer so required shall before making the arrest notify to the person to be arrested the substance of the order and, if so required by such person, shall show him the order.

likely to promote facility of work. "We consider that a police officer making an investigation should, no less than an officer in charge of a police station, have power to depute a subordinate to effect arrest under the provisions of S. 53 (1) and we propose an amendment in this subsection accordingly (Sd. Com. 1916)

Notes.

Rescue from lawful custody.—A constable in pursuance of written orders by a Sub-Inspector under S. 56 Cr. P. C. arrested certain persons. The accused thereupon pushed aside the constable, and rescued them from lawful custody. Held, that the accused were guilty under S. 353 read with S. 225 Indian Penal Code.—41 A 251.

59. (1) Any private person may arrest any person who in his view commits a non-bailable and cognizable offence, or any proclaimed offender, and, without unnecessary delay, shall make over any person so arrested to a police-officer, or, in the absence of a police-officer, take such person or cause him to be taken in custody to the nearest police-station.

Arrest by private persons Procedure on such arrest

(2) If there is reason to believe that such person comes under the provisions of section 54, a police-officer shall re-arrest him.

(3) If there is reason to believe that he has committed a non-cognizable offence, and he refuses on the demand of a police-officer to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which such officer has reason to believe to be false, he shall be dealt with under the provisions of section 57. If there is no sufficient reason to believe that he has committed any offence, he shall be at once released.

Changes introduced.

The words "or cause him to be taken in custody to the nearest police station" put the legislative seal on the view taken by the Madras High Court in 11 M 480 and 17 M 103, the Calcutta High Court in 41 C 17 and the Allahabad High Court in 29 A. 475 and 23 A 266, that the law does not require that the private person who arrests the offender should personally take him to the Police Station. If he cause the offender to be taken to the thana, he does all that is required of him. "We think that the words "without unnecessary delay" should govern all that follows and we have made a slight drafting change to effect this. (Joint Com. 1922.)

Notes.

Limits of arrest by private person.—Section 59 of the Criminal Procedure Code empowers a private person to arrest any person who, in his view, commits a non-bailable and cognisable offence. A private person who attempts to arrest a person who has not committed a cognisable offence in his view is not entitled to the protection of that section, or of S. 225 of the Penal Code.—2 L. 303.

S. 68.

Notes.

1. None attendance due to illness.—"It appears to me that if a person is sufficiently incapacitated by illness to have given up his ordinary avocations, this would be sufficient excuse for him not to attend a Court in obedience to a summons. If the applicant was so ill that his absence could not be regarded as a wilful disobedience to the Court's order, the fact that he did not send a man to inform the Court of his illness, would render him liable to punishment."—Ryves, J.—23 Cr. 208 (A.)

2. Summons not sealed is illegal.—A summons not sealed as required by S 68 of the Cr. P. C. is illegal. 21 Cr 800 (M.) (42 C. 708 Fd)

Ss. 69-70-71.

Notes.

Substituted service to be ordered when—Substitute service of summons should not be ordered until proper steps have been taken to effect a personal service. In the absence of reasonable diligence in attempting to personally serve the summons, substituted service is bad.—23 Cr. 739 (N.).

S. 87.

Notes.

Application of the section.—A man who files a petition against the order issuing the warrant and takes steps to procure an order of a superior Court that he should be allowed to remain on bail after such warrant has been issued, can neither be said to be absconding nor concealing himself. In such a case no action can be taken under S. 87 Cr. P. C. by the Court which issued the warrant—23 Cr. 451 (L.) (See (1886) 2 Weir. 40).

88 (1) The Court issuing a proclamation under section 87 may at any time order the attachment of any property, moveable or immoveable, or both, belonging to the proclaimed person.

(2) Such order shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person within the district in which it is made, and it shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person without such district when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within whose district such property is situate.

(3) If the property ordered to be attached is a debt or other movable property, the attachment under this section shall be made—

(a) by seizure; or

(b) by the appointment of a receiver; or

(c) by an order in writing prohibiting the delivery of such property to the proclaimed person or to any one on his behalf; or

(d) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

(4) If the property ordered to be attached is immoveable, the attachment under this section shall, in the case of land paying revenue to Government, be made through the Collector of the district in which the land is situate, and in all other cases—

(e) by taking possession, or

(f) by the appointment of a receiver, or

(g) by an order in writing prohibiting the payment of rent or delivery of property to the proclaimed person or to any one on his behalf, or

(h) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

(5) If the property ordered to be attached consists of livestock or is of a perishable nature, the Court may, if it thinks it expedient, order immediate sale thereof, and in such case the proceeds of the sale shall abide the order of the Court.

(6) The powers, duties and liabilities of a receiver appointed under this section shall be the same as those of a receiver appointed under Chapter XXXVI of the Code of Civil Procedure.

(6A) If any claim is preferred to, or objection made to the attachment of, any property attached under this section within six months from the date of such attachment, by any person other than the proclaimed person, on the ground that the claimant or objector has an interest in such property, and that such interest is not liable to attachment under this section, the claim or objection shall be inquired into, and may be allowed or disallowed in whole or in part.

Provided that any claim preferred or objection made within the period allowed by this sub-section may, in the event of the death of the claimant or objector, be continued by his legal representative.

(6B) Claims or objections under sub-section (6A) may be preferred or made in the Court by which the order of attachment is issued or, if the claim or objection is in respect of property attached under an order endorsed by District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2), in the Court of such Magistrate.

(6C) Every such claim or objection shall be inquired into by the Court in which it is preferred or made.

Provided that, if it is preferred or made in the Court of a District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate, such Magistrate may make it over for disposal to any Magistrate of the first or second class or to any Presidency Magistrate, as the case may be, subordinate to him.

(6D) Any person whose claim or objection has been disallowed in whole or in part by an order under sub-section (6A) may, within a period of one year from the date of such order, institute a suit to establish the right which he claims in respect of the property in dispute; but subject to the result of such suit, if any, the order shall be conclusive.

(6E) If the proclaimed person appears within the time specified in the proclamation, the Court shall make an order releasing the property from the attachment.

(7) If the proclaimed person does not appear within the time specified in the proclamation, the property under attachment shall be at the disposal of Government; but it shall not be sold until the expiration of six months from the date of the attachment and until any claim preferred or objection made under sub-section 6A has been disposed of under that sub-section unless it is subject to speedy and natural decay, or the Court considers that the sale would be for the benefit of the owner, in either of which cases the Court may cause it to be sold whenever it thinks fit.

Changes introduced.

Hearing by Special Bench.

99C. Every such application shall be heard and determined by a Special Bench of the High Court composed of three Judges.

99D. (1) On receipt of the application, the Special Bench shall if it is not satisfied that the issue of the newspaper, of the book or other document, in respect of which the application has been made, contained seditious matter of the nature referred to in sub-section (1) of section 99A set aside the order of forfeiture.

(2) Where there is a difference of opinion among the Judges forming the Special Bench the decision shall be in accordance with the opinion of the majority of those Judges.

Evidence to prove nature or tendency of newspaper.

99F. Every High Court shall, as soon as conveniently may be, frame rules to regulate the procedure in the case of such application, the amount of the costs thereof and the execution of orders passed thereon and until such rules are framed, the practice of such Courts in proceedings other than suits and appeals shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to such applications.

103. (1) Before making a search under this Chapter, the officer or other person about to make it shall call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate to attend and witness the search and may issue an order in writing to them or any of them so to do.

Search to be made in presence of witnesses.

(2) The search shall be made in their presence, and a list of all things seized in the course of such search and of the places in which they are respectively found shall be prepared by such officer or other person and signed by such witnesses; but no person witnessing a search under this section shall be required to attend the Court as a witness of the search unless specially summoned by it.

(3) The occupant of the place searched, or some person in his behalf, shall in every instance, be permitted to attend during the search, and a copy of the list prepared under this section, signed by the said witnesses, shall be delivered to such occupant or person at his request.

Occupant of place searched may attend.

(4) When any person is searched under section 102, sub-section (3), a list of all things taken possession of shall be prepared, and a copy thereof shall be delivered to such person at his request.

(5) Any person who without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to attend and witness a search under this section, when called upon to do so by an order in writing delivered or tendered to him, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 187 of the Indian Penal Code.

Changes introduced.

Sections 90 A to G have been inserted by the Press Law Repeal and Amendment Act 1922 (Act XIV of 1922)

- (1) The addition of the words "and may issue an order in writing to them or any of them so to do," gives an important and necessary power to the police-officer conducting the search
- (2) By making a refusal to attend and witness a search, when called upon to do so, punishable under S 187 I. P. C. the Legislature confirms the decision in 38 M. J. 27. "We accept the proposal of the Bill to penalise an unreasonable refusal or neglect to attend as a search witness, but would make it and such Court is of opinion that it is necessary to require such person to execute a bond for keeping the peace, such Court may, at the time of passing sentence on such person, order him to execute a bond for a sum proportionate to his means, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace during such period, not exceeding three years, as it thinks fit to fix

(2) If the conviction is set aside on appeal or otherwise, the bond so executed shall become void.

(3) An order under this section may also be made by an Appellate Court including a Court hearing appeals under section 407 or by the High Court when exercising its powers of revision.

Changes introduced.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The words "if in his opinion there is sufficient ground for proceeding" provide a safeguard against arbitrary exercise of powers under the section.
- (2) In subs. (4) the words "sub-section (3)" have replaced the words "this section" thus clearly emphasising the fact that only in the special circumstances referred to in subs. (3), a Magistrate may detain a person against whom proceedings are instituted under that sub-section. This amendment follows

32 C. 80, 31 M. 315 (F.B.) 36 M. 471 and 9 S. 158 (See 107 (187, 188)).

- (3) The words "until the completion of the enquiry" have been added.

Notes.

1. What is information within the meaning of S. 107 Cr. P. C.—
- (1) Information of the kind mentioned in Section 107 of the Code must be of a clear and definite kind.
- (2) It is not open to a Magistrate to draw up or direct, against particular persons, proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C. merely on the basis of general or vague statements which do not contain any direct allegation or accusation against the individuals proceeded against.—2 Pat. T. 669
2. Defective notice when not fatal.—Where the appellants had ample notice of the case that was made against them and also ample time to produce evidence in support of their own case, and the omission of "the substance of the information received" in the notice, did not in fact prejudice the accused in putting forward their case before the Magistrate: held, that the defect was cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—23 Cr. 42 (Pat.).

3. Section 107 applies only to case of undisputed possession.—Proceedings under section 107 Cr. P. C. are justified only in the case of undisputed possession. Where there is a dispute about possession of land, proceeding under S. 145 should be instituted.—22 Cr. 574 (Pat.) (See also 22 Cr. 86 (Pat.))
4. Duty to maintain possession given by Civil Court.—
5. Apprehension of breach of peace must be real and not

7. Jurisdiction does not depend on place of residence only.—The fact that a person is within the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, when an apprehension of a breach of the peace arises, is sufficient to give the Magistrate jurisdiction to bind such person over under S. 107 Cr. P. C and such jurisdiction is not ousted merely because the person to be bound over has his place of residence outside the jurisdiction.—22 Cr. 109 (A) (11 C 737 : 12 C. 133 : 6 A. 26 (F.B.) : 24 C. 344 Fd.)
8. Proceedings against person resident outside jurisdiction.—A District Magistrate acting in the exercise of his powers under section 107 Cr. P. C. can pass an order against an accused person residing outside the local limits of his jurisdiction, when the breach of the peace or disturbance is apprehended within the local limits of his jurisdiction.—23 Cr. 396 (A)
9. Accused willing to give security.—The mere statement of person that he is willing to give security is not sufficient ground for asking security from him for keeping the peace.—23 Cr. 175 (L.) (24 P. R 1915 : 27 P. R. 1917 Fd.)
10. Instigators come within S. 107.—Section 107 applies to persons who merely instigate a breach of the peace or disturbance of the public tranquility.—23 Cr. 394 (N)
11. Section 107 not ousted by applicability of S. 145.—

even when the cause of the likelihood of the breach of the peace has its origin in a dispute about land.—23 Cr. 123 (Pat.) : 23 Cr. 567 (N.).

12. Civil Suit to set aside an order under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—“It is clearly not the intention of the Legislature to prevent persons, even though bound over under S. 107, from seeking to enforce their rights in Civil Court” The institution of a civil suit by the person bound over, cannot be made a ground for forfeiture of the bond, as in that case no person bound over under S. 107, would be able to institute a civil or criminal proceeding without endangering the forfeiture of the bond.—1 L. 310.

108. Whenever a Chief Presidency or District Magistrate, or a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, has information that there is within the limits of his jurisdiction any person who, within or without such limits, either orally or in writing or in any other manner intentionally disseminates or attempts to disseminate, or in anywise abets the dissemination of,—
- (a) any seditious matter, that is to say, any matter the publication of which is punishable under section 124A of the Indian Code, or
- (b) any matter the publication of which is punishable under section 153A of the Indian Penal Code, or
- (c) any matter concerning a Judge which amounts to criminal intimidation or defamation under the Indian Penal Code, such Magistrate if in his opinion there is sufficient ground for proceeding may (in manner herein-after provided) require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for his good behaviour for such period, not exceeding one year, as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

No proceedings shall be taken under this section against the editor, proprietor, printer or publisher of any publication registered under, and edited, printed and published in conformity with, the rules laid down in the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867, with reference to any matter contained in such publication except by the order or under the authority of the Governor General in Council or the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in this behalf.

such Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period, not exceeding three years, as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

Changes introduced.

1. By including a habitual forger in cl. (a) the Legislature has removed a glaring omission. The Courts were formerly helpless when the reported forger could not be proved to be in the habit of either cheating or extortion (See 28 P. R. 1914 : 25 P. R. 1884 : 20 O. C. 129 : 19 Cr. 885 (N) : 16 A. J. 776 S. 110 (163)). "We agree that habitual kidnappers should be brought under this section, but doubt the necessity of any reference to abduction. We think that it is desirable to include all offences under Chapter XII of the Indian Penal Code and also habitual forgers." (Sol. Cr. 1916) "We notice that clause (d) of S. 110 as redrafted by the Bill omits the reference to the counterfeiting of currency notes, which appears in the present law. We have therefore included offences under S. 489 A to 489 C of the Indian Jurisdiction lies where crimes are committed.—Section 110 has left the matter of permanent residence open. 4. Evidence of general repute must be overwhelming.—When there is nothing but evidence of general repute to go upon, that evidence must be so general and overwhelming, as to leave no practical doubt that the accused is in the habit of committing any one or more of the offences specified in the section.—Rat. 639 : 2 P. R. 1898 : 12 P. R. 1892

Note.—Although it is not necessary to prove the commission of specific offences, it is still necessary that there should be, at least evidence of a general repute of the accused being a habitual offender.

5. Points to consider in weighing evidence.—In cases under S. 110 Cr. P. C., it is the weight of the evidence and not merely the number of witnesses on each side, which the Court has and ought to consider.—24 O. C. 225.

J. 665 : 24 Cr. 257 (A.). See 34 C. J. 35

8. Confession of co-accused.—The confession of an accused person in a dacoity case is inadmissible in evidence against a co-accused in that case in a proceeding against the latter under S. 110 Cr. P. C.—25 C. N. 239 : 22 C. N. 408.

9. Admissibility of judgment in 110 case in substantive trials.—Where an accused person is on his trial, for an offence under S. 396 of the Penal Code, the fact that in proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P. C., he had been required to give security and had been unable to give it is not admissible.—32 C. J. 89
10. Admission of accused by itself cannot be basis of order.—An admission by the accused of his bad character cannot from the basis of an order (3 B. R. 368). Evidence must be recorded even when the accused offers to give security.—(97 60) L. B. 637.

21. Intimacy with accused no reason for rejection of surety.—The mere fact that the surety offered is a relation of the accused is on intimate terms with him and is named by him as a witness, is not a valid reason in law for refusing to accept the surety.—22 Cr. 22 (A)
22. Residence at a distance no disqualification.—Unnecessary difficulties ought not to be put in the way of people required to furnish security for good behaviour, and sureties should not be rejected merely on the ground that they live several miles away from the residence of the accused. 22 Cr. 395 (A) 24 O. (2) Such inquiry shall be made, as nearly as may be practicable where the order requires security for keeping the peace, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials and recording evidence in summons-cases; and where the order requires security for good behaviour in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials and recording evidence in warrant-cases, except that no charge need be framed to be held on oath—the Legislature has finally settled the nature of the enquiry to be so held, viz. that it should be a judicial enquiry. The change accords with the view consistently taken by the High Courts in a series of decisions (See 110 (262) 122 (3: 4). But by investing the Magistrate with the power to delegate the duty of holding the enquiry to subordinate Magistrates the Legislature has definitely overruled quite a host of decisions.

- (3) The procedure laid down is as follows:—(a) duty to record the substance of the evidence alleged. (This accords with 43 C. 1024; 27 A. 293; 21 Cr. 365 (A.); 4 S. 18 is overruled. See also S. 122 (4) and (b) duty to record reasons for rejection or refusal to accept a surety has been recognised in 14 C. N. 709; 37 C. 91; 44 B 343; Cr. R. 21 of 11-3-04; Cr. R. 9 of 7-12-02 (c) duty to give reasonable notice to the surety and to the person by whom the security is offered. (This accords with the decisions in 14 C. N. 709.)

123 (1) If any person ordered to give security under section 106 or section 118 does not give such security on or before the date on which the period for which such security is to be given commences he shall, except in the case next hereinafter mentioned, be committed to prison, or, if he is already in prison, be detained in prison until such period expires or until within such period he gives the security to the Court or Magistrate who made the order requiring it.

(2) When such person has been ordered by a Magistrate to give security for a period exceeding one year, such Magistrate shall, if such person does not give such security as aforesaid, issue a warrant directing him to be detained in prison pending the orders of the Sessions Judge or, if such Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate, pending the orders of the High Court; and the proceedings shall be laid, as soon as conveniently may be, before such Court.

(3) Such Court, after examining such proceedings and requiring from the Magistrate any further information or evidence which it thinks necessary, may pass such order on the case as it thinks fit.

Provided that the period (if any) for which any person is imprisoned for failure to give security shall not exceed three years.

(3A) If security has been required in the course of the same proceedings from two or more persons in respect of any one of whom the proceedings are referred to the Sessions Judge or the High Court under sub-section (2), such reference shall also include the case of any other of such persons who has been ordered to give security, and the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3) shall, in that event, apply to the case of such other person also, except that the period (if any) for which he may be imprisoned shall not exceed the period for which he was ordered to give security.

(3B) A Sessions Judge may in his discretion transfer any proceedings laid before him under sub-section (2) or sub-section (3A) to an Additional Sessions Judge or Assistant Sessions Judge and upon such transfer, such Additional Sessions Judge or Assistant Sessions Judge may exercise the powers of a Sessions Judge under this section in respect of such proceedings.

(4) If the security is tendered to the officer in charge of the jail, he shall forthwith refer the matter to the Court or Magistrate who made the order, and shall await the orders of such Court or Magistrate.

Kind of imprisonment

(5) Imprisonment for failure to give security for keeping the peace shall be simple.

(6) Imprisonment for failure to give security for good behaviour shall, where the proceedings have been taken under section 108 or section 109, be simple and, where the proceedings have been taken under section 110 be rigorous or simple as the Court or Magistrate in each case directs.

Changes introduced.

(1) Subsection (3A) has been enacted for the following reason :

"The Bombay Government have suggested that where the case of one accused has to be referred to the Sessions Judge S. 123, the case of all should be referred whether they give security or not." We have adopted this suggestion. (Joint Com. 1922)

(2) Clause 3(11) will give the necessary relief to the congested files of Sessions Judges—Ruling rendered obsolete—Rat. 830

(3) The most important amendment is that it is definitely laid down that imprisonment in cases under ss 108 and 109 shall be simple. "We have added another amendment to provide that sub-section (6) of S. 123 as it stands shall apply only to cases for security under S. 110. We think that imprisonment in cases under ss 108 and 109 in default of furnishing security should be simple. (Joint Com. 1922).

effect on the expiry of the previous detention.—15 S. 205 (37 B. 178 : 31 M. 515 : 14 P. R. 1893 F)

Note.—It should be noted that the Legislature has now definitely accepted the proposition that an order of detention under S. 123 is not a sentence of imprisonment on any charge. We think therefore that there is no reason why imprisonment for a subsequent offence should not ordinarily be made to run concurrently with the committal or detention under S. 123.—Sel. Com. 1916

2. Date of commencement of period of security to be fixed.—The procedure laid down in Chapter VIII Cr. P. C. is that a date shall be fixed on which the period for which the security is to be given, shall

3. Escape from jail during detention.—A person who escapes from a jail in which he is confined under a warrant under section 123 of the Criminal Procedure Code, by reason of his having failed to furnish security to be of good behaviour, should be convicted under S. 225 B. (2) Whenever any person has been imprisoned for failing to give security under this Chapter the Chief Presidency or District Magistrate may (unless the order has been made by some Court superior to his own) make an order reducing the amount of the security or the number of sureties or the time for which security has been required

(3) An order under sub-section (1) may direct the discharge of such person either without conditions or upon any conditions which such person accepts.

Provided that any condition imposed shall cease to be operative when the period for which such person was ordered to give security has expired.

(4) The Local Government may prescribe the conditions upon which a conditional discharge may be made.

(5) If any condition upon which any such person has been discharged is, in the opinion of the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate by whom the order of discharge was made or of his successor, not fulfilled, he may cancel the same

(6) When a conditional order of discharge has been cancelled under sub-section (5), such person may be arrested by any police-officer without warrant, and shall thereupon be produced before the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate.

Unless such person then gives security in accordance with the terms of the original order for the unexpired portion of the term for which he has in the first instance committed or ordered to be detained (such portion being deemed to be a period equal to the period between the date of the breach of the conditions of discharge and the date on which, except for such conditional discharge, he would have been entitled to release), the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate may remand such person to prison to undergo such unexpired portion.

A person remanded to prison under this sub-section shall, subject to the provisions of section 122, be released at any time on giving security in accordance with the terms of the original order for the unexpired portion aforesaid to the Court or Magistrate by whom such order was made, or to its or his successor.

Changes introduced.

The section has practically been recast in its entirety. The most important change is the provision for discharge on conditions and the power to re-arrest and detain in the case of a breach of these conditions.

The Local Government may prescribe the conditions upon which a conditional discharge may be made.

1. Scope of the section—(1) An application under section 123 Cr. P. C. is not an appeal and does fers no power on him to set aside a proceeding under S 107 even though the subordinate Magistrate has acted without jurisdiction. — 23 Cr 231 (Pat.). 23 Cr 398(A): 23 Cr 394(N): 11 N. 98. (4 P. R. 1912 Diss.)

section merely empowers a District Magistrate to cancel a bond for any sufficient reason. It con-can only be on the ground that the bond are no longer necessary. —23 Cr. 398(A).

126A. When a person for whose appearance a warrant or summons has been issued under the proviso to sub-section (3) of section 122 or under section 126, sub-section (2), appears or is brought before him the Magistrate shall cancel the bond executed by such person, and shall order such person to give for the unexpired portion of the term of such bond, fresh security of the same description as the original security. Every such order shall, for the purposes of sections 121, 122, 123 and 124, be deemed to be an order made under section 106 or section 118, as the case may be.

Changes introduced

Subsection (3) of S. 126 has been re-enacted as S 126(a) with slight modifications.

PUBLIC NUISANCES

133. (1) Whenever a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class considers, on receiving a police-report or other information and on taking such evidence (if any) as

Conditional order for removal of nuisance

that any unlawful obstruction or nuisance should be removed from any way, river or channel which is or may be lawfully used by the public, or from any public place, or that the conduct of any trade or occupation, or the keeping of any goods or merchandise, is injurious to the health or physical comfort of the community, and that in consequence such trade or occupation should be prohibite~~d~~ or regulated or such goods or merchandise should be removed or the keeping thereof regulated, or that the construction of any building, or the disposal of any substance, as likely to occasion conflagration or explosion, should be prevented or stopped, or that any building, tent or structure, or any tree is in such a condition that it is likely to fall and thereby cause injury to persons living or carrying on business in the neighbourhood or passing by, and that in consequence the removal, repair or support of such building, tent or structure, or the removal or support of such tree, is necessary, or that any tank, well or excavation adjacent to any such way or public place should be fenced in such manner as to prevent danger arising to the public, or that any dangerous animal should be destroyed confined or otherwise disposed of, such Magistrate may make a conditional order requiring the person causing such obstruction or nuisance, or carrying on such trade or occupation, or keeping any such goods or merchandise, or owning, possessing or controlling such building tent, structure, substance, tank, well or excavation, or owning or possessing such animal or tree, within a time to be fixed in the order, to remove such obstruction or nuisance ; or to desist from carrying on, or to remove or regulate in such manner as may be directed, such trade or occupation ; or to remove such goods or merchandise, or to regulate the keeping thereof in such manner as may be directed ; or to prevent or stop the erection of, or to remove, repair or support, such building, tent or structure ; or to remove or support such tree ; or to alter the disposal of such substance ; or under cl. (2) of that section dropping a proceeding started under S. 133 Cr. P. C., he must take evidence in the manner as directed by cl. (1) of S. 137 Cr. P. C.—22 Cr. 239 (C) (42 C 702; 10 C. J. 432 Ed.).

139A (1) Where an order is made under section 133 for the purpose of preventing obstruction, any way, river, channel or place, the Magistrate shall, on the appearance before him of the person against whom the order was made, question him as to whether he denies the existence of any public right in respect of the way, river, channel or place, and, if he does so, the Magistrate shall, before proceeding under section 137 or section 138, inquire into the matter.

(2) If in such inquiry the Magistrate finds that there is any reliable evidence in support of such denial, he shall stay the proceedings until the matter of the existence of such right has been decided by a competent Civil Court; and, if he finds that there is no such evidence, he shall proceed as laid down in section 137 or section 138, as the case may require.

(3) A person who has, on being questioned by the Magistrate under sub-section (1), failed to deny the existence of a public right of the nature therein referred to, or who, having made such denial, has failed to adduce reliable evidence in support thereof, shall not in the subsequent proceedings be permitted to make any such denial, nor shall any question in respect of the existence of any such public right be inquired into by any jury appointed under section 138.

Changes introduced.

We would refer our readers to the Notes appearing at p. 197 of the main volume under ss 133-142 (Ch. XII Bonafide claim of right) This section which is new supplies a real omission in the Code of 1898. The principal question in connection with this clause, is whether as provided in the Bill, questions of title in relation to rights of way and the like, should, for the purpose of the Chapter, be finally decided by the Magistrate, or whether the almost uniform decisions of the High Court, which lay down that the Magistrate must stay proceedings, if he is satisfied that the question has been raised bonafide, should be followed. We prefer to accept the latter view as laid down in Manipurdy v. Bidhu bhuan Sircar I. L. R. 42 Cal 159; and as the case will not arise in all proceedings under this section, and more especially, as we incline to the opinion that the proposed re-drafting of the S. 135 is not altogether satisfactory we have provided for it as a special case in a new S. 139A. Our proposals involve the necessity of laying down clearly that the Magistrate only (i.e., not the jury), is competent to inquire into a claim relating to title. In view of S. 142 and the fact that in a case of any importance, either the person against whom the order was originally made or some member of the public will bring the matter before a Civil Court, "we do not think it necessary to lay down that the Magistrate may resume the proceedings upon the failure by the person against whom the order was made to institute civil proceedings within a reasonable time" Joint Com 1922) The section incorporates the decisions noted in Chapter XII notes no. 161 to 163 which should be studied in this connection.

Notes.

1. In the Full Bench decision of the Calcutta High Court. (Em Sagor Mondal v. Alex Naskar (49 C. 682.) the law as to bonafide claim of right has recently been exhaustively reviewed. All the rulings of the Calcutta High Court bearing on the point have carefully been examined.—112—5 C. 875; 11 C. 8; 112 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

- (1) When in proceedings under S. 133 Cr. P. C. arises out of an alleged obstruction of a way used by the public, the defendant acts up a claim of right, which is found by the Magistrate to be made in good faith, the Magistrate's Jurisdiction is not entirely ousted.

(2) If the Magistrate does not think the claim is well-founded, he should drop the proceedings and proceed no further.

the Magistrate can continue the proceedings under S. 133 Cr. P. C.

The real controversy out of which the Full Bench Reference arose, raged round a distinction drawn in the leading case 15 C. 564 Luckhee Narain v. Ramkumar between a claim of right which the Magistrate thinks well-founded and a claim of right which the Magistrate does not think well-founded but considers to have been made bonafide. (This ruling has been followed in Belat Ali v. Abdur Rahim 8 C N. 143).

It appears to the Editors that the Full Bench decision seems to lay down that (1) where, in the opinion of the Magistrate himself the claim of right appears to be well-founded, he should drop the proceedings and proceed no further, (2) where, in the opinion of the Magistrate such claims, though bonafide, does not appear to well-founded, he should stay his hands and allow the parties reasonable time to establish their claims in the Civil Court, time, have the such

final order in the case, as he may think fit

In this connection it should be particularly noted that the Legislature has advisedly adopted the suggestion of the Joint Committee that no hard and fast rule should be laid down with reference to the resumption of proceedings on failure to institute civil proceedings within a reasonable time. (See Notes above.) In the result therefore, the decision in the Full Bench Ruling holds good, and it is within the competence of the Magistrate, to carry at his option, the proceedings to the final stage in the contingency just referred to.

TEMPORARY ORDERS IN URGENT CASES OF NUISANCE OR APPREHENDED DANGER.

144. (1) In cases where, in the opinion of a District Magistrate, a Chief Presidency Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, or of any other Magistrate (not being a Magistrate of the third class) specially empowered by the Local Government or the Chief Power to issue order absolute at once in urgent cases of nuisance or apprehended danger.

Presidency Magistrate or the District Magistrate to act under this section there is sufficient ground for proceeding under this section and immediate prevention or speedy remedy is desirable, such Magistrate may, by a written order stating the material facts of the case and served in manner provided by section 131, direct any person to abstain from a certain act or to take certain order with certain property in his possession or under his management, if such Magistrate considers that such direction is likely to prevent, or tends to prevent, obstruction, annoyance or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury, to any person lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety, or a disturbance of the public tranquillity, or a riot, or an affray.

(2) An order under this section may, in cases of emergency or in cases where the circumstances do not admit of the serving in due time of of a notice upon the person against whom the order is directed, be passed ex parte

(3) An order under this section may be directed to a particular individual, or to the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular place.

(4) Any Magistrate may either on his own motion or on the application of any person aggrieved rescind or alter any order made under this section by himself or any Magistrate subordinate to him, or by his predecessor in office.

(5) Where such an application is received, the Magistrate shall afford to the applicant an early opportunity of appearing before him either in person or by pleader and shewing cause against the order; and, if the Magistrate rejects the application wholly or in part, he shall record in writing his reasons for so doing.

(6) No order under this section shall remain in force for more than two months but making thereof unless in case of danger to human life, health or safety, or a likelihood of such danger, or as directed by the Local Government, by notification in the official Gazette, otherwise.

Changes introduced

- (1) Magistrate 3rd class have been expressly excluded from the provision of this section, though a 2nd class and a 1st class Magistrate, third class Magistrate were hardly, if ever, vested with the powers of S 144.
- (2) In addition, the words "either on his own motion" in sub-clause (4) any doubt which existed as to the power of the Magistrate to act ex officio is removed.
- (3) Regarding the new sub-section (5), the following reason were given by the Select Committee: "As are proposed, and we have proposed amendments to this effect to lay down that a person shall be entitled to apply to the Magistrate for an order against the order, and that the Magistrate shall give him an opportunity to be heard personally or by pleader, and shall record a decision in writing on the application giving his reasons where he rejects it."

Notes.

Application of S 144 Cr P C.—S 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code merely provides for removal of imminent danger or apprehended danger and ought to be applied with due regard to its scheme and purpose. Where a nuisance complained of has existed for a great length of time, practically without any complaint, the case cannot be treated as an urgent case of nuisance or apprehended danger and cannot be treated fairly and properly as being within the special purposes of the section.—20 L. I. 177.

- (2) S 144 applies only in cases of undisputed possession.—It is only when the possession is either undisputed or clear beyond any shadow of doubt that S 144 of the Code applies. Where the possession is disputed S 144 has no application; the effective and proper section is 145 of the Code.—2 Pat T 484. 1 Pat T 577. 1 Pat T 24. 1 Pat T 72 Fd.

(Note).—If after proceeding under S 144 the Magistrate finds a prima facie case of actual possession in favour of any party but there is no conclusive evidence of such actual possession, the proper course, for him would be to convert his order under S 144 into a proceeding under S 145 of the Code, so as to once for all determine the right of the contending parties to the possession of the land in question.—2 Pat T 570. 1 Pat T 61 Fd.)

- (3) Where S 144 does not apply.—S 144 is of general application and contains nothing which restricts the Magistrate's jurisdiction in cases of bonafide dispute as to possession of land. But where S 107 or S 145 will meet the requirements of the case, S 144 is not the appropriate remedy, and if it is found that the danger was not so imminent that it could not be otherwise averted, an order under S 144 will generally be held to have been made without jurisdiction.—Per Mullick J. in 22 Cr 349 (Ft.) (F.B.).

- (4) Scope of the words "alter or rescind" in Clause (4).—The words "alter or rescind" clearly empower the District Magistrate to modify or cancel the order upon any ground whatever. The Legislature vests the District Magistrate with a wide and unrestricted power of review and the words "alter or rescind" cannot by reference to question of propriety be given an arbitrary and limited meaning.—2 Pat T 484 (Ft.) (F.B.).

- (Notes).—This ruling must be regarded as having overruled 2 Pat T 450. The word "alter" in sub-clause (4) of S 144 Cr P C. does not mean substituting the name of one party for that of the other.—2 Pat T 484 (Ft.) (F.B.). 2 Pat T 570. 1 Pat T 24.

- (5) Prohibition of hats.—The Law as to prohibition of hats may be laid down as follows:—

- (1) It is not within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to prohibit the holding of the hat altogether. It can only give some directions as to dress which will prevent obstruction, annoyance or disturbance of public tranquillity.—24 Cr 341. 10 R.L. (F.B.) 18 W. R. 47. 22 Cr 341 (Ft.) (F.B.).

(Note).—That is to say all that a Magistrate can do is to prohibit the holding of the hat on a particular day of the week.—10 R.L. 434 (F.B.).

- (2) Every person is ordinarily entitled to exercise all rights of ownership on his property and to prohibit the holding of a hat on one's own property is not itself a wrongful act. The Criminal Code vests jurisdiction to interfere with this lawful exercise of a person's right of ownership, when such exercise in its ultimate consequences and hence primarily against the lawful exercise of a person's right of ownership, is likely to cause a breach of the peace.—24 Cr 341 (Ft.) (F.B.).

- (3) An order proscribing the establishment of a hat within a quarter mile of an old hat was held to be valid in discharging the order. The learned Judges in discharging the order observed: "We are of opinion that the object of S 144 is not that orders should be made proscribing the holding of hats indefinitely in a certain area for two months."—11 Cr 224.

- (4) Interference with mosques.—In 24 Cr 154 dispute arose between two parties of Mahammadans regarding the reading of prayers in a mosque. The Magistrate tried to have the dispute settled privately but without success. He thereupon passed the following order: "The only course left for me to be taken is to pass orders under S 144, Cr. P. C. to the effect that no man of either party will be allowed to read the prayers in the above mosque." Held, that the effect of the order was that no Muhammadan would be allowed to say his prayer in the mosque. Such an order was not justified under S. 144 Cr. P. C. The proper course was to find out which party was in the wrong and to prevent that party from interfering unnecessarily with the exercise of the legal powers of the other party.—24 Cr 154(C)

9. Order under S. 144 must be definite as to time.—An order under S. 144, Criminal Procedure Code which is indefinite as to time and which prohibits a party from doing a certain act until the question in dispute is settled by a Civil Court, is in effect a perpetual injunction, and is therefore without jurisdiction—23 Cr 404 (M) . see 28 M J. 132.

 acted by the High Court on the ground that the period of the order had elapsed, does not preclude a Magistrate in a trial under S 188 I. P. C from questioning the legality of the order. (34 C. J. 578.)

11. When the disobedience is punishable —A disobedience of a valid order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. is punishable under S. 189 I. P. C. prosecution for which might be started either by sanction given under S. 193 Cr. P. C. or by an order passed under S. 476 Cr. P. C. but the disobedience itself is not punishable under the said section unless the disobedience causes or tends to cause obstruction, annoyance, or injury to any person lawfully employed.—23 Cr. 381 (Pat) · see 14 C. N. 234(230).
12. District Magistrate under sub S. (4) cannot direct substitution of proceedings under S. 145 —A District Magistrate, while setting aside an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. has no jurisdiction to direct the Subordinate Magistrate to substitute a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. He can only recommend the latter to look into the circumstances and to find out whether, in those circumstances, he should institute a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. or not:—2 Pat. T 392

14. Orders in the nature of a perpetual injunction.—Successive orders under S 144 Cr P. C are illegal. Such orders amount virtually to an extension of a similar order already issued and amount to an abuse of the power of the Court.—23 Cr. 689(M) (20 C N. 758 Fd)

DISPUTES AS TO IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY

145. (1) Whenever a District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is satisfied from a police-report or other of the peace exists concerning any land or water or the boundaries thereof, within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he shall make an order in writing, stating the grounds of his being so satisfied, and requiring the parties concerned in such disputes to attend his Court in person or by pleader, within a time to be fixed by such Magistrate, and to put in written statements of their respective claims as respects the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute.

(2) For the purposes of this section the expression "land or water" includes buildings, markets, fisheries, crops or other produce of land, and the rents or profits of any such property.

(3) A copy of the order shall be served in manner provided by this Code for the service of a summons upon such person or persons as the Magistrate may direct, and at least one copy shall be published by being affixed to some conspicuous place at or near the subject of dispute.

(f) The Magistrate shall then, without reference to the merits of the claims of any of such parties to a right to possess the subject of dispute, peruse the statements so put in, hear the parties, . . .

all such evidence as may be produced by them respectively, consider the effect of such evidence, take such further evidence (if any) as he thinks necessary, and, if possible, decide whether any and which of the parties was at the date of the order before mentioned in such possession of the said subject.

Provided that, if it appears to the Magistrate that any party has within two months next before the date of such order been forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed, he may treat the party so dispossessed as if he had been in possession at such date:

Provided also, that, if the Magistrate considers the case one of emergency, he may at any time attach the subject of dispute, pending his decision under this section.

(5) Nothing in this section shall preclude any party so required to attend, or any other person interested, from showing that no such dispute as aforesaid exists or has existed; and in such case the Magistrate shall cancel his said order, and all further proceedings thereon shall be stayed, but, subject to such cancellation, the order of the Magistrate under sub-section (1) shall be final.

(6) If the Magistrate decides that one of the parties was or should under the first proviso to sub-section (4) be treated as being in such possession of the said subject, he shall issue an order declaring such party to be entitled to possession thereof until evicted therefrom in due course of law, and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction and when he proceeds under the first proviso to sub-section (4), may restore to possession the party forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed.

(7) When any party to any such proceeding dies, the Magistrate may cause the legal representative of the deceased party to be made a party to the proceeding, and shall thereupon continue the inquiry, and if any question arises as to who the legal representative of a deceased party for the purpose of such proceeding is, all persons claiming to be representatives of the deceased party shall be made parties thereto; and

(8) If the Magistrate is of opinion that any crop or other produce of the property, the subject of dispute in a proceeding under this section pending before him, is subject to speedy and natural decay, he may make an order for the custody or sale of such property, and, upon the completion of the inquiry, shall make such order for the disposal of such property, or the sale-proceeds thereof, as he thinks fit.

(9) The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, at any stage of the proceedings under this section, on the application of either party, issue a summons to any witness directing him to attend or to produce any document or thing.

(10) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to be in derogation of the powers of the Magistrate to proceed under section 107.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The amendment of sub clause (4) viz. substitution of the words, " receive the evidence " by the words " receive all such evidence as may be " (which by the way is the exact phraseology used in S. 244(1)) removes all possible doubts as to the scope of the phrase. The amendment accords with the view taken in Calcutta and other High Courts (See 145 (233)) and overrules the following rulings in so far as they lay down an opinion to the contrary order effective against all likely disputants.

Rulings now obsolete: 3 C J 478; 16 C. 513; 26 C. 625. 32 C. 1093; 24 A. 315; 1 Pat. J. 336 (F.B.)

(4) Subsection (8) now clearly gives power to the Magistrate to appoint receivers pending completion of the enquiry. It adopts the opinion of Sankaran Nair J in 13 Cr. 293 which was followed in 27 M. T. 234 and overrules 4 Pat. W. 339 and 8 M. T. 314 (See 145(172)).

(5) We have added a new sub clause 8A on the lines of S. 244(2)—Joint Com. 1922.

(6) Subclause (9) gives effect to the decision of a special Bench of High Court in 39 C. 150 (S. B.); 24 C. N. 1075.

Notes.

I. Scope of the Section.

1. Claim to weigh grain and realise weightment dues.—A claim to weigh grain in a market and realise the weightment dues is not covered by S. 145 Cr. P. C.—23 Cr. 612(A).
2. ...
3. Subsoil rights—The provisions of S. 145 Cr. P. C. apply to disputes with regard to subsoil rights. The definition of land as given in Cr. P. C. is wide enough to cover mining rights and even prospecting and boring licenses—24 Cr. 108 (C); 32 C. J. 54 and 23 W. R. 45 Diss.; 4 Pat. J. 154; 2 Pat. W. 45. Cr. M. Case No. 21 of 1921 (Pat.).
4. Crops lying on the threshing floor.—The words crops or other produce of land refer only to crops or other produce still attached to the land—23 Cr. 650 (O); 28 A. 266; 30 C. 110 F.).
- 4a. Lac.—"lac" does not fall within the meaning of the expression 'land'—24 C. N. 1039; 48 C. 522 (F.B.)
5. Easements—S. 145 Cr. P. C. does not apply to a dispute about an easement in respect of which action must be taken under S. 147 of the Code.—22 Cr. 768 (N.).
6. Offerings at a temple.—"The dispute with regard to collection of offerings at a temple or at a Karbala, cannot by any stretch of reasoning be said to be a dispute concerning land or water, and therefore a dispute with respect to collection of offerings can not come within the purview of S. 145"—Sultan Ahmed J. in 5 Pat. J. 216 (38 C. 387; 37 C. 578 F.)

II. Likelihood of Breach of Peace.

7. Likelihood of the sine qua non.—A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to make any enquiry as to possession, still less any final order, unless and until he is satisfied of the likelihood of a breach of the peace, and that it is absolutely essential that the fact and the grounds of his being so satisfied should appear in his first order directing the issue of a notice and the grounds stated must be such as to satisfy a Court of revision before which the case may be brought by any of the parties concerned.—23 Cr. 768 (N.) (12 C. P. 2 R.); 2 Pat. T. 650; 24 C. N. 621; 20 C. 867; 20 C. 520; 25 C. N. 214; 215.

8. Final order need not contain any finding as to likelihood of breach of peace. See under Final Order below
9. Police report not suggesting likelihood—Where there is nothing in the Police report on which the proceedings are founded, to suggest that there was any apprehension of a breach of the peace, the proceeding is without jurisdiction—1 Pat. T. 387.
10. (Note.—Where however the police report contains materials upon which the Magistrate is entitled to be satisfied in his mind of the existence of a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace there is jurisdiction.—1 Pat. T. 738) See 24 Cr. 263 (Pat.)
11. Proceedings dropped on compromise when may be revived—During the course of the proceedings the parties filed a written deed of compromise duly verified by them and the Magistrate thereupon ordered the file to be consigned to the record room (25th Jan'y) on the 17th Feb'y. the complainant again appeared and stated that in violation of the plaint as a fresh complaint was no grave irregularity and did not call for interference.—23 Cr. 721 (L.).

III. Jurisdiction.

12. The Law regarding Jurisdiction.—If during the progress of the proceeding under S. 145, circumstances intervene which have the effect of taking away the initial jurisdiction, anything done in spite of those circumstances, in the exercise of the same jurisdiction must be treated as having been done without jurisdiction. A decision or order at any state of a case to be valid, must fall within the category of the circumstances which constitute the jurisdiction of the Court from the beginning to the end. If circumstances arise during the progress of the proceeding and are such as have the effect of destroying the jurisdiction, the jurisdiction must cease as soon as those circumstances come into being, no matter at what stage of the case they arise. The existence of the prescribed conditions is as much necessary for the inception of jurisdiction as for its continuance.—24 O. C. 167.

13. Power to decide whether he has jurisdiction.—A Magistrate has jurisdiction to decide whether the land, the subject-matter of a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. is within the local limits of his jurisdiction, and where rightly or wrongly, he comes to the conclusion that the land is not within his jurisdiction and passes an order dropping the proceedings, his act does not amount to a failure to exercise jurisdiction.—22 Cr. 392 (C).

IV. Proceeding.

14. Finding as to breach of peace how far essential.—Where the notice issued by a Magistrate purporting to act under S. 145 Cr. P. C. shows that he was satisfied that there was a serious dispute between the parties, the proceeding is one contemplated by S. 145 Cr. P. C. even though there is no finding in it about any likelihood of a breach of the peace.—23 Cr. 303 (A).
15. Subject-matter of dispute must be specified.—In drawing up a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. the subject-matter of the dispute should be clearly specified; an omission to do so amounts to a serious defect.—24 C. N. 621.
16. Formalities which must be observed.—S. 145 Cr. P. C. gives the Magistrate very extensive powers, but as a protection to the public, requires him to conform to certain formalities. If the formalities are not observed, that is, if the Magistrate passes no order in writing as required by sub section (1), does not call on the parties to put in written statements, and does not cause a copy of the order to be served in the prescribed manner, he acts without jurisdiction and the High Court can interfere in revision.—(197) A. N. 31 (N.).
17. Preliminary order must contain finding as to who is in possession on the date of the order.—In Tamulabala 16 Cr. 239 (M.) and Mundimany 9 Cr. 503 (M.), it was held that an order passed is illegal in the absence of a finding as to who is in possession on the date, the order is actually passed. In the former, the interval between the date when the Magistrate found the successful party in possession and the date of the order was one year, and in the latter, a month. These cases were distinguished in (1921) M. N. 808 by Kamranami Sisters on the ground that in the case in question, the interval was only 5 days and there was nothing on the record to show that there was any likelihood of possession having changed in the interval. (See (1929) Pat. 27 a ruling under the Code of 1962.)

V. Parties to proceeding.

18. Tenant in possession of a portion of disputed land.—A tenant who is in possession of only a portion of the land in dispute is not a necessary party to the proceeding.—23 Cr. 125 (Pat.) (30 C. 135 (F.S. Fd.).

19. Disputes between landlords.—Where the disputants are not in actual physical possession but merely claim constructive possession through tenants in actual possession, and the real dispute is whether the tenants are tenants of one or another of the other

VI. Attachment.

20. Moveables.—A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to attach moveable property under the provisions of S. 145 Cr. P. C.—24 O. C. 167.
21. Attachment in the absence of proceeding.—Where no proceedings were as a matter of fact drawn up, but the Magistrate merely directed proceedings to be drawn up, an order directing the attachment of the land in dispute is without jurisdiction.—2 Pat. T. 724.
22. When proceedings are dropped.—Where the disputed property was attached under sub section (4) but the proceedings were subsequently dropped and the Magistrate recorded the order: "Proceedings stopped: File". Held, that a further order in respect of the order of attachment should have been passed.—23 Cr. 195 (C.).

VII. Procedure.

23. Local Enquiries.—A Magistrate who has drawn up proceedings is precluded from deposing any one other than a Magistrate to hold any enquiry whatever. But a mere survey of the disputed land after enquiry from all the parties as to what land was in dispute, does not amount to a local enquiry but is a mere ministerial act and a Magistrate has jurisdiction to entrust the duty to a pleader commissioner or amin.—23 Cr. 152 (Pat.).
24. Transfer of proceedings under S. 145.—The words "any case" in S. 152 Cr. P. C. are wide enough to cover an enquiry under S. 145 Cr. P. C. Therefore a Subdivisional Magistrate who institutes proceedings under S. 145, Cr. P. C. has power to transfer the same to any Magistrate subordinate to him for enquiry and trial.—23 Cr. 205 (A.).
25. Power to cancel proceedings.—Where a District Magistrate upon information received is satisfied that there is no probability of any breach of the peace, he is competent to cancel an order made by his predecessor, under sub-sec. 1 of S. 145 of the Cr. P. C.—2 L. 364 (30 C. 112 Fd.).
26. Meaning of expression "hear the parties".—The expression "hear the parties" in clause 4 of S. 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code means hear the evidence of the parties and arguments of Counsel or Pleaders appearing on their behalf, or arguments addressed by themselves, and if the Magistrate refuses to hear arguments in a case under S. 145, he is not compliant with the provisions of the law which are imperative.—5 Pat. J. 218.

VIII. Evidence and witness.

27. Limitation as to number of witnesses.—“Ordinarily it may be assumed that, in a proceeding under S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the trial whereof is to be of the nature of a summons case, the Court has jurisdiction to curtail the number of unnecessary witnesses upon the ground that the examination of those witnesses will delay and possibly defeat the ends of justice.... It must also be conceded that even in a summons case the parties have an undoubted right to examine their witnesses and their right can only be curtailed by the Court upon the ground mentioned above.”—1er Jwala Prasad J. in 2 Pat. T. 330.
28. Deposition of witnesses must be read over.—S. 360 Cr. P. C. applies to trials under Chapter XII. Therefore in the case of proceedings under S. 145, the evidence must be read over to the witnesses. But a mere omission to do so by itself will not invalidate the trial.—23 Cr. 125 (Pat.)
29. Documentary evidence.—In a proceeding under S. 145, a Magistrate is entitled to rely on documentary evidence as to title to corroborate the oral evidence as to possession.—23 Cr. 197 (M)
30. Magistrate not bound to assist parties in producing evidence.—It is not obligatory on the Magistrate to assist parties to a proceeding under S. 145 to produce their witnesses and they cannot claim as a matter of right that processes should be issued by the Court, to enable them to bring forward their evidence.—23 Cr. 275 (Pat.) (32 C. 1093 38 C. 34 Fd.)
31. Note.—“The Legislature could hardly have contemplated an elaborate and protracted investigation, the result of which might in many instances be to defeat the very object in view, namely, an effective prevention of a breach of the peace. The whole object might obviously be defeated if the Court could be compelled to summon and re-examine witnesses at the choice of the parties.”—32 C. 1093.
32. Evidence must be recorded.—An order passed under Chapter XII without examining any of the witnesses of a party to the proceeding who are present in Court, is invalid.—23 Cr. 683 (C).

IX. Final order.

33. Nature of the final order.—An order under S. 145 Cr. P. C. no doubt ceases to have any force as soon as it is superseded by the order of a competent Civil Court, but until it is superseded, it is as final and binding as any order of the Civil Court itself could be.—24 O. C. 21.
34. Final order should clearly specify boundaries.—The final order should accurately describe the land, by specifying the boundaries thereof, in order to show clearly exactly what land is covered by the order.—22 Cr. 385 (C)
35. Final order must effectively deal with the evidence.—A general remark by the Magistrate that the oral evidence is not reliable, without referring to it and without giving any reason, is not a disposal of the evidence upon the record and it amounts to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction.—2 Pat. T. 168

36. Final order based on local enquiry of which there is note.—A final order which has been made by the Trial Magistrate on the basis of a local enquiry of which we have no note or memorandum is an order based upon no evidence and must be set aside.—25 C. N. 1007.
37. Finding of likelihood of a breach of peace not necessary in final order.—S. 145 Cr. P. C. does not require a Magistrate to give in his final order a finding that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace. After he has made an order in writing under subsection (1) of S. 145, the only matter which he has to determine is the question of the possession of the disputed property.—23 Cr. 424 (L)

X. Possession and Dispossession.

38. Documentary evidence of possession cannot be disregarded.—Where in a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. any proper appreciation of oral evidence regarding possession is impossible, in the absence of important documents touching the question of status, an order refusing an adjournment for the purpose of procuring and producing such documents is an arbitrary order constituting a denial of justice.—25 C. N. 602
39. When evidence of title should be admitted.—In a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate is not entitled to rely simply on the question of title. Where there is evidence of possession...
40. Mortgagee in possession.—In a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. a Magistrate has no power to disturb the possession of an usufructuary mortgagee at the instance of a depositor of the mortgage-money under S. 83 of the Transfer of Property Act.—22 Cr. 561 (Pat.)
41. Question of possession cannot be referred to arbitration.—A reference to arbitration is not contemplated in proceedings under S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The section directs the Magistrate to receive evidence himself and on a consideration of such evidence to decide the question of a actual possession. If however, the parties have referred the dispute to arbitration and the award of the arbitrators has been accepted by both, the Magistrate would have ground for proceeding under sub section (5) of S. 145.—25 C. N. 719.
42. ...

absence of right or title would be to defeat the purpose of the section and to require the Magistrate to enter into questions which by the section itself are expressly excluded from his consideration. A dispossession otherwise than in due course of law is wrongful. It is not necessary that actual force or violence should have been used to some person or persons before a dispossession is effected by a show of criminal force, sufficient to intimidate those in possession and to deter them from resistance, the latter are said to have been forcibly dispossessed—25 C. N. 601

43. Rent-decree as proof of possession.—It is doubtful whether a mere rent-decree obtained by a landlord will bind one who is not a party to it, so as to hold that possession was either determined by a Civil Court or was undisputed—23 Cr. 200 (Pat) · See I Pat. T. 44
44. Dispute between co-sharers.—Section 145 Cr. P. C. applies to a case where the dispute is between co-sharers each claiming to be in possession of the disputed land to the exclusion of the others Subsection (6) to S. 145 does not render that section inapplicable to a case in which the parties are jointly entitled to the land in question—2 L. 372 (20 C. N. 518 17 C. N. 944 Fd.) But see 23 Cr. 379 (Pat)
45. (Note—The mere fact that the revenue records show that the holding is joint is not sufficient to stop the enquiry contemplated by S. 145 Cr. P. C.)
46. Questions of title how far relevant.—In proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C. a Magistrate is entitled to look into the question of title only to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion on the question of possession. He has no power to decide the question of title or look into it apart from the question of possession—1 Pat. T. 387 · See 32 C. J. 54
47. Question of possession must be conclusively settled.—A dispute concerning possession of land, should be effectively and conclusively determined under S. 145 Cr. P. C.—1 Pat. T. 377.
48. Fresh disturbance after adjudication of possession under S. 145 Cr. P. C.—Where the lands in dispute and the parties are identical, it is the duty of the disregarded, and any number of proceedings may be initiated by any disappointed party leading to no result whatever, a position which would surely be intolerable.—24 Cr. 97 (C).

49. Where oral evidence of possession adduced by either party is equally balanced.—Where, a Magistrate finds that the evidence on one side and the evidence on the other side is equally balanced and he is unable to conclude from such evidence which party is in possession, two courses are left to him. If he finds such evidence reliable, he is entitled to seek corroboration in the presumption as to possession arising from title, and to adjudicate in favour of that party on whose side there is such presumption. If he finds such evidence unreliable he ought to proceed under S. 146 Cr. P. C.—24 Cr. 141 (C)

50. S. 145 contemplates continuous possession.—An enquiry under S. 145 Cr. P. C. must be directed to the decision of the absolute continuity of possession of either party of the subject-matter of dispute. The element of continuity of possession is an ingredient which is necessary, at any rate, in cases where interruption is not due to seasonal variations, in proceedings under S. 145 of the Cr. P. C. So a dispute between the owner of a hat and the stallholders who claim actual possession of stalls only once a week, does not come within the purview of the section—24 Cr. 175 (C)

XI. Joint Property.

51. Dispute between Joint owners.—The principle—Where the dispute between joint owners of land raised no question of possession but whether one of them was at liberty to make use of the land, against the will of the other, in such a manner as to cause annoyance, a Magistrate has no jurisdiction to interfere under S. 145 Cr. P. C. and award exclusive possession of a portion to one of them.—3 C. 573 1 C. L. 332 : 24 Cr. 100 (M).
52. Dispute regarding shares.—Neither S. 145 nor S. 146 of the Cr. P. C. has any application to a case in which the property in dispute is held jointly by the parties, and the matter of the dispute is as to the respective shares of the parties in the property—22 Cr. 350 (C) (11 C. N. 512 F.)
53. (Note—A Magistrate's jurisdiction under S. 145 Cr. P. C. is ousted, as soon as he finds that the case 885=32 C. 249 : 11 C. N. 512) A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to take proceedings under S. 145 of the Code when a party has a good and valid claim to joint possession—23 Cr. 379 (Pat)

54. Different plots in possession of different persons.—Proceedings are not without jurisdiction because in the course of them, it is found that the claim of some of the parties relate only to particular plots of land out of the entire area in question particularly where at the time of institution of the proceedings, the materials before the Magistrate, do not enable him to draw up a preliminary order describing the plots said to to be in possession of different persons with any attempt at accuracy.—24 Cr. 235 (C) (30 C. 155 (F.B.) Fd)

XII. Revision.

55. Order cannot be interfered with by District Magistrate—

The High Court will interfere

57. (a) when the Magistrate fails to decide which party was in possession on the date of preliminary order but still makes an order declaring one of the parties to be in possession.—23 Cr. 670 (M.). See 16 Cr. 239 (M) : 7 Cr. 450 (M) : 18 M 41.

58. (b) where a perverse finding is arrived at after getting rid of the documentary evidence by incorrectly describing it as relating to legal title only and by brushing aside oral evidence by saying merely, that it is unnecessary to enter into it.—24 Cr. 100 (M).
59. (c) where in the preliminary order, there is no finding regarding possession of the property in dispute, but merely general observations in regard to the ownership of the property.—24 Cr. 156 (M)
60. When High Court can interfere and when not.—Where the proceedings are really within the purview of S 145, the High Court cannot under S 435 interfere in revision. But it can interfere where the proceedings merely purport to be under the section and disclose an exercise of powers not conferred by it (7 B. R. 475). The principle has been generally recognised that where there is initial want of jurisdiction, proceedings though they may purport to be made under S. 145, are not really proceedings under that section and the High Court can interfere under S 439 Cr. P. C. But if proceedings are properly started, the High Court can interfere only under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, on the ground of serious irregularity amounting to improper exercise of jurisdiction or improper refusal to exercise it.—(24 Cr. 100 (M) : 24 Cr. 156 (M) : See 31 M 82 : 31 M. 318 34 M 138 : 26 M. 62. Information may include knowledge derived from different proceedings.—The word "information" in S. 145 does not refer to any particular way in which a Magistrate's attention should be drawn. It is wide enough to cover the knowledge of the Magistrate derived by reading the petition filed by the parties in another proceeding, which satisfies him that a breach of the peace is imminent.—1 Pat T. 369.
63. Costs.—There is nothing in law to preclude a Magistrate from making an order for costs after passing a decision under s 145, 146 or 147 Cr. P. C. but such order ought only to be made by the Magistrate who passed the decision, and within a reasonable time thereafter. Ordinarily an interval of three months is not a reasonable time (47 C. 974). In awarding costs in proceedings under S 145 Cr. P. C. a Magistrate is restricted to the amount awarded as pleader's fees (if any) and costs of witnesses, an order about costs passed arbitrarily is without jurisdiction and must be set aside (23 Cr. 508 (Pat.) : See 1 Pat T. 369 : 14 C. N. lxxiii : Cr. Rev. No 300 of 1922 (Pat))
64. (Note.—In 24 Cr. 80 (M) Ayling J. held that the order for costs which was passed some six weeks after the possessory order was not necessarily bad and the delay in passing the order did not necessarily affect the jurisdiction of the Magistrate.)
65. S. 145 does not exclude application of 107 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate has jurisdiction to put into operation the provisions of S. 107 Cr. P. C. although the apprehended breach of the peace may relate to a dispute about land. (23 Cr. 123 (Pat.) : 39 C. 150 (F.B.) : 23 Cr. 567 (N) : 5 N. 94). The general rule however is that proceedings under S 107 Cr. P. C. are justified only in a case of undisputed possession, where there is a dispute about possession over land, proceedings under S 145 should be substituted (23 Cr. 574 (Pat))
66. Succession (Property Protection) Act XIX of 1841.—has a larger scope than S. 145 Cr. P. C. and is a more appropriate remedy in cases involving disputes as to succession in large estates involving breaches of the peace.—23 Cr. 236 (Pat.)

was then in such possession of the subject of dispute, he may attach it until a competent Court has determined the rights of the parties thereto, or the person entitled to possession thereof.

Provided that the District Magistrate or the Magistrate who has attached the subject of dispute may withdraw the attachment at any time if he is satisfied that there is no longer any likelihood of a breach of the peace in regard to the subject of dispute.

(2) When the Magistrate attaches the subject of dispute, he may, if he thinks fit and if no receiver of the property, the subject of dispute, has been appointed by any Civil Court appoint a receiver thereof, who, subject to the control of the Magistrate, shall have all the powers of a receiver appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure.

Provided that, in the event of a receiver of the property, the subject of dispute, being subsequently appointed by any Civil Court, possession shall be made over to him by the receiver appointed by the Magistrate, who shall thereupon be discharged.

Changes introduced.

- (1) "We have introduced a new clause (the proviso to sub-sec (1)) which, by an amendment of S. 146, will enable a District Magistrate to withdraw the attachment of property at any time when he is the disputed property under attachment, until a competent Court has determined the rights of the parties thereto."

- (2) The proviso to sub sec (2) has been introduced "to meet the case of an overlapping appointment of a receiver by the Civil Court" (Select Committee of 1916) that this proviso is an useful addition to the existing law will be apparent on perusing the cases reported in 7 Bur. T. 292, 14 C. N. xc1, 17 M. T. 392 : 20 M. T. 247 (See S. 146 (43)).

Notes.

- 1 Application of the section.—An order under S 146 Cr P C can only be passed when the Magistrate, upon a consideration of the evidence, is unable to come to a definite finding as to the possession of either party. In order to show that he was unable to decide the question of possession, he ought to discuss the evidence and to give reasons for his inability.—2 Pat T 16 : 2 Pat. T. 168. 23 Cr 277 (Pat) : 23 Cr. 684 (O) See 34 C 840. 11 A J 586 : See 24 Cr. 64 (M.). 49 C 544
2. The section does not apply to public paths.—Where in a proceeding under S. 145 Cr P C the land in dispute is a public path, and the Magistrate finds that neither party is in possession, he has no jurisdiction to attach the land under S. 146 Cr P. C—22 Cr 464 (C)
3. Possession to be given on the happening of certain contingency.—An order declaring a certain person to be in possession of the property in dispute on the happening of a certain contingency cannot be passed under S. 146. Such an order can only be passed under S 145—2 Pat T 168.

4. Power to release property on disappearance of the likelihood of a breach of the peace.—When property is attached under S 146 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate has inherent power to release the property from dismissing the other party as his delinquent. In a case the judgment of a competent court is not a sine qua non before the property can be released.—1 L 451

Joint property.—Neither S. 145 nor S 146 Cr P C has any application to a case in which the property in dispute is held jointly by the parties, and the matter of the dispute is as to the respective shares of the parties in the property.—22 Cr. 350 (C)

147 (1) Whenever any District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is satisfied, from a police-report or other information, that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists regarding any alleged right of user of any land or water as explained in section 145, sub-section (2) (whether such right be claimed as an easement or otherwise), within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he may make an order in writing stating the grounds of his being so satisfied and requiring the parties concerned in such dispute to attend the Court in person or by pleader within a time to be fixed by such Magistrate, and to put in written statements of their respective claims, and shall thereafter inquire into the matter in the manner provided in section 145, and the provisions of that section shall, as far as may be, be applicable in the case of such inquiry.

(2) If it appears to such Magistrate that such right exists, he may make an order prohibiting any interference with the exercise of such right :

Provided that no such order shall be made where the right is exercisable at all times of the year, unless such right has been exercised within three months next before the institution of the inquiry, or where the right is exercisable only at particular seasons or on particular occasions, unless the right has been exercised during the last of such seasons or on the last of such occasions before such institution

(3) If it appears to such Magistrate that such right does not exist, he may make an order prohibiting any exercise of the alleged right.

(4) An order under this section shall be subject to any subsequent decision of a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction introduced amendments here to make it clear that the procedure is to be that laid down by S 145" (Sel Com 1922). The result is (1) the rulings in 2 C. N 670 and 27 M. J 537 in so far as they lay down that a formal proceeding is not necessary in a case under S 147, are now obsolete and 2 Weir 117 is confirmed.

Changes introduced.

The section has been largely recast. The most noticeable amendments are :—

(1) $\frac{1}{n} \sum_{j=1}^n x_j = \bar{x}$

(2) The scope of the words "land or water" is no longer a matter for speculation. The words "as explained in S 145" remove all doubts. The rubings in S 147 (8) - 37 C. 578 and 35 B. R 329 in so far as they lay down that the term "land" in S 147 does not necessarily include buildings have now been overruled.

(3) The nature of the orders which may be passed have been clearly laid down—(1) the Magistrate may either prohibit interference with the exercise of the alleged right or (2) he may prohibit the exercise of such right. [See 147 (53-56)]

Notes.

1. Distinction between ss. 145 and 147.—S. 145 Cr. P. C. does not apply to a dispute about an easement in respect of which action must be taken under section 147 Cr. P. C. —22 Cr. 768 (N)
2. Order cannot direct parties to appear before another Magistrate

3. Limited right of way.—Under S. 147, a Magistrate can pass an order which has the effect of giving to the successful party a right of way which is limited by the exclusion of vehicular traffic. A right of way may naturally be of different kinds. One can well imagine rights of way which are confined to pedestrian traffic or one from which traffic of a particular kind is excluded.—2 Pat. T. 681.

4. Findings necessary for a valid order.—A Magistrate is not competent to pass an order under S. 147 of Cr. P. C. without coming to a clear finding under the proviso to that section, that the party in whose favour the order is made exercised the right in dispute either within three months next before the institution of the enquiry, or during the last season or occasion before its institution if the right is exercisable at particular season or occasions.—2 Pat. T. 364.

(2) The report of the person so deputed may be read as evidence in the case.

(3) When any costs have been incurred by any party to a proceeding under this Chapter, the Magistrate passing a decision under section 145, section 146 or section 147 may direct by whom such costs shall be paid, whether by such party or by any other party to the proceeding, and whether in whole or in part or proportion. Such costs may include any expenses incurred in respect of witnesses, and of pleaders' fees, which the Court may consider reasonable.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The amendments to S. 148 were merely made "to specify what costs may be awarded" "which the court may consider reasonable"—as an instance of the exercise of this discretion. See 9 C. N. 887 (148 (11)). "A Magistrate in awarding costs should hold an enquiry into expenditure actually incurred by the successful party. (17 Cr. 348 (Pat.) See S. 146 (12).

- (2) The omission of the words "All costs so directed to be paid may be recovered as if they were fines" precludes the levy of such costs by distress under S. 386 infra.

Notes.

1. Survey of disputed land—no local enquiry.—"I can not hold that the mere survey of the land after inquiry from all the parties as to what land was in dispute, amounted to a "local enquiry" within the meaning of S. 148 Cr. P. C. It is a mere ministerial act."—Adami J. 23 Cr. 152 (Pat.).

of the Magistrate by cross examining him. The danger is intensified by the Magistrate holding the local enquiry ex parte—1 Pat. T. 569

3. Costs.—See Note No. 63 under S. 145 supra.
4. Can the Magistrate refuse to realize costs?—S. 148 does not give the Magistrate discretion to refuse to recover the costs. The successful party is entitled to insist that steps should be taken to recover the amount of costs awarded and the Magistrate has no option to refuse to take steps. The party entitled to it may apply for recovery at any time within six years from the date on which costs have been awarded, and a Magistrate is not entitled to refuse to recover on account of delay in making the application—24 Cr. 126 (Pat.)

never be substituted for evidence in the case. The party against whom the result of the local inspection is used, is greatly prejudiced and is put to an irreparable disadvantage in not being able to remove the wrong impression from the mind

1. Admission into evidence of statement not amounting to F. I.—Where a statement made to a Police Officer does not amount to the first information contemplated by S. 154 Cr. P. C. is tendered as evidence in a criminal case, the proper course for the Magistrate is to take a statement from the police officer that that particular statement was made to him—22 Cr. 110 (C)
2. First Information by itself not sufficient to sustain conviction.—The first information report made by an accused person standing by itself, cannot sustain a conviction against the maker; and that, while it is a valuable corroborative evidence of the testimony of the person who makes it, it cannot support a conviction when the maker himself is an accused person and cannot, therefore be examined as a witness. But as an admission not amounting to confession, it is admissible in evidence against the accused person.—22 Cr. 694 (L.).

3. What is not First Information.—A statement made is not proved

157. (1) If, from information received or otherwise, an officer in charge of a police-station has reason to suspect the commission of an offence which he is empowered under section 156 to investigate, he shall forthwith send a report of the same to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of such offence upon a police-report, and shall proceed in person, or shall depute one of his subordinate officers not being below such rank as the Local Government may, by general or special order, prescribe in this behalf to proceed, to the spot to investigate the facts and circumstances of the case, and, if necessary, to take measures for the discovery and arrest of the offender :

Provided as follows :—

- (a) when any information as to the commission of any such offence is given against any person by name and the case is not of a serious nature, the officer in charge of a police-station need not proceed in person or depute a subordinate officer to make an investigation on the spot ;
- Where local investigation dispensed with.
- (b) if it appear to the officer in charge of a police-station that there is no sufficient ground for entering on an investigation, he shall not investigate the case.
- Where police-officer in charge sees no sufficient ground for investigation

(2) In each of the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of the proviso to sub-section (1), the officer in charge of the police-station shall state in his said report his reasons for not fully complying with the requirements of that sub-section and, in the case mentioned in clause (b), such officer shall also forthwith notify to the informant, if any, in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government, the fact that he will not investigate the case or cause it to be investigated.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The amendment as originally proposed by the Select Committee of 1916 was as follows : "not being below the rank of Sub Inspector" "We propose

Changes introduced.

A discretion is left to Government, by the words "or any police officer not below such rank as the Local Government may, by general or special order prescribe in this behalf, acting on the requisition of such officer," to extend the powers under this section to officers below the rank of sub-Inspector.—e g —Head constables.

signed by the person making it; nor shall any statement or any record thereof, whether in a police diary or otherwise, or any part of such statement or record, be used for any purpose (save as herein provided) at any inquiry or trial in respect of any offence under investigation at the time when such statement was made:

Provided that, when any witness is called for the prosecution in such inquiry or trial whose statement has been reduced into writing as aforesaid, the Court shall on the request of the accused refer to such writing and direct that the accused be furnished with a copy thereof, in order that a part of such statement, if duly proved, may be used to contradict such witness in the manner, provided by section 145 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. When any part of such statement is used, any part thereof may also be used in the re-examination of such witness, but for the purpose only of explaining any matter referred to in his cross-examination.

Provided further that, if the Court is of opinion that any part of any such statement is not relevant to the subject-matter of the inquiry or trial or that its disclosure to the accused is not essential in the interests of justice and is inexpedient in the public interests, it shall record such opinion (but not reasons therefor) and shall exclude such part from the copy of the statement furnished to the accused.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to any statement falling within the provisions of section 32, clause (1), of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

Changes introduced.

"It seems clear that all that the amendment of 1898 intended to effect was to make it clear that the accused had no right to call for or see the record of any statements taken down by the police under S 161, unless the court thought that in the interests of justice, he should be allowed to do so; It did not purport to deal with, and has left untouched the further question, whether or not a statement made by a witness under S 161, as apart from the written record of the statement, might be used by the prosecution for the purpose of corroborating one of their witnesses under S 157 of the Evidence Act, and this is at all events, one of the principal difficulties with which to have to deal now (Sel. Com. 1916)

The redraft of the section, we propose will make it clear that the statements taken down under S. 161 (and not merely the written records of such statements) are not to be used in any way or for any purpose except as allowed by the proviso. Having regard to the fact that the making of such statements is compulsory under S 161, and to the way in which and the circumstances under which they are usually recorded, we do not think that they are of a corroborative value, where the witness merely repeats the same statement in Court, and that they ought not therefore to be allowed to be used for the purposes of corroboration under S 157 of the Evidence Act. If the really material fact the prosecution is that a statement was made to the police, on a particular date, or at a particular place, this fact will of course still be proveable in the ordinary course, and it will be open to the Courts or to a Jury to make any proper deduction from this fact and the action which was taken on it. The amendment will also we think, make it down is called by the prosecution the previous statement of the witness on the point may be proved by him; if he is not called by the prosecution that unless the previous contradictory statement is proved in some way in accordance with law, it ought not to depreciate the witness' statement on oath. It will be observed that under one amendment if any part of the previous statement of the witness is used for the purposes of cross-examination by the accused, any other part of it may be used by the prosecution within the proper limits for re-examination. This is, we think, the only way in which the previous statement ought to be allowed to be used by the prosecution (Sel. Com. 1916). "We recognise the force of some of the criticisms directed against the section, but we do not think power should be given to contradict by means of police diaries a prosecution witness who has turned hostile, and still less should power be given in respect of a defence witness". (Joint Com. 1922).

Note.—It will be seen that the statement recorded under S. 162 may be used for the purposes of corroborating a witness. Its use for the purpose of contradiction is limited to the cases of witnesses for the prosecution only at the time of their cross-examination by the defence. It cannot be used to contradict a hostile prosecution witness. It can however be used to re-examine a prosecution witness.

Rulings rendered obsolete.—(1) The rulings in 19A 390 (F.B.), 32 B 111 (F.B.), 24 A 469 21 A 159: 15 A. 25: (194) A. N. 22: Rat. 503 11 C 639: 7 C. P. 22 are, in so far as they hold that statements under S. 162 may be proved to contradict a witness called for the defence, overruled. The Legislature has adopted the view taken in 13 O. C. 7: (1918) 3 U. B. 84.

(2) The leading cases 35 M. 397 (F.B.) and 35 M. 247 (F.B.) 36 C. 281 and 39 B. 58 and other rulings in so far as they lay down that S. 162 Cr. P. C. does not override the general provisions of the Evidence Act as to oral evidence of such statements to corroborate the evidence of a witness, must be considered superseded.—See S. 162 (1).

Copies.—The proviso, which gives the Court the power to exclude any part of the statement of which a copy is furnished to the accused, formed the subject of a heated debate.

Notes.

1. Stage of the case when Court should refer to police diary at accused's request.—The proviso to S. 162 (1) Cr. P. C. makes it obligatory on the Court to refer to the statement made to the Police by the witness who is being examined, when requested to do so by the accused, and it is only after such statement has been referred to, that the Court may exercise its discretion in the matter of giving a copy to the accused. It is while the evidence of Dying declarations

3. Proof of dying declarations. A dying declaration

2. Does S. 162 override the Evidence Act?—The section as amended by the Act of 1923, has been deliberately framed so as to exclude, any use of statements recorded under S. 161, except for the purpose of contradicting a prosecution witness and his re-examination on the points referred to in the cross-examination. In the circumstances, it can no longer be argued that the section does not override the provisions of S. 157 of the Evidence Act in respect of corroboration of the evidence

4. Signs made by a dying declarant.—In 7 A 285 (F.B.) Q. E. v. Abdullah the question arose as to whether signs made by a person, conscious but unable to speak, shortly before his death, by way of use of his death, so under what istices Oldfield, union that they were relevant as constituting "verbal statements" within the meaning of S. 32. Justice Mahmood held that the word "verbal" could not mean more than "by means of a word or words". But the signs amounted to "conduct" as used in S. 8 and were admissible under that section; the questions were admissible either under Expl. 2 of S. 8 or under S. 9. See also 2 P. R. 1886 : 9 P. R. 1900.

Rat. 935

164. (1) Any Presidency Magistrate, any Magistrate of the first class and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf Power to record statements and confession* by the Local Government may, if he is not a police officer record any statement or confession made to him in the course of an investigation under this Chapter or at any time afterwards before the commencement of the inquiry or trial.

(2) Such statements shall be recorded in such of the manners hereinafter prescribed for recording evidence as is, in his opinion, best fitted for the circumstances of the case. Such confessions shall be recorded and signed in the manner provided in section 364, and such statements or confessions shall then be forwarded to the Magistrate by whom the case is to be inquired into or tried.

(3) A Magistrate shall before recording any such confession explain to the person making it that he is not bound to make a confession and that if he does so it may be used as evidence against him and no Magistrate shall record any such confession unless, upon questioning the person making it, he has reason to believe that it was made voluntarily; and, when he records any confession, he shall make a memorandum at the foot of such record to the following effect:—

"I have explained to (name) that he is not bound to make a confession and that, if he does so, any confession he may make may be used as evidence against him and I believe that this confession was voluntarily made. It was taken in my presence and hearing, and was read over to the person making it and admitted by him to be correct, and it contains a full and true account of the statement made by him.

(Signed) A. B., Magistrate."

Explanation.—It is not necessary that the Magistrate receiving and recording a confession or statement should be a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The Legislature by confining the power of recording confessions to First Class Magistrates and second class Magistrates specially empowered in that behalf by the Local Government, has given effect to the Calcutta High Court Circular quoted at p. 286. "Where, at any place or station there are present more Magistrates than one, confessions should in general be recorded by the Magistrate specially selected for the purpose by the District Magistrate, or failing such selection by the Magistrate senior in rank and class. "We think that statements should not be recorded under this section by Third Class Magistrates at all or by Second Class Magistrates unless specially empowered" (Joint Com. 1922).

- (2) "We consider that a statutory obligation should be laid on a Magistrate acting under the section to warn an accused person about to make a confession that the same may be used against him, and we think that the certificate prescribed by sub-section (3) should record the fact that the warning has been given" (Joint Com. 1922). This view accords with Madras G. O. No. 2883 J. of 17-12-'87 and Calcutta H. Gen. L. No. 1 of 30-1-'17 and 15 Cr. 613 (O) M. H. (Appv.) xi and 10 C. 775 are now obsolete

Notes.

1. No distinction between statement made by accused and a confession.—Under S. 164 Cr. P. C., no distinction can be drawn between a statement made by an accused person and a confession made by him, and any statement made by him should be recorded by the Magistrate as provided by the section and if it is not recorded, the Magistrate's evidence regarding that statement is inadmissible.—25 C. N. 789.

Recording of Confessions

2. When a confession should not be recorded—Where the accused tells the Magistrate that he has been told to tell the truth by the saheb who has told him that on telling the truth he would be released,
3. Confession cannot be recorded by a Magistrate outside his district.—The jurisdiction and powers of a Magistrate are limited to the district in which meaning of S. 164 Cr. P. C.—19 A. J. 355.

4. Confession not properly recorded cannot be cured by S. 533 Cr. P. C.—"S. 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code makes it imperative for the Magistrate, before recording a confession made to him in the course of a Police investigation, to question the person making it as to whether it is made voluntarily. In the present case it appears that this was not done, and the question to be determined is, whether the failure to comply with the provisions of S. 164 in this respect renders the confession inadmissible. The omission to question the appellant before recording his confession as to whether he was making it voluntarily was a material omission which prejudiced him, and we are of opinion that the defect is a fatal one, not curable by S. 533, and that the confession must, therefore, be excluded.—2 L. 325; 3 L. B. 173; 3 L. B. 213 9 M. 224; 17 C. 862 (671); 2 C. N. 702 and 52 P. R. 1887 Fd.)
5. Duty to record memo of enquiry.—"We consider it to be most advisable that in all cases a Magistrate should record a memorandum of enquiry showing what steps he has taken to fully satisfy himself that an accused person is confessing unvoluntarily."—Chevis and Scott-Smith J.J. in 2 L. 129.

6. Confession not recorded in accordance with law.—Example.—The confession was recorded by the Magistrate as follows.—Q. (After due warning) Do you want to say anything? A.—I want to say what is true. I won't make false statement Q.—What do you want to say? Then follows the main confession. In the end the Magistrate recorded the following certificate—"The confession has been recorded when the accused has been in Court-room for about two hours while other cases were heard. It is very straight-forward. I am convinced that it is voluntary." The Magistrate was examined as a witness at the trial and stated: "I am satisfied that confession was a voluntary one and I gave him the usual warning." Held that it was clear that this confession had not been recorded in accordance with law.—2 Pat. T. 129

7. ~~Confession not recorded in accordance with law.~~

8. Informal record of confession—effect of.—A confession to the Committing Magistrate is not a statement recorded under S. 164 Cr. P. C. but a statement recorded under S. 204 Cr. P. C. which is no reason why the confession of the accused should be rejected, merely on the ground of informality of procedure.—23 Cr. 617 (L.).

9. ~~Confession not recorded in accordance with law.~~ detection, is not bound to record in writing any admission made to him by persons who have taken part in a crime. In the absence of any written record in such circumstances, evidence may be given of a confession provided that it be not excluded by an express provision of law. It may be proved, and must be proved, if at all, like any other fact.—(1921) M. N. 779 (9 M. 224 (240) Fd.; 21 R. R. 1005 (Per Shah J., dissented from).

Meaning of confession

10. Meaning of Confession.—The word "Confession" means an admission of a criminal circumstance which suggests the inference that the person making the statement has committed the crime. Any statement made by a person which would suggest an inference as to his guilt may be a confession within the meaning of section 24 of the Indian Evidence Act—22 B R. 1247 (14 B. 260 (263) (F B.) and 6 B 34 (37) Fd).
11. What is the material part of a confession.—A confession is after all only evidence in so far as it bears upon the crime into which the Court is at the time inquiring, and circumstances corroborating the confessions upon immaterial points are in themselves equally immaterial—22 B. R. 1274

Retracted confessions

12. When a retracted confession should be acted on and when not—In cases of retracted confessions the Court should consider whether the story is or is not consistent with such evidence in the case as it believes. If the confession bears the appearance of truth and is not inconsistent with the true evidence on the record, the Judge, or Magistrate should convict on the confession, whether it is withdrawn or not.—((98) A. N. 69) where a confession was made before a Magistrate under circumstances not liable to suspicion, and to all appearances fulfilled the requirements of the law, the fact that it is retracted in the Sessions Court does not negative the presumption of the genuineness of the confession. ((90) A. N. 173. 19 M 482). But where it was found that the police had mis-conducted themselves in the search of the houses of the prisoners who confessed and the only evidence in the case were the confessions, it was held that the convictions could not be sustained. (2 C. L. 132) A person who was charged with murder made a confessional statement which was recorded under S. 164 Cr. P. C. but he subsequently, repudiated those statements at the Sessions. One of the accused, who became an approver, deposed against him and he was corroborated in certain most important particulars by some witnesses. Held that the accused was properly convicted.—(25 M. 143 : 22 B. R. 1274)

13. The Law as laid down in 3 Pat. T. 98.—The points settled by this Ruling which discusses the law on retracted confessions may be summarised as follows:
- (1) The fact that a confession has been retracted would not necessarily deprive the confession of its voluntary character.—20 Cr 562 (Pat) : 20 Cr 721 (Pat.)
 - (2) The credibility of such confession in each case is a matter for the Court to decide, according to the circumstances of each case.—20 A 133
 - (3) Although a confession which has been retracted must always be open to some suspicion (22 C. 164) it is sufficient for a conviction if the Court is satisfied that it was voluntary made and is true (6 W. R. 81 : 8 W. R. 40 : 12 W. R. 49 : 19 B 728 : 20 A 133 : 21 M. 83 : 23 B. 316 : 5 Pat. J. 430)
 - (4) A retracted confession which is the only evidence in the case connecting the accused with the offence may (without any corroborative evidence) form the basis of a conviction (2 Pat J. 80 : 29 A 434)

165. (1) Whenever an officer in charge of police-station, or a police-officer making an investigation has reasonable grounds for believing that any Search by police-officer. thing necessary for the purposes of an investigation into any offence which he is authorised to investigate may be found in any place within the limits of the police-station of which he is in charge, or to which he is attached, and that such thing cannot in his opinion be otherwise obtained without undue delay, such officer may, after recording in writing the grounds of his belief and specifying in such writing, so far as possible, the thing for which search is to be made, search, or cause search to be made, for such thing in any place within the limits of such station.

(2) A police-officer proceeding under sub-section (1) shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person ;

(3) If he is unable to conduct the search in person, and there is no other person competent to make the search present at the time, he may after recording in writing his reasons for so doing require any officer subordinate to him to make the search, and he shall deliver to such subordinate officer an order in writing, specifying the place to be searched and, so far as possible, the thing for which search is to be made and such subordinate officer may thereupon search for such thing in such place.

(4) The provisions of this Code as to search-warrants and the general provisions as to searches contained in section 102 and section 103 shall so far as may be, apply to a search made under this section.

(5) Copies of any record made under sub-section (1) or sub-section (3) shall forthwith be sent to the nearest Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence and the owner or occupier of the place searched shall on application be furnished with a copy of the same by the Magistrate :

Provided that he shall pay for the same unless the Magistrate for some special reason thinks fit to furnish it free of cost.

Changes introduced.

- (1) S 165 as finally passed by the Legislature definitely enacts that the search should not be general one but it must be for articles clearly specified in writing. This accords with the rulings in 16 C N 1078 12 C N 1016 12 C N 973 41 C. 261 33 C. 304 15 C 109 35 M. J 127 13 A. J. 979 and S. 165 (5)

Note—The Legislature has refused to accept the suggestion of the Joint Committee of 1922, which was as follows : ‘ Suggestions have been made that S 165 as re-drafted by the Bill goes too far and that it should only permit a search to be made for something specified. We think the utility of the section would be largely impaired if effect were given to these suggestions; but we have provided a safeguard by requiring that an officer acting under subsection (1) or sub-section (3) shall record in writing his reasons for making a search or requiring a search to be made.”

- (2) All other amendments are intended to prevent as far as possible, arbitrary or irregular exercise of the power of search.

- (3) Copies of records made under sub section (1) or (3) are now made available to the owner or occupier of the place searched.

166 (1) An officer in charge of a police-station or a police-officer not being below the rank of sub-inspector making an investigation may require an officer in charge of another police-station, whether in the same or a different district, to cause a search to be made in any place, in any case in which the former officer might cause such search to be made, within the limits of his own station.

(2) Such officer, on being so required, shall proceed according to the provision of section 165, and shall forward the thing found, if any, to the officer at whose request the search was made.

(3) Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by requiring an officer in charge of another police-station to cause a search to be made under sub-section (1) might result in evidence of the commission of an offence being concealed or destroyed, it shall be lawful for an officer in charge of a police-station or a police-officer making an investigation under this Chapter to search, or cause to be searched, any place in the limits of another police-station, in accordance with the provisions of section 165, as if such place were within the limits of his own station.

(4) Any officer conducting a search sub-section (3) shall forthwith send notice of the search to the office in charge of the police-station within the limits of which such place is situate, and shall also send with such notice a copy of the list(if any) prepared under section 103, and shall send also to the nearest Magistrate empowered to recognize of the offence, copies of the records referred to in section 165, sub-sections (1) and (3).

(5) The owner or occupier of the place searched shall, on application, be furnished with a copy of any record sent to the Magistrate under sub-section (1) :

Provided that he shall pay for the same unless the Magistrate for some special reason thinks fit to furnish it free of cost.

Changes introduced.

(1) The addition of sub-clause (3) and (4) removes a deficiency in the provisions of this section. It provides for urgent cases in which, the time taken to move the officer of the police station concerned may result in the loss of all clues by enabling the offender to destroy the evidence in the case.

(2) Copies.—Copies of lists prepared under S. 106 ~~are~~ are now made available to the owner or occupier of the place searched.

167 (1) Whenever any person is arrested and detained in custody, and it appears that the investigation cannot be completed within the period of twenty-four hours fixed by section 61, and there are grounds for believing that the accusation or information is well-founded the officer in charge of the police-station or the police-officer making the investigation if he is not below the rank of sub-inspector shall forthwith transmit to the nearest Magistrate a copy of the entries in the diary prescribed relating to the case, and shall at the same time forward the accused to such Magistrate.

(2) The Magistrate to whom an accused person is forwarded under this section may, whether he has or has not jurisdiction to try the case, from time to time authorise the detention of the accused in such custody as such Magistrate thinks fit, for a term not exceeding fifteen days in the whole. If he has not jurisdiction to try the case or commit it for trial, and considers further detention unnecessary, he may order the accused to be forwarded to a Magistrate having such jurisdiction.

Provided that no Magistrate of the third class, and no Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government shall authorise detention in the custody of the police.

(3) A Magistrate authorizing under this section detention in the custody of the police shall record his reasons for so doing.

(4) If such order is given by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, he shall forward a copy of his order, with his reasons for making it, to the Magistrate to whom he is immediately subordinate.

Changes introduced.

(1) The drafting amendments introduced in subclause (1), make the subclause better suited for the purpose it is intended to serve. The omission of the words "under this chapter has the effect of making to section applicable to investigation in general." In S. 167 which confers the power to ask for a remand. We would confine the operation to investigating officers not below the rank of Sub-Inspector. We consider the Bill does not go far enough in the restriction of the Magistrates who should be authorised to remand to police custody. We would confine the power to first class Magistrates and second class Magistrates." (Joint Com. 1922). This will prevent an unscrupulous police-officer from obtaining remands from experienced Magistrates, in order to put pressure on the so-called suspect for ulterior purposes, and may also prevent him from venting his spleen on persons who have incurred his displeasure.

169. If, upon an investigation under this Chapter, it appears to the officer in charge of the police-station or to the police-officer making the investigation that there is not sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify the forwarding of the accused to a Magistrate, such officer shall, if such person is in custody, release him on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as such officer may direct, to appear, if and when so required, before a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police-report and to try the accused or commit him for trial.

Changes introduced.

The amendment is purely consequential and is necessary in view of the amendments introduced in ss. 157 and 161.

S. 172.

Notes.

1. Object of maintaining police diary.—The Police Diary maintained under S. 172 of the Cr. P. C., cannot be used by any Court as substantial evidence, but is intended to be used only for the purpose of assisting the Court in the appreciation of the evidence, and to clear up doubtful points arising in the course of the conduct of the case. It cannot be used to corroborate the evidence of the Police officer who recorded entries in it, although it may be used to contradict him—2 Pat. T. 223 (41C. 876 (P. C.) . 19 A 390 (F.B.) : 23 Cr. 231 (L.).

173 (1) Every investigation under this Chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay, and as soon as it is completed, the officer in charge of the police-station shall—

Report of police-officer

(a) forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police-report a report, in the form prescribed by the Local Government, setting forth the names of the parties, the nature of the information and the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case and stating whether the accused (if arrested) has been forwarded in custody, or has been released on his bond, if so, whether with or without sureties, and

(b) communicate, in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government, the action taken by him to the person, if any, by whom the information relating to the commission of the offence was first given.

(2) Where a superior officer of police has been appointed under section 158, the report shall, in any cases in which the Local Government by general or special order so directs, be submitted through that officer, and he may, pending the orders of the Magistrate, direct the officer in charge of the police-station to make further investigation.

(3) Whenever it appears from a report forwarded under this section that the accused has been released on his bond, the Magistrate shall make such order for the discharge of such bond or otherwise as he thinks fit.

(4) A copy of any report forwarded under this section shall on application be furnished to the accused before the commencement of the inquiry or trial;

Provided that the same shall be paid for unless the Magistrate for some special reason thinks fit to furnish it free of cost.

Changes introduced.

The most noticeable changes introduced into the section are:—

- (1) The officer-in-charge will in future communicate to the informant the action taken by him.

(2) Copies of the final report are to be furnished to the accused on application before the commencement of the enquiry or trial.

Ruling rendered obsolete.—20 M. 189 (S. 173 (3)).

- 174 (1) The officer in charge of a police-station or some other police-officer specially empowered by the Local Government in that behalf, on receiving information that a person—
- Police to inquire and report on suicide, etc.
- (a) has committed suicide, or
 - (b) has been killed by another, or by an animal, or by machinery, or by an accident, or
 - (c) has died under circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person has committed an offence, shall immediately give intimation thereof to the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests, and, unless otherwise directed by any rule prescribed by the Local Government, or by any general or special order of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate, shall proceed to the place, where the body of such deceased person is, and there, in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make an investigation, and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds, fractures, bruises and other marks of injury as may be found on the body, and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument (if any), such marks appear to have been inflicted

(2) The report shall be signed by such police-officer and other persons, or by so many of them as concur therein, and shall be forthwith forwarded to the District Magistrate or the Sub-divisional Magistrate

(3) When there is any doubt regarding the cause of death, or when for any other reason the police-officer considers it expedient so to do, he shall, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, forward the body, with a view to its being examined, to the nearest Civil Surgeon, or other qualified medical man appointed in this behalf by the Local Government, if the state of the weather and the distance admit of its being so forwarded without risk of such putrefaction on the road as would render such examination useless.

(4) In the Presidencies of Fort St. George and Bombay, investigations under this section may be made by the head of the village, who shall then report the result to the nearest Magistrate authorized to hold inquests.

(5) The following Magistrates are empowered to hold inquests, namely, any District Magistrate, Sub-Divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class and any Magistrate especially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government or the District Magistrate.

Changes introduced.

The power to hold inquests are now extended to all First Class Magistrates as such.

Notes.

1. False statements at the inquest—A person is only bound to answer questions truly if he has been summoned in writing to attend before the Police officer in a proceeding held under S. 174 Cr. P. C. It may seem anomalous that a man who comes forward without being summoned and volunteers information at a police enquiry under S. 174, should not be bound to give true answers to questions, but such are the plain words of S 175 read with S 161. Therefore false statements made in the latter circumstances cannot form the basis of a conviction for perjury under S. 191 I. P. C.—23 Cr. 82 (L.)

S. 177.

Notes.

The ordinary law.—The ordinary rule as to jurisdiction is that it is the area within which the offence is committed and not the place where the offender may be found that determines the Court which has jurisdiction to try the offence—41 M. J. 441.

S. 179.

Notes.

1. Cheating committed at A and loss caused at B.—Loss is not a necessary element of the offence of cheating. There must be an intention to cause wrongful loss or wrongful gain but it is not essential that loss should be caused. In the present case the allegation in the complaint is that deceit, inducement and delivery all took place at Delhi. The inducement is alleged to have been dishonest, but it would not be necessary in order to establish the offence of cheating to prove that the dishonest intention matured into actual loss. Therefore, loss at Karnal would not render S. 179 applicable—23 Cr. 447 (L.)

Criminal Breach of Trust—Jurisdiction how to be determined.—It frequently happens that the misappropriation takes place not at the place where the money has to be paid or accounted for, but where it has been collected. The question in such cases is, —Can the case be enquired into or tried by the Court within whose jurisdiction the money was to have been paid or accounted for ? There he was bound to do, to his employers at Cawnpore. It is not that the case comes within S. 17 Lower Bengal or the price of them, if he did so, was that a loss of the value of those goods came to his employers in Cawnpore. The matter can be enquired into at Cawnpore, and the Magistrate at Cawnpore has jurisdiction in the case.

is one of an offence alleged to have been committed by him under S. 403 I. P. C. The contention on his behalf is that if he committed any offence, it was committed in Lower Bengal and not within the Magistrate's jurisdiction at Cawnpore. Of course, I express no opinion whatever as to whether the applicant committed an offence at all. That matter has yet to be decided. If however, he parted with goods of his employers in Lower Bengal, and did not remit the price of these goods, as he dissenters from 44 C. 912. The Lahore High Court in a recent case 23 Cr. 743 (L) preferred to follow 7 P. R. 1910 and 23 P. R. 1916 which take a contrary view. It may now be safely asserted that the preponderance of judicial opinion is on the side of the leading case 19 A. 111.

Notes.

Scope of the section.—"I consider it incorrect to regard S. 182, Cr. P. C. as applicable only to cases where some place of trial cannot be laid down with absolute certainty. For example, the section applies to cases where the offence is a continuing one, so that if A steals a buffalo in District W and takes it through District X into District Y, he may be tried for theft in any of the three Districts, though it is beyond doubt that District W would be the proper place of trial."—Draie Broelman J. C. 23 Cr. 211 (X)

Notes.

Theft committed during Railway journey.—Where a theft is committed in a train during the course of a journey, the offence can, under the provisions of S. 183 Cr. P. C. be enquired into and tried by any Court having jurisdiction over any part of the territory through which the train passed in the course of that journey. Accused a Railway Guard, committed a theft in a train running from Delhi to Bhatinda. He was convicted by a Magistrate of the First Class exercising jurisdiction within the Ferozepur District. An appeal was preferred to the Sessions Judge and a doubt arose whether he was competent to hear the appeal. Held, that in as much as a portion of the line between Delhi and Bhatinda passed through the Ferozepur District, the Sessions Judge of Ferozepur had jurisdiction to hear the appeal.—24 Cr. 233 (L)

185. (1) Whenever a question arises as to which of two or more Courts subordinate to the same High Court ought to decide, in case of doubt, district Court ought to inquire into or try any offence, it shall be where inquiry or trial shall take place. decided by that High Court.

(2) When two or more Courts not subordinate to the same High Court have taken cognizance of the same offence, the High Court within the local limits of whose appellate criminal jurisdiction the proceedings were first commenced may direct the trial of such offender to be held in any Court subordinate to it, and if it so decides all other proceedings against such person in respect of such offence shall be discontinued. If such High Court, upon the matter having been brought to its notice, does not so decide, any other High Court within the local limits of whose appellate criminal jurisdiction such proceedings are pending may give a like direction, and upon its so doing all other such proceedings shall be discontinued.

Changes introduced.

The principal changes in this section are the following :—

- (1) The two cases—viz., (1) a case of doubt as to which of the two courts subordinate to the same High Court and (2) a case of doubt as to which of the two courts subordinate to two different High Courts has jurisdiction, are separately provided for
- (2) The deciding factor as to which High Court is to settle the question was formerly "where the offender is," the deciding factor now will be within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of which High Court, were the proceedings first commenced.

Obsolete rulings—The rulings in 3 L. B. 17 and 41 C. 303 are obsolete in so far as they lay down that the former is deciding factor.

- (3) In case, the High Court having jurisdiction does not decide, the other High Court is given jurisdiction to finally determine where the offender is to be tried

Liability of British subjects for offences committed out of British India

188. When a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty commits an offence at any place without and beyond the limits of British India, or when any British subject commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, or when a servant of the Queen (whether a British subject or not) commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, he may be dealt with in respect of such offence as if it had been committed at any place within British India at which he may be found.

Provided that notwithstanding anything in any of the preceding sections of this Chapter no charge as to any such offence shall be inquired into in British India unless the Political Agent, if there is one, for the territory in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, certifies that, in his opinion, the charge ought to be inquired into in British India; and, where there is no Political Agent, the sanction of the Local Government shall be required :

Provided also, that any proceedings taken against any person under this section which would be a bar to subsequent proceedings against such person for the same offence if such offence had been committed in British India shall be a bar to further proceedings against him under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879, in respect of the same offence in any territory beyond the limits of British India.

Changes introduced.

Meaning of "Native Indian subject of Her Majesty"—
The term "Native Indian subject of her Majesty" in S. 188 Cr. P. C. must be interpreted as "A person who was born in the Gackw Baroda State and was not shown to have been born outside that state, is not a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty, although both the father and the son have occasionally lived in British territory within the meaning of S. 188 Cr. P. C. But if he is a servant of the Queen because of his employment in the British Government, he is under S. S. 4 I. P. C. subject to punishment under the Indian Penal Code, for any offence committed "within the dominions of any state in alliance with the British Government." Magistrate is found to try State—16 B. 178.

190 (1) Except as hereinafter provided, any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, and any Cognizance of offences by Magistrates other Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf, may take cognizance of any offence—

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence ;

(b) upon a report in writing of such facts made by any police-officer.

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police-officer, or upon his own knowledge or suspicion, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Local Government, or the District Magistrate subject to the general or special orders of the Local Government, may empower any Magistrate to take cognizance under sub-section (1), clause (a) clause (b), of offences for which he may try or commit for trial.

(3) The Local Government may empower any Magistrate of the first or second class to take cognizance under sub-section (1), clause (c), of offences for which he may try or commit for trial

III. Miscellaneous

18. search. There was no allegation either in the petition or the affidavit that any offence had been committed. Held, that it was not competent for the Magistrate to proceed under S. 190 Cr. P. ings under S. 145 Cr. P. C. has power to transfer the same to any Magistrate subordinate to him for enquiry or trial.—23 Cr. 205 (A)

(2) Additional Sessions Judges and Assistant Sessions Judges shall try such cases only as the Local Government by general or special order may direct them to try, or, * * * as the Sessions Judge of the division, by general or special order, may make over to them for trial.

Changes introduced.

- (1) By deleting the words “or in the case of Assistant Sessions Judges,” the Legislature has made the subordination of the Additional Sessions Judges to

195. (I) No Court shall take cognizance—

- (a) of any offence punishable under sections 172 to 188 of the Indian Penal Code, except Prosecution for contempt of lawful authority on the complaint in writing of the public servant concerned, or of some other public servant to whom he is subordinate ;
- (b) of any offence punishable under any of the following sections of the same Code, namely, sections 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211 and 228, when such offence is alleged to have been committed in, or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court, except on the complaint in writing of such Court of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate, or

(c) of any offence described in section 463 or punishable under section 471, section 475 or

Prosecution for certain offences relating to section 476 of the same Code, when documents given in evidence. such offence is alleged to have been committed by a party to any proceeding in any Court in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in such proceeding, except on the complaint in writing of such Court, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

(2) In clauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) the term "Court" includes a Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court, but does not include a Registrar or Sub-Registrar under the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

(3) For the purposes of this section, a Court shall be deemed to be subordinate to the Court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the appealable decrees or sentences of such former Court, or, in the case of a Civil Court from whose decrees no appeal ordinarily lies, to the principal Court having ordinary original civil jurisdiction within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such Civil Court is situate :

Provided that—

(a) where appeals lie to more than one Court, the Appellate Court of inferior jurisdiction shall be the Court to which such Court shall be deemed to be subordinate ; and

(b) where appeals lie to a Civil and also to a Revenue Court, such Court shall be deemed to be subordinate to the Civil or Revenue Court according to the nature of the case or proceeding in connection with which the offence is alleged to have been committed.

(4) The provisions of sub-section (1), with reference to the offences named therein, apply also to [Criminal conspiracies to commit such offences and to] the abetment of such offences, and attempts to commit them.

(5) Where a complaint has been made under sub-section (1), clause (a), by a public servant, any authority to which such public servant is subordinate may order the withdrawal of the complaint and, if it does so, it shall forward a copy of such order to the Court and, upon receipt thereof by the Court, no further proceedings shall be taken on the complaint.

Changes introduced.

(1) In S 195 the changes introduced are based on a question of principle. The Legislature has now definitely decided not to permit private litigants possible to remedy the evils which are connected with this section, so long as private individuals are allowed to prosecute for offences connected with the administration of justice. In our opinion the only effective way of dealing with this Section is to allow prosecutions to be launched only by the Court, or in exceptional cases by the Local Governments, who will no doubt before long be represented in such matters in many provinces by a Director of Public Prosecutions.

• • • • • "We see no reasons why either the Court or the Local Government in such cases where it is of opinion that the interests of justice require that an enquiry should be made into any offence of this nature, should not file a complaint exactly in the same way as a private individual would do in other cases, and our proposals in connection with this section and the enlargement of S. 476 involve the adoption of this principle. In our view, S. 193 should bar the cognizance by any Court of offences of this nature except upon such complaint, while the procedure to be followed when either the Court or the Local Government desires to prosecute should be prescribed by S. 476.

is frequently utilised for the various purposes of blackmail. In the case of a complaint by a court or the Local Government, we do not think that it will be necessary to prescribe any limit of time.

"It will also in our opinion, be a distinct advantage to get rid altogether of the term "sanction" in connection with these prosecutions, a result which will be affected by the amendments we propose" (Sel. Com 1916) "We approve generally the amendment of S. 193 proposed by the Bill, but in subclauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) instead of providing for a complaint by the Local Government, or some officer duly authorised in this behalf, we prefer to have a complaint made by order of, or under authority from the Local Government as in S. 193 (Joint Com 1922).

The changes analysed.

- (1) It will be seen that sub sections (4) and (5) and (6) of which no necessity now exists, owing to the repeal of the provisions relating to the power to grant sanctions to litigants and private parties, have been omitted altogether.
- (2) Sub-section (7) has become subsection (3) of the section as amended. The subsection has been re-drafted bringing out the rule of subordination of Courts in bolder relief.

- (5) Provision has been made for withdrawal of complaints made by public servants under sub S. (1) (a).
- (6) It will thus be seen, that the granting or revocation of sanctions have been done away with. A prosecution for offences against public justice or for contempt of lawful authority of public servants can only be had on the direct complaint of the Court or public servant concerned, or the Court or officer to which such Court or public servant is subordinate. In the case of contempt of authority, the litigant parties are naturally not allowed to interfere in any way. In the case of offences against public justice as provided for by sub-sections

(b) and (c), the litigant parties are permitted, under sub sec. (1) of S. 476 infra, to make an application praying for the intervention of the Court. The Court, may at its option, make a direct complaint to any Magistrate of the First Class having jurisdiction, but may not permit any outsider to make a complaint on its behalf—it will thus be seen that ss. 193 and 476 are complementary, the latter laying down the procedure to be followed in making complaints of the nature specified in S. 193.

- (7) Deleted sub-sections (4), (5) and (6) have been remodelled and split up into two new sections 476A and 476B. Under sub S. 476A, the superior Court of appeal may complain in forma pauperis. Where

S. 476(1) by the litigant party, an appeal may either make the complaint so refused or direct the Subordinate Court to withdraw the complaint it has made.

6. Munsiff subordinate to senior Subordinate Judge in the Punjab.—For the purposes of S. 195 Cr. P. C. a Munsiff is subordinate only to the Senior Subordinate Judge and not to the District Judge. The latter has therefore no jurisdiction to grant sanction for a prosecution for offences committed in the Court of a Munsiff.—23 Cr. 723 (L) (2 L 57 Fd.) ; See however 16 P. R. 1898 : 122 P. L. 1920
7. Single Judge of Presidency Small Cause Court not Subordinate to Full Bench.—The Full Court of the Presidency Small cause Court in Bombay has no appellate powers. S. 38 of the Act confers revisional jurisdiction only. In the circumstances, a single Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court is not subordinate to the Full Court for the purposes of S. 195 Cr. P. C.—34 B. 316.
8. Subordinate Judge.—An appeal from the subordinate Judge ordinarily lies to the District Court within the meaning of S. 195, therefore the former Court is subordinate to the latter.—7 M. 314
9. Police Officer.—A Magistrate is not subordinate to the official
10. Village Munsiff.—A village Munsiff is not subordinate to a Sub-Magistrate under S. 195 (a).—18 M. J. 534=4 M. T. 214.
- 10A. Is a Magistrate first class subordinate to the Additional Sessions Judge?—For the purposes of S. 195, every Court shall be deemed to be subordinate only to the Court to which appeals from the former Court ordinarily lie; clearly the First Class Magistrate was subordinate to the Sessions Court. An appeal would lie ordinarily to the Sessions Court. S. 400 especially provides that an appeal to a Court of Session or Sessions Judge shall be heard by the sessions Judge or by an Additional Sessions Judge. Therefore it is difficult to see how it can be said that an appeal would not ordinarily lie and could not be heard by the Additional Sessions Judge.—MacLeod C. J. in 44 B. 877.

II. Miscellaneous

11. Prosecution of pleaders.—The prosecution of a pleader defending an accused person, for abetment of giving false evidence, while the trial is pending and before the evidence of the witnesses who are said to have been instigated to give false evidence has been appreciated by the Court, is inadmissible. If such a prosecution is to be started it ought to be started after the principal proceeding, in relation to which the offence is said to have been committed, has terminated.—24 Cr. 171 (B).
- 11A. Note.—A Court will not be justified in ordering the prosecution of a pleader for presenting a document on behalf of his client, merely because the document is false. The mere fact that the suspicions of the pleader ought to have been aroused by the sight of the document is not prima facie evidence that he knew or had reason to believe the document to be forged.—22 B. 317.
12. Is the Court bound to postpone orders till decision of the Case 1.—There is no reason why a Court, when any of the offences noted in S. 195 Cr. P. C. is committed before it in a Civil suit, should delay taking action until the suit is disposed of, which disposal may not occur until months or years later.—23 Cr. 712 (M) (32 M. 49 (F.B.)) It has been held that in Civil Cases, stay of prosecution for perjury should be granted pending decision of appeal. (Rat. 587; 12 C. J. 270).
13. Prosecution only when chance of conviction.—A prosecution ought to be launched, only when the Court has satisfied itself that there are very favourable chances of obtaining a conviction.—23 Cr. 176 (B).
14. Prosecutions for perjury.—The existence of a decree which has not been set aside is no bar to a prosecution for perjury (23 Cr. 138 (C)). But in ordering prosecution for perjury, it should be considered whether the false statement relates to a material issue in the case: (15 C. N. 169) An application for prosecution for perjury, should show precisely the statements alleged to be false and the place where and the occasion on which the alleged false statements were made ("13) U.R. 166). As a rule, prosecution should not be ordered unless the statements were intentionally false (12 P. R. 1908). The false statement must be one which the Court is authorised or bound by law to receive in evidence before prosecution can be ordered. (35 A. 58). Where the trial Court and Appellate Court take different views of a piece of evidence, sanction to prosecute a witness for perjury in respect of that piece of evidence ought not to be granted (3 Pat. T. 60). Sanction to prosecute for giving false evidence is not justified where there is no documentary evidence and the question is one of oath against oath—19 A. J. 291.

15. Prosecution for false complaints.—There is nothing in the Code which compels a Magistrate in express terms to examine any or all witnesses whom the complainant wishes to adduce, before dismissing a complaint and granting sanction under S. 211 I. P. C. (12 B. R. 229). But where the complaint is dismissed on police report without taking any evidence complainant cannot be prosecuted under S. 211 I. P. C. (29 A. 587).
16. Meaning of "brought under its notice."—The words "brought under notice in the course of a judicial proceeding" are wide enough to cover an offence which may have been committed in another forum and on some previous occasion. (8 A. J. 392). But where the matter does not come up before the authority ordering prosecution, in the course of law, it cannot be said to have been brought under notice in the course of a judicial proceeding—(See 34 P. R. 1886).

17. District Judge acting under the District Magistrates Act acts as a Court within the meaning of S. 195—37 B. 365.
18. Execution proceedings.—Proceedings in execution of a decree are judicial proceedings—12 C. J. 618; 45 B. 668.
19. Statements made under S. 164 Cr. P. C.—A statement made by a Magistrate in the course of a 20. Refusal to prosecute no bar to suit for defamation.—The mere fact that the Court has refused to take any notice of a defamatory statement made in the course of a judicial proceeding is no bar to the institution of a prosecution for defamation—48 C. 388.

S. 196.

Notes.

1. Sanction must be specific in details.—The sanction should be specifically directed to the particular sections of chapter VI respect of which proceedings are to be taken, and the order or authority should be preceded by and be the result of a deliberate determination that proceedings shall be taken in respect of a particular section or particular sections of the Chapter and no other. It would be opposed to the true intent and of S. 196 Cr. P. C. for the Local Government by its order to give its legal or other advisers a roving power to determine under what sections, proceedings should be taken.—23 Cr. 203 (M) (37 C. 467 Fd)
2. Sanction signed on behalf of Chief Secretary is defective.—Where the sanction instead of being signed by the Chief Secretary on behalf of the Government was signed by "A. Cassells for Chief Secretary" and Mr. Cassells who was at the time the Deputy Secretary, did not claim for himself any official position, held, that in those circumstances it must be held, that there was no legal proof that the Local Government has ordered or authorised the prosecution. No presumption arose as to Mr. Cassells' capacity to sign the letter, and he could not certify the order on behalf of Mr. Stephen (Chief Secretary) whose own capacity was that of a delegate.—24 Cr. 111 (C).

Prosecution for certain classes of criminal conspiracy.

196A. No Court shall take cognizance of the offence of criminal conspiracy punishable under section 120B of the Indian Penal Code,

- (1) in a case where the object of the conspiracy is to commit either an illegal act other than an offence, or a legal act by illegal means, or an offence to which the provisions of Section 196 apply, unless upon complaint made by order or under authority from the Governor-General in Council, the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor-General in Council in this behalf, or
- (2) in a case where the object of the conspiracy is to commit any non-cognizable offence, or a cognizable offence not punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards unless the Local Government, or a Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government has, by order in writing, consented to the initiation of the proceedings.

Provided that where the criminal conspiracy is one to which the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 195 apply no such consent shall be necessary

Changes introduced.

- (1) In the proviso for the figure and brackets "(3)", the figure and brackets "(4)" have been substituted "We have introduced a new clause in the Bill making a consequential amendment in S. 196A which has apparently been overlooked."—(Joint Com. 1922)

Notes.

Scope of the section—S. 196A of the Code of Criminal Procedure only renders sanction necessary where the prosecution is for criminal conspiracy punishable under S. 120 B, I P. C. It does not alter the former law that a prosecutor for abetment by way of conspiracy punishable under S. 109, Penal Code, requires no sanction—49 C. 573.

195B In the case of any offence in respect of which the provisions of section 196 or section 196A apply, a District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate may, notwithstanding anything contained in those sections or in any other part of this Code, order a preliminary investigation by a police-officer not being below the rank of Inspector, in which case such police-officer shall have the powers referred to in section 155, sub-section (3).

Changes introduced.

The reason for introduction of the new section investigated by the police before complaints are made. Doubts have arisen as to whether investi-

to meet the difficulty which arises from the fact that cases under S. 196 and 196A cannot be properly

Com. 1922).

197. (1) When any person who is a Judge within the meaning of section 19 of the Indian Penal Code, or when any Magistrate, or when any public servant who is not removable from his office save by or with the sanction of a Local Government or some higher authority, is accused of any offence alleged to have been committed by him while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty, no Court shall take cognizance of such offence except with the previous sanction of the Local Government;

(2) Such Government may determine the person by whom, the manner in which, the offence or offences for which, the prosecution of such Judge, Magistrate, or public servant is to be conducted, and may specify the Court before which the trial is to be held.

Changes introduced

- (1) The following remarks of the Joint Committee of 1922 contain the raison-d'être of the substitution of cl. (1) by a new clause:—"It has been pointed out to us that difficulties with regard to section

197 have recently come to light. There are certain public servants who are only removable from office by the Secretary of State and it is unreasonable that they should obtain no protection under this section. Further, in view of S. 4 (2) of the Code, the word "Judge" has to be interpreted therefore proposed a re-draft of sub-sec. (1) of S. 197 to meet these difficulties. We have confined the operation of the section to public servants removable by a Local Government or some higher authority, and have provided that the sanction required for a prosecution will be the sanction of the authority who has power to remove." At the time however of emerging from the Legislative Council in its final form, the section as re-drafted underwent an abridgment. The words "Except with the previous sanction of the authority having power to order, or as the case may be, to sanction ment," substituted. It will thus be seen that sanction to prosecute is needed now only in the case of a Judge, Magistrate or public servant, removable from office by the Local Government, Government of India, or Secretary of State of such member of an offence under S. 191 v. 171 E., I. P. C.—23 Cr. 148 (M).

(3) The introduction of the word "Magistrate" in Sub-clause (2) is a consequential amendment.

4. Forest Ranger in C. P.—A Forest Ranger in the Central Provinces is not a public servant not removable from his office without the sanction of

5. Secretary of Municipal Committee.—Sanction is not necessary for the prosecution of the Secretary of a Municipal Committee for any wrong done

6. Police Patel.—A Police Patel, hereditary or other-prosecution.—Rat. 147.

7. Procedure.

(a) Need reasons be recorded?—An order of sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C. is more of the nature of an executive than a judicial order, and a Magistrate is not bound to record reasons for such an order, but the order should refer to some distinct offence and not be so vague as to make it obvious that the Magistrate had not come to a decision of his own that reasonable grounds existed for the prosecution.—24 Cr. 116 (M) (16 M. 463 R.) out the sanction required by S. 197. "A large number of authorities have been cited before us with reference to the point in question. To me it seems that the result of those authorities is that if a Judicial Officer or a public servant does anything in the exercise of the powers vested in him by law, and abuses such power, sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C. is necessary. If, on the other hand, he does something which the law does not empower him to do, though he is occupying for the time being the position of a Judge or public servant, sanction would not be necessary." (Sahraurday J.) in 25 C. N. 950.

2. Granting of sanction is an executive Act.—There is a wide distinction between the provisions of S. 197 and those of S. 195. The granting of sanction under S. 197 is clearly not a judicial but an executive act, and it is difficult to see how it can assume a different character if the sanction is granted by a Court. Courts exercise executive as well as judicial functions. An executive proceeding does not become a judicial proceeding merely because the court regards it as such. The High Court has therefore no authority to interfere with an order made by a subordinate Court granting or refusing

(b) Notice if necessary—No notice calling upon the accused to show cause is necessary before granting sanction under S. 197—ibid. (27 M. 54 Fd.)

Power of Additional District Magistrate to grant sanction.

—The power to grant sanction under S. 197 is one of the powers conferred in Madras on all District Magistrates by G. O. dated 24th Jan'y, 1922. It is one of the powers, therefore, which may be passed on by the Local Government under S. 10 (2) to the Additional District Magistrate. The powers which may be so passed on are not confined to those enumerated in Schedule III (V) of the Code. —24 Cr. 116 (M).

Provided that, where the person so aggrieved is a woman who, according to the customs and manners of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public, or where such person is under the age of eighteen years or is an idiot or lunatic, or is from sickness or infirmity unable to make a complaint, some other person may, with the leave of the Court, make a complaint on his or her behalf

Changes introduced.

(1) " We think the proviso to S 198, should include the case of a purdah woman, and the reference * * to a minor should be confined to persons under the age of 18 " (Sel Com 1916)

(2) Formerly a prosecution could be launched only by "a person aggrieved"—meaning thereby "a person injured" (1 Bur S. 617). In 32 C. 425 it was held that an imputation of unchastity to a Hindu lady affected the reputation of the person in whose house, or under whose charge, she was living at the time. (See S. 198 (4)) and e was therefore a person aggrieved within the meaning of this section. This view was not accepted in (92) A N 207 and 32 C 1060. The I. and C. 1 would be helpless.

Notes.

Official superior not a party aggrieved.—A complaint of an offence under §. 500 I P. C. made not by the persons aggrieved but by his official superior cannot be accepted inasmuch as such acceptance would defeat the object of S 198 Cr. P. C.—23 Cr. 641 (O) (26 M. 43 Fd.)

Provided that, where such husband is under the age of eighteen years, or is an idiot or lunatic, or is from sickness or infirmity unable to make a complaint, some other person may, with the leave of the Court, make a complaint on his behalf.

Changes introduced.

The proviso to S. 199 has been redrafted on lines similar to that of S. 198: "The Legislature has not provided for the protection of the lunatic, the paralytic or the invalid husband and the word

by another in a prosecution for adultery must, in view of the amendment, be regarded as obsolete. "We note that the case of the absent husband will, in view of the amendment proposed in the Bill be provided for twice Under S. 199 of the Code as it stands, any person who had care of the woman on behalf of the absent husband, at the time when the offence was committed, can make a complaint, whereas under the proviso any other person may with the leave of the Court make a complaint" (Joint Com. 1922).

Rulings rendered obsolete.—2 Weir 235 : 1 S. 72.

Notes.

1. Is oral examination part of the complaint?—The examination of the complainant by a Magistrate who has taken cognizance of the written complaint, cannot be regarded as a part of the complaint for the purposes of S. 199 Cr. P. C.—(1921) M. N. 514
2. Is omission to quote the Section and to write Specific details fatal?—(1) A complaint is not necessarily invalid, because there is no definite allegation that the accused took away the woman with a view to have illicit intercourse with her, when it contains allegations from which it may be legitimately inferred, that was what the complainant meant to say, particularly when the complainant is an uneducated person—Ibid.
- (2) "It would be to my mind in the last degree pedantic to say that a Court must not take cognizance of a husband's complaint of enticing away his wife for illicit intercourse, because he did not specify the Section of the Code which made the offence punishable"—Ayling J. in (21) M. N. 514 (27 M. 61 Diss.) See 25 A. 209 : 23 P. R. 1895
3. What the complaint must contain—All that the law requires is that there should be a complaint by the husband in respect of the facts constituting the offence. It cannot be said that there was no such complaint merely because the husband also alleged certain additional facts which he was unable to prove, and which, if proved, would have amounted to a graver offence—24 O. C. 232 (20 C. 483 Diss. : 25 A. 209 Fd.)
4. Right to complain subsists after dissolution of marriage—when.—Where the woman was abducted before she embraced the Sikh religion, and while she was still the wife of the complainant, held, it could not be said that the husband's grievance had come to an end, merely because the marriage stood dissolved. A man does not cease to be "the husband of the woman" within the meaning of S. 199, merely because the marriage tie has been dissolved. The dissolution of marriage does not take away the right to lodge a complaint, where the offence was committed prior to such dissolution—23 Cr. 462 (L).

7. Agent acting on behalf of husband is not competent to compound the case.—An agent prosecuting under the powers granted by S. 199 Cr. P. C. Provided as follows —

- (a) when the complaint is made in writing nothing herein contained shall be deemed to require a Magistrate to examine the complainant before transferring the case under section 192;
- (aa) when the complaint is made in writing, nothing herein contained shall be deemed to require examination of a complainant in any case in which the complaint has been made by a Court or by a public servant acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties.
- (b) where the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate, such examination may be on oath or not as the Magistrate in each case thinks fit, and need not be reduced to writing; but the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before the matter of the complaint is brought before him, require it to be reduced to writing,
- (c) when the case has been transferred under section 192 and the Magistrate so transferring it has already examined the complainant, the Magistrate to whom it is to be transferred shall not be bound to re-examine the complainant.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The words "Subject to the provisions of S. 476" have been omitted in view of the proviso ((aa) which provides for complaints by Courts and public servants. We have redrafted the new proviso of the words "and signed by a public servant acting or purporting to act" etc. "We would require the complaint by a public servant to be signed by him in order to attract the benefit of

of the complainant into writing. These cases were not followed in 9 B L 146. The case in 4 N. P. 88 however takes the same view as 7 B L 513. See however the proviso (a) to the Section.

4. Complaint by a person other than the one affected.—It is absurd to expect a Court to take any notice of a complaint of cheating except when it is put in by the person actually defrauded.—22 Cr. 672 (L)
5. Memorandum by Collector not a complaint.—A memorandum under the signature of the Collector cannot be accepted in the place of a complaint so as to justify the issue of a summons.—5 B IL (C.C.) 48.

(2) If any inquiry or investigation under this section is made by a person not being a Magistrate or a police-officer, such person shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on an officer in charge of a police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant.

(2A) Any Magistrate inquiring into a case under this section may, if he thinks fit, take evidence of witnesses on oath.

(3) This section applies also to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

Changes introduced.

- (1) "We have made another small amendment in S. 202 (1) to cover cases which have been transferred to a Magistrate under S. 192, as well as cases of which he has taken cognizance himself—(Sel Com 1916)
- (2) clause (a) of the proviso makes it a condition precedent to action under Sub-Sec. (1) to duly examine the complainant under S. 200 (This gives effect to a series of rulings.—2 P. R. 1912 : 13 C. 334 : 27 C. 921 : Rat 368, also 30 C. 923 : 9 C. N. 199 : 4 C. N. 305 : 3 C. N. 17 : 4 C. L. 134. [S. 202 (2) Note i])
- (3) The proviso has been so framed as to make it obligatory on Presidency Magistrates also to examine the complainant before proceeding under the section (S. 202(1)(a)) "We consider that Presidency Magistrates should be required to examine the complainant and to record his statement in cases where the Court intends to postpone issue of process and order an enquiry. (Joint Com 1922)

(4) The amendment to subclause (2) is one of drafting only.

(5) The new clause (2A) makes the enquiry, if it is held by a Magistrate a judicial proceeding within Cl. (m) S. 4. The following rulings therefore in this view must be held to be clearly distinguishable:—20 Cr 815 (P); 39 M. 750 (F.B.); 21 M.J. 795. See 4 C. N. 366 : 22 B. 936 : 23 M. 223 : 15 P. R. 1894. 32 A. 30. 7 A. J. 618 [See 202(3)]

Notes.

1. S. 202 is applicable only to complaints—There is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure empowering a Magistrate to hold what may be called a judicial or preliminary enquiry unless there is a complaint lodged before him under S. 190(1) (a) of the Code. S. 202 Cr. P. C. under which alone an inquiry can be made, relates exclusively to complaints. No such inquiry can be made, when cognizance is taken under clauses (b) and (c) of S. 190 Cr. P. C.—2 Pat T 220
2. Magistrate's option under S. 202 Cr. P. C.—Under S. 202 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a Magis-thereafter directing local investigation is irregular and the whole proceeding against the accused is vitiated, if a material portion of the irregular proceedings has a share in the formation of his judgment.—23 Cr. 279 (A).

3. After proceeding under S. 202 Magistrate cannot direct Police to submit charge-sheet.—Where a Magistrate directed an enquiry by the Police under S. 202 Cr. P. C. and the Police after making a thorough enquiry, reported that the case was false and purely a civil dispute for which a civil suit was already pending in Court, held, that in the circumstances the Magistrate could proceed either under S. 203 or 204, but he could not make any order directing the submission of charge sheet.—23 Cr. 403 (Pat.).

203. The Magistrate before whom a complaint is made or to whom it has been transferred, may dismiss the complaint, if, after considering the statement on oath (if any) of the complainant and the result of any investigation or inquiry under section 202, there is in his judgment no sufficient ground for proceeding. In such case he shall briefly record his reasons for so doing.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The words " after considering the statement on oath (if any) of the complainant and the result of any investigation or enquiry under S 202" make it incumbent on the Magistrate to consider the result of the enquiry under S. 202, along with the statement of the complainant on oath before he can finally dismiss the complaint--(See 203 (6 : 7 : 8 : 9)).

Notes.

1. Power to dismiss a complaint again after further enquiry.—The complainant moved the Sessions Judge, who directed a further inquiry into the case which had been dismissed under S. 203 Cr P. C.

by the Magistrate. The Magistrate after taking some evidence, again dismissed the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C. — Held, that he was competent to do so.—25 C. N. 312

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF INQUIRY INTO CASES TRIABLE BY THE COURT OF SESSION OR HIGH COURT.

206. (1) Any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, or any Magistrate (not being a Magistrate of the third class) empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, may commit any person for trial to the Court of Session or High Court for any offence triable by such Court.

(2) But, save as herein otherwise provided, no person triable by the Court of Session shall be committed for trial to the High Court.

Changes introduced.

Court. As a matter of practice, this affects the province of Madras only, where all Magistrates except the Teshulder were empowered.

Notes.

1. Two charges one of which only is cognizable by a court of session.—When an accused person is charged with two offences, one of which is triable only by a Court of Session, the Magistrate should adhere to the procedure provided in Chapter XVIII Cr. P. C. inter alia, giving the accused an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution.—22 Cr. 450 (C).
2. Procedure after conversion of warrant case to a Sessions Case.—Where, after hearing the evidence in a warrant case in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Cr. P. C. for the trial of such cases, the Magistrate is of opinion that a prima facie case is made out of an offence triable by a Court of the trial as a WARRANT CASE.—1912. 403.

S. 209.

Notes.

1. The leading case of In re Bai Parvati 35 B. 163.—Where a Magistrate finds that there are no sufficient grounds for committing the accused person for trial—either because there is no evidence whatever, or because the evidence appears to him to be totally unworthy of credit it is his duty under S. 209 to discharge the accused since the grounds, relied on for commitment would, in his opinion be insufficient.
2. The power to discharge when to be exercised and when not.—A Magistrate, has under S. 209 Cr. P. C.

3. (Note—The Lahore High Court in 23 Cr. 60 (L) has taken a similar view :—“Where in the course of an enquiry held by a Magistrate into a case triable by a Court of Session, he finds that the evidence tendered by the prosecution is totally unworthy of credit, it is his duty under S. 209 Cr. P. C. to discharge the accused.” The case follows 10 P. R. 1909 : 37 A. 353. The following cases should also be noted :—1 Pat. T. 153 : (1907) 9 B. R. 225 : (1882) 5 A. 161 which is followed in (1895) Rat. 746 and 4 W. Magistrate is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall frame a charge under his hand, declaring with what offence the accused is charged.

(2) As soon as such charge has been framed, it shall be read and explained to the accused, and a copy thereof shall, if he so requires, be given to him free of cost.

Changes introduced

The amendment is purely a matter of drafting “We would however propose a verbal amendment in

S. 210 (2) to meet a suggestion of the Bengal Government.”—(Sel. Com. 1916).

Notes.

1. Can a Magistrate discharge after drawing up charge with a view to commit?—The drawing up of a charge must always follow the determination of a Magistrate to commit a case to the Court of Session, which determination duly expressed, the Magistrate becomes functus officio as to that matter. Where a Magistrate after drawing up a charge and directing the commitment of the accused, took further evidence and then discharged them. Held, that the order of discharge was illegal—(1881) Rat. 161.
2. Discretion to commit must not be exercised arbitrarily.—The law gives a discretion to Magistrates empowered to commit cases to Sessions Court to decide whether a certain case calls for such committal, but the discretion being judicial, must be exercised with care and on some proper ground. If a Magistrate thinks that a case not exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions must be committed, he must state his grounds in the order of committal so as to enable the High Court to judge whether the committal is a sound exercise of discretionary power. But to add a charge of an offence exclusively triable by a Sessions Court for the mere purpose of committing it to that Court is an erroneous and improper exercise of that power.—11 B. R. 18

S. 211.

Notes.

Refusal to summon absent witnesses vitiates the trial.—The accused filed a list of his witnesses before the Committing Magistrate and they were summoned to attend the Sessions Court. Some of them failed however to attend. After the remaining defence witnesses had been examined and the

Changes introduced

The omission of the words "or by a Court of Session under S. 477" is consequential to the repeal of S. 477 and its expunction from the Code. The words "or section 214" were deleted by Act XII of 1923.

Notes.

(2) Such examination shall, if possible, be taken in the presence of the accused, and, where the Magistrate is not a Presidency Magistrate, a copy of the evidence of such witnesses shall be given to the accused free of cost.

Changes introduced.

OF THE CHARGE.

Form of Charges.

- Charge to state offence 221. (1) Every charge under this Code shall state the offence with which the accused is charged.
- Specific name of offence sufficient description. (2) If the law which creates the offence gives it any specific name, the offence may be described in the charge by that name only.
- How stated where offence has no specific name. (3) If the law which creates the offence does not give it any specific name, so much of the definition of the offence must be stated as to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.
- (4) The law and section of the law against which the offence is said to have been committed shall be mentioned in the charge
- (5) The fact that the charge is made is equivalent to a statement that every legal condition required by law to constitute the offence charged was fulfilled in the particular case.
- What implied in charge. (6) In the presidency-towns the charge shall be written in English; elsewhere it shall be written either in English or in the language of the Court.
- Language of charge (7) If the accused having been previously convicted of any offence, is liable, by reason of such previous conviction, to enhanced punishment, or to punishment of a different kind, for a subsequent offence, and it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which the Court may think fit to award for the subsequent offence, the fact, date and place of the previous conviction shall be stated in the charge. If such statement has been omitted, the Court may add it at any time before sentence is passed
- Previous conviction when to be set out.

Illustrations.

(a) A is charged with the murder of B: This is equivalent to a statement that A's act fell within the definition of murder given in sections 299 and 300 of the Indian Penal Code; that it did not fall within any of the General Exceptions of the same Code: and that it did not fall within any of the five Exceptions to section 300; or that, if it did fall within Exception I, one or other of the three provisos to that Exception applied to it.

(b) A is charged, under section 326 of the Indian Penal Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B by means of an instrument for shooting: This is equivalent to a statement that the case was not provided for by section 335 of the Indian Penal Code, and that the General Exceptions did not apply to it.

(c) A is accused of murder, cheating, theft, extortion, adultery, or criminal intimidation, or using a false property-mark: The charge, may state that A committed murder, or cheating, or theft, or extortion or adultery, or criminal intimidation, or that he used a false property-mark, without reference to the definitions of those crimes contained in the Indian Penal Code, but the sections under which the offence is punishable must, in each instance, be referred to in the charge.

(d) A is charged, under section 184 of the Indian Penal Code with intentionally obstructing a sale of property offered for sale by the lawful authority of a public servant; The charge should be in those words.

changes introduced

- (1) The words "or to punishment of a different kind" which were introduced into sub S (7) by the Select Committee of 1922. The amendment meets the case in Weir 267 in which it was laid down that liability to whipping as an additional punishment under S. 3 of Act VI of 1864 and the liability to enhanced punishment under S. 73 I. P. C. were distinct liabilities and either or both liabilities must be set out in the charge.

Notes.

1. Failure of a specific charge.—Where a person is charged with a specific offence, and it is found during the course of the trial that that charge is not made out, it is not within the Magistrate's competence to alter the charge where the accused would be taken by surprise and would not have

Previous conviction not known to the Magistrate at the time of conviction.—It has been held that where the previous convictions of the accused persons were not proved through the negligence of the prosecution and not on account of any neglect on the part of the Magistrate, the chief Court was not competent to exercise its power of revision and direct a new trial in order that the formal proof of the previous convictions of the

What the charge in cases of embezzlement by an agent should specify.—Where, the accused person is charged with embezzlement of a gross sum of money, no part of which it was his duty to spend on behalf of his principal, it is sufficient to charge him for criminal breach of trust for the gross sum received by him, without specifying any particular item of any particular date in respect of the constituent parts of the gross sum. The prosecution must be prepared to prove what amount the accused lawfully received and lawfully expended and what is the total sum and how that total sum is made up, which he has either unlawfully expended, or failed to account for in such a way as to leave no doubt that he has been engaged in criminal misappropriation.—42 A. 322.

the rule laid down in 25 M. 61 (P. C.) that disobedience to an express provision as to the mode of trial (S. 233) was more than a mere irregularity and S. 537 was inapplicable to the case—11 L. B. 73 (5 P. R. 1906 Fd.).

5. Joint trial of receivers of stolen property.—Where stolen property is recovered from the possession of several persons at different times, there should be a separate trial under S. 411 I. P. C. of each of such persons. The joint trial of such persons is illegal and the illegality is not curable by the application of S. 537 Cr. P. C.—10 A. J. 815 (See 2 Pat. T. 47 : 33 C. 1256).
6. Theft and dishonest retention.—The theft of certain articles by one person and the dishonest possession of them by another knowing them to be stolen form one transaction, even though the receipt is simultaneous with the theft. The joint trial of such persons, therefore, is not bad in law under the provisions of S. 239 Cr. P. C.—23 Cr. 414 (A) (6 B. R. 517 Fd.).

(Note—The Legislature has put the matter beyond doubt, by amending S. 239).

7. Cases of perjury.—The joint trial of several persons for perjury under S. 193 I. P. C. is illegal.—23 Cr. 439 (L). (39 P. R. 1888 : 6 M. 252 : 5 A. 17 Fd.).
8. Several dacoities committed on the same night.—Where the accused has committed three or four dacoities on the same night, the charge should allege each dacoity separately, and the omission to so charge is not a mere irregularity, even if the dacoities are so connected as to form only one transaction.—26 A. 195 : See 7 P. R. 1905 : 8 P. R. 1905.

(2) Offences are of the same kind when they are punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same section of the Indian Penal Code or of any special or local law.

Provided that, for the purpose of this section, an offence punishable under section 379 of the Indian Penal Code shall be deemed to be an offence of the same kind as an offence punishable under section 380 of Code, and that an offence punishable under any section of the Indian Penal Code, or of any special or local law, shall be deemed to be an offence of the same kind as an attempt to commit such offence, when such an attempt is an offence.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The words "whether in respect of the same person or not" affirm the view taken in a long current of decisions that S. 234 is not limited to cases where the offences have been committed against the same person. The rulings in 2 Weir 299 and 11 C. N. 1123 to the contrary are now therefore obsolete.
- (2) "Instead of the illustration proposed by this clause, which we do not like, we have inserted words in S. 234 (1) which at all events make it clear that an accused person may be charged as one trial with three offences of the same kind though committed against different persons." (See Com 1916)

- (3) "We have also added a proviso to S. 234 (2) which we think is required. S. 379 and 380 Indian Penal Code refer to theft and theft in a building—where such an attempt is penalised by law, is of the same kind as the actual offence" (Ibid).

Notes.

1. Charges under S. 408 and 477A.—Where a person is charged, under S. 408 I. P. Changes introduced.

The amendments in the section are consequential on the change introduced into Ss. 234 and 238 Cr. P. C.

2. No separate charge of abetment necessary for conviction.—Where two persons K and N were both charged with murder, but it was found that N committed the actual murder and he did so at the bidding of K whose actual presence at the scene of murder was not established, the Sessions Judge convicted N under S. 302 I. - (b) persons accused of an offence and persons accused of abetment, or of an attempt to commit such offence;
- (c) persons accused of more than one offence of the same kind within the meaning of section 234 committed by them jointly within the period of twelve months;
- (d) persons accused of different offences committed in the course of the same transaction;
- (e) persons accused of an offence which includes theft, extortion, or criminal misappropriation, and persons accused of receiving or retaining or assisting in the disposal or concealment of property possession of which is alleged to have been transferred by any such offence committed by the first-named persons, or of abetment of or attempting to commit any such last-named offence;
- (f) persons accused of offences under ss. 411 and 414 of the Indian Penal Code or either of those sections in respect of stolen property the possession of which has been transferred by one offence; and
- (g) persons accused of any offence under Chapter XII of the Indian Penal Code relating to counterfeit coin, and persons accused of any other offence under the said Chapter relating to the same coin, or of abetment of or attempting to commit any such offence; and the provisions contained in the former part of this Chapter shall, so far as may be, apply to all such charges.

Changes introduced.

The word "may" is substituted for "shall" and is intended to meet cases such as S. 213, in which it was held that it was not within the option of the Magistrate to refuse to accept a plea of guilty as not genuine. "We accept this amendment, which is, we notice, only reverting to the wording of the 1872 Code." (Sel. Com. 1916).

Provided that the Magistrate shall not be bound to hear any person as complainant in any case in which the complaint has been made by a Court.

(2) The Magistrate may, if he thinks, fit on the application of the complainant or accused issue a summons to any witness directing him to attend or to produce any document or other thing.

(3) The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses, incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial, be deposited in Court.

Changes introduced.

(1) The expression "if the Magistrate does not commit the accused etc." in Cl. (1) is consequential upon the discretion of given to Courts under S. 243 as amended, either to commit the accused on admission or not.

(2) The word "may" in cl. (2) was interpreted in certain decisions—e.g.,—15 W. R. 87 and 4 M. H. (appx) xxix as giving the Magistrate a discretion to refuse to re-summon absent witnesses. This view was challenged in 30 C. 121 and 6 C. N. 548.

"The difficulty intended to be dealt with by the clause (cl. (2)) rests upon the words "process to compel the attendance" as seems clear from the Calcutta decisions. We think that the only alteration really required is to substitute for the words referred to above the simpler expression "a summons to any witness directing him to attend etc." This we think, will make S. 90 clearly applicable which is, in our opinion, all that is required."—(Sel. Com. 1916).

2. Magistrate's discretion to limit the number of witnesses to be examined by the defence.—Even in a summons case, the parties have an undoubted right to examine their witnesses and their right can only be curtailed by the court, on the ground, that the examination of all the witnesses proposed to be examined, will delay and possibly defeat the ends of justice. This is clear from S. 244 (1) Cr. P. C.—2 Pat. T. 330.

(2) Where the Magistrate does not proceed in accordance with the provisions of S. 349 or S. 562, he shall, if he finds the accused guilty, pass sentence upon him according to law.

Changes introduced.

The words "where the Magistrate does not proceed in accordance with the provisions of S. 349" are intended to cover those cases which call for severer punishment than it is in the power of the trying Magistrate to inflict. The words "S. 562" constitute an innovation. S. 562 as now re-enacted is applicable to Sessions Cases.

Notes.

1. Is Examination of accused compulsory in summons cases?—The words "if he thinks fit" do not, in my opinion control or modify the provisions of S. 342. On a consideration of the provisions of this chapter (Chapter XX), I am unable to hold that Magistrates are relieved in the trial of summons cases from the obligation of questioning the accused generally, under S. 342, to enable him to explain the evidence against him, after the witnesses for the prosecution are examined—, (SAA

Notes.

Meaning of the words "finding not limited by complaint or summons."—"We do not think that S. 246 can be held to mean that the accused in a summons case, can be convicted of an offence alleged to have

Notes.

1. S. 403 in relation to S. 247.—S. 403 is imperative and bars a second trial of the accused when he was once acquitted of the same charge. The Code does not make any distinction between acquittals after trials and acquittals under Ss. 247, 345 and 494 of the Code.—2 Pat. T. 170
2. Absence of complainant on date of judgment.—In a summons case under S. 352 I. P. C. the defence witnesses were examined, and the case was closed for judgment to be delivered on the next day. On that day both the complainant and accused were present, but as the judgment was not ready the case was adjourned to the next day. On the latter day the complainant was absent and the Magistrate passed the following order: "The case was fixed for order today. Complainant absented himself but the accused was present. The accused is, therefore, acquitted under S. 247 Cr. P. C." Held, that the order acquitting the accused was erroneous. The case did not fall within the provisions of S. 247 Cr. P. C. because the hearing of the case had already been concluded and all that the Magistrate had to do was to deliver his judgment.—24 Cr. 205 (N) (46 C. 897 Fd.): Con 18 C. N. 584.

1. Effect of composition of an offence.—A petition of compromise was filed on the 16th June re certain compoundable offences. The Magistrate recorded the following order:—Case compromised. Petition owed for the presentation of the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal is presented, before the appeal has been decided and, where such order is made in a case which is not so subject to appeal, the compensation shall not be paid before the expiration of one month from the date of the order.

The section has been almost entirely recast. The most noticeable changes are —

(1) The omission of the words "as defined in this Code in cl (1) is the first noticeable change. The word complaint has been defined in S 4 (h) as "the allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate with a view to his taking action under this Code that some person, whether known or unknown has committed an offence." This omission is important and should make the section applicable to cases where an allegation is made without an express request to take action. (For such cases—See 20 C. 481 : 17 C N 980 16 Cr. 466 (M) : 1 B 175 : 14 B R 1166 20 A 183). The conflict of rulings with regard to cases of information or complaint to village Magistrates has been met by this amendment (S. 250 (5). The words "upon complaint or upon information given to a police officer or to a Magistrate" meet the case in 21 Cr 43 (S) in which the application of the section, so far as police-officers are concerned was held to be confined to the information given to and entered by them in the cognizable register under S. 154 Cr. P C

(2) As to the words "or may, if such person as aforesaid," they were added for the following reasons: Subsection (1) as redrafted does not provide for the case where the complainant is absent at the time judgment is delivered, and we think that power should be given in such a case to summon him to appear and show cause." (Joint Com. 1922.) For such a case see 7 S 123.

(3) The words "false and either frivolous or vexatious" appear for the following reason: "We do not think that the procedure of the S. 250 should be

(3) "We would increase the limit of compensation from Rs. 50 to Rs 100. We think that this increase is amply justified by present-day conditions" (Sel. Com. 1916). "We think that there is some anomaly in enabling a Magistrate who cannot impose a fine of more than Rs. 50 to award compensation upto Rs 100, and we have therefore proposed to reduce the amount of compensation, which third class Magistrates can award, to Rs 50. —(Joint Com. 1922).

(4) The sub-clause (2A) by enabling a Magistrate to order imprisonment in default in the very order

(5) Subsection (1) has been re-enacted as follows:—

(6) Sub sec. (4) has been redrafted for the following reason: "We have redrafted the proposed addition to sub sec. (4) to make the intention clearer (Joint Com. 1922). The amendment which we propose at the end of subsection (4) is to provide for cases in which though there cannot be an appeal, the acquittal or discharge of the person to whom compensation has been awarded, may be set aside in revision. The period of one month which we have allowed, should be ample to admit of application being made to the superior Court — (Sel. Com. 1916).

(7) As to the deletion of sub S (2) the Joint Committee of 1922 made the following observations: "In view of S 547, we do not see any necessity to provide in the new sub S (2-A) that compensation should be recoverable as if it were a fine."

Notes.

I. General Notes.

1. When and how the order of compensation is to be made.—It will be noticed that under S. 250 as it was framed in the Code of 1898, the language used in sub S (1) was "by his order of discharge or acquittal, direct the person etc. ... to pay to the accused etc." and in the section as re-enacted by the Amending Act of 1923, the phraseology is "by his order of discharge or acquittal, if the person upon whose complaint etc. ... call upon him forthwith to show cause why etc. There was no doubt a proviso in the Code of 1898 making it

3. Effect of withdrawal of complaint against some accused only.—The withdrawal of complaint against one or some of the accused does not amount

(1) If, in any case instituted upon complaint or upon information given to a police-officer or to a Magistrate, one or more persons is or are accused before a Magistrate of any offence triable by a Magistrate, and the Magistrate by whom the case is heard discharges or acquits all or any of the accused, and is of opinion that the accusation against them or any of them was false and either frivolous or vexatious, the Magistrate may, by his order of discharge or acquittal, if the person upon whose complaint or information the accusation was made is present, call upon him forthwith to show cause why he should not pay compensation to such accused or to each of such accused when there are more than one, or if such person is not present, direct the issue of a summons to him to appear and show cause as aforesaid.

(2) The Magistrate shall record and consider any cause which such complainant or informant may show, and if he is satisfied that the accusation was false and either frivolous or vexatious may, for reasons to be recorded, direct that compensation to such amount not exceeding one hundred rupees or, if the Magistrate is a Magistrate of the third class, not exceeding fifty rupees, as he may determine, be paid by such complainant or informant to the accused or to each or any of them.

(2A) The Magistrate may, by the order directing payment of the compensation under sub-section (2), further order that, in default of payment, the person ordered to pay such compensation shall suffer simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days.

(2B) When any person is imprisoned under sub-section (2A), the provisions of sections 68 and 69 of the Indian Penal Code shall, so far as may be, apply.

(2C) No person who has been directed to pay compensation under this section shall, by reason of such order, be exempted from any civil or criminal liability in respect of the complaint made or information given by him :

Provided that any amount paid to an accused person under this section shall be taken into account in awarding compensation to such person in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter.

(3) A complainant or informant who has been ordered under sub-section (2) by a Magistrate of the second or third class to pay compensation or has been so ordered by any other Magistrate to pay compensation exceeding fifty rupees may appeal from the order, in so far as the order relates to the payment of the compensation, as if such complainant or informant had been convicted on a trial by such Magistrate.

(4) Where an order for payment of compensation to an accused person is made in a case which is subject to appeal under sub-section (3), the compensation shall not be paid to him before the period allowed for the presentation of the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal is presented, before the appeal has been decided and, where such order is made in a case which is not so subject to appeal, the compensation shall not be paid before the expiration of one month from the date of the order.

Changes introduced

The section has been almost entirely recast. The most noticeable changes are:—

- (1) The omission of the words "as defined in this Code in cl (1)" is the first noticeable change. The word complaint has been defined in S. 4 (b) as "the allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate with a view to his taking action under this Code that some person, whether known or unknown has committed an offence." This omission is important and should make the section applicable to cases where an allegation is made without an express request to take action (For such cases—See 20 C. 481 : 17 C. The words "upon complaint or upon information given to a police officer or to a Magistrate" meet the case in 21 Cr. 49 (S) in which the application of the section, so far as police-officers are concerned was held to be confined to the information given to and entered by them in the cognizable register under S. 154 Cr. P. C.
- (2) As to the words "or may, if such person as aforesaid," they were added for the following reasons: Subsection (1) as redrafted does not provide for the case where the complainant is absent at the time judgment is delivered, and we think that power should be given in such a case to summon him to appear and show cause." (Joint Com. 1922.) For such a case see 7 S. 123.
- (3) The words "false and either frivolous or vexatious" appear for the following reason: "We do not think that the procedure of the S. 250 should be

- (3) "We would increase the limit of compensation from Rs. 50 to Rs. 100. We think that this increase is amply justified by present-day conditions" (Sel. Com. 1916). "We think that there is some anomaly in enabling a Magistrate who cannot impose a fine of more than Rs. 50 to award compensation upto Rs. 100, and we have therefore proposed to reduce the amount of compensation, which third class Magistrates can award, to Rs. 50.—(Joint Com. 1922).

- (4) The sub-clause (2A) by enabling a Magistrate to order imprisonment in default in the very order directing payment of compensation, has overruled all the rulings noted in 250 (73) laying down that no such order can be made without at first making an attempt to realise the amount by distress etc.

Rulings rendered obsolete:—All the rulings noted in in S. 250 (73).

- (6) Sub-sec. (4) has been redrafted for the following reason: "We have redrafted the proposed addition to sub-sec. (4) to make the intention clearer (Joint Com. 1922). The amendment which we propose at the end of subsection (4) is to provide for cases in which it would otherwise be necessary to (Sel. Com. 1916).

- (7) As to the deletion of sub S. (2) the Joint Committee of 1922 made the following observations: "In view of S. 517, we do not see any necessity to provide in the new sub S. (2 A) that compensation should be recoverable as if it were a fine."

Notes.

I. General Notes.

1. When and how the order of compensation is to be made.—It will be noticed that under S. 250 as it was framed in the Code of 1898, the language used in sub S. (1) was "by his order of discharge or acquittal, direct the person etc. to pay to the accused etc." and in the section as re-enacted by the Amending Act of 1923, the phraseology is "by his order of discharge or acquittal, if the person upon whose complaint etc., call upon him forthwith to show cause why etc." There was no doubt a proviso in the Code of 1898 making it incumbent on the Magistrate to record and consider any objection which the complainant or the informant might urge, but the three—the judgment, the showing cause and the order for compensation were meant to form part and parcel of one conglomerate whole, viz.—the final order in the trial (see 22 Cr. 527 (1A)). In fact he could not hold a separate filed. The injury has not healed yet. Complainant must again appear on the 30th June 1920, when I shall pass final order, etc." On the 30th the Magistrate directed summons to issue on the accused upon the ground that the complainant did not want to compromise. Held, that the order was illegal, as the Magistrate's order on the 16th recording that the case was compromised, amounted to an acceptance of the petition of the parties. He then became functus officio and ceased to have any jurisdiction over the matter. The compromise absolved not only the accused present but also the accused as the entire offence was compounded.

2. (Note—The last part of the ruling —is that the compromise absolved the absent accused also, is now longer good law in view of the amendment to sub-clause (b) of S. 345. See S. 345 infra.)
3. Effect of withdrawal of complaint against some accused only.—The withdrawal of complaint against one or some of the accused does not amount to a withdrawal against the others—9 O J 54 (Pg 43 A 483 and 41 M. 323 and dissenting from 1 Pat. T. 32 and 7 C. N. 176) to a Magistrate, one or more persons is or are accused before a Magistrate of any offence triable by a Magistrate, and the Magistrate by whom the case is heard discharges or acquits all or any of the accused, and is of opinion that the accusation against them or any of them was false and either frivolous or vexatious, the Magistrate may, by his order of discharge or acquittal, if the person upon whose complaint or information the accusation was made is present, call upon him forthwith to show cause why he should not pay compensation to such accused or to each of such accused when there are more than one, or if such person is not present, direct the issue of a summons to him to appear and show cause as aforesaid.

(2) The Magistrate shall record and consider any cause which such complainant or informant may show, and if he is satisfied that the accusation was false and either frivolous or vexatious may, for reasons to be recorded, direct that compensation to such amount not exceeding one hundred rupees or, if the Magistrate is a Magistrate of the third class, not exceeding fifty rupees, as he may determine, be paid by such complainant or informant to the accused or to each or any of them.

(2A) The Magistrate may, by the order directing payment of the compensation under sub-section (2), further order that, in default of payment, the person ordered to pay such compensation shall suffer simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days.

(2B) When any person is imprisoned under sub-section (2A), the provisions of sections 68 and 69 of the Indian Penal Code shall, so far as may be, apply.

(2C) No person who has been directed to pay compensation under this section shall, by reason of such order, be exempted from any civil or criminal liability in respect of the complaint made or information given by him :

Provided that any amount paid to an accused person under this section shall be taken into account in awarding compensation to such person in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter.

(3) A complainant or informant who has been ordered under sub-section (2) by a Magistrate of the second or third class to pay compensation or has been so ordered by any other Magistrate to pay compensation exceeding fifty rupees may appeal from the order, in so far as the order relates to the payment of the compensation, as if such complainant or informant had been convicted on a trial by such Magistrate.

(4) Where an order for payment of compensation to an accused person is made in a case which is subject to appeal under sub-section (3), the compensation shall not be paid to him before the period that public officer or departments should be exempted from the liability to make compensation for vexatious and frivolous complaints (2 Weir 317) where proceedings are instituted on the information of a public servant, and an officer subordinate to him gives evidence in a case, an order directing the latter to pay compensation to the accused is not proper.—(2 Weir 318)

16. Order under S. 250 Cr. P. C. no bar to prosecution under S. 211 I. P. C.—A charge may be at the same time frivolous and false. The award of compensation for a frivolous and vexatious complaint does not bar proceedings against the complainant under S. 211 I. P. C.—(1867) 2 Weir 311 : (1875) 2 Weir 311.

Provided that the Magistrate shall not be bound to hear any person as complainant in any case in which the complaint has been made by a Court

(2) The Magistrate shall ascertain, from the complainant or otherwise, the names of any persons likely to be acquainted with the facts of the case and to be able to give evidence for the prosecution, and shall summons to give evidence before himself such of them as he thinks necessary.

Changes introduced.

The amendments to the section are similar to the one introduced in S. 243 supra.

Meaning of "hearing the complainant."—The expression used in S. 252 is "hear the complainant". The taking of evidence is separately referred to.

Changes introduced.

(1) The amendment "at the commencement of the next hearing of the case, or if the Magistrate for reasons to be recorded in writing so thinks fit, forthwith" is intended to clear up an obscure point of law. There may be on the one hand, cases in which it is not giving an accused person reasonable opportunity, to ask him, immediately after the charge is framed, to cross-examine witnesses. (See (1911) 2 M. N. 192 · 16 A. 786 (M)—S 256(9)), and on the other hand, it may be necessary to forestall, in certain cases the obstructive tactics of the accused. (See 21 M. J. 283—S. 256 (28)). It may happen that upto the time of a it is suggested that the accused should have a right to postpone his decision as to cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses, till the commencement of the next hearing of the case. On the one hand it has been suggested that the provision is likely to be grossly abused for the purposes of the defence, and that the introduction of the words "if the Magistrate thinks fit" is an inadequate safeguard. We think that the amendment proposed by the clause is a reasonable compromise between these divergent views and we therefore propose no change. (Joint Com 1922).

(2) It is worthy of notice that it was a much debated point as to whether the word "shall" left any discretion in the Magistrate to allow the accused time to consider whether he would cross-examine any prosecution witness or not. The doubt is now removed and discretion is given in clear and explicit terms

The criticism of the amendment introduced by this clause goes to two extremes. On the one hand,

The procedure—accused entitled to recall prosecution witnesses in warrant-cases.—In summary trials under Chapter XXII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the procedure prescribed for warrant cases should be followed in warrant cases and in such a case, the accused is entitled to have process issued for compelling the attendance of the prosecution witnesses for cross examination.—22 Cr. 271 (C).

S. 263.

Notes.

1. Magistrate cannot destroy memorandum of evidence even in non-appealable cases.—Where a Magistrate in the trial of summons case, records a memorandum containing the substance of the examination of each witness, such memorandum becomes part of the record of the case, and the Magistrate has no authority to destroy it; the fact that a non-appealable sentence is passed upon the accused, is no justification for destroying the memorandum.—48 C. 280.
2. The record must contain sufficient materials to support the conviction.—The record in a summary last sentence was sufficient to condemn the whole judgment. A man could not be convicted on his appearance and manner of speech. An ugly stammering nervous man might be innocent while a good looking plausible man might be a scoundrel.—23 Cr. 161 (L)

The plea of the accused under clause (g) of S. 263 cannot possibly take the place of the examination of the accused, for the former naturally occurs at the initial stage of the case, and the latter after the termination of the prosecution evidence and before the accused is called on to enter into his defence"—Jwala Prasad J. in 3 Pat. Changes introduced.

- (1) The extensive amendments to this section are consequential upon the amendments introduced into chapter XXXIII by the Criminal Law Amendment Act XII of 1923. The whole chapter has been recast upon the basis of the recommendations made by the Committee appointed to consider the now famous Racial Distinctions Bill. The principle followed is apparently that a man is entitled to be tried by his peer

By the substitution of the words "in a trial before any High Court in the town which is the usual place of sitting of such High Court" for the term "in the presidency-towns," such provincial High Courts as the High Courts of Allahabad, Patna, Lahore and Rangoon, are placed on an equal footing with the three Presidency High Courts.

Notes.

Reasonable objection to selection of Assessors ought to be allowed.—There is no express provision for objecting to the selection of an assessor as in the case of jurors under S. 278 Cr. P. C. But there is no reason why an objection of presumed or actual partiality should not be allowed, particularly when it is urged at the time of the selection of the assessor. As observed by Jackson J. in 23 W. R. 33

New S. 284A is consequential upon the extensive amendments carried out in Chapter XXXIII infra (Procedure relating to trial of European British Subjects). The principle that a man should be tried by his peer is apparently followed.

Statement of the prisoner before committing Magistrate admitting previous conviction.—Where the statement of the accused as recorded by the committing Magistrate, contained an admission as to their previous conviction and the Session's Judge allowed the same to be read out to the assessors at the close of the prosecution evidence—Atli, that the portion relating to the previous conviction could be read under S. 287, only when the accused has been

Notes:

1. Statements admitted under S. 288 are "substantive evidence"—Statements made to the Committing Magistrate are not admissible merely for the limited purpose of contradicting a witness in the Court of Session as under S. 133 Evidence Act. S. 288 Cr. P. C. goes further and makes such statements "evidence in the case" i.e., substantive evidence of the facts therein deposed. (See 28 A. G. 31: 243 L. 414). But before such evidence is substituted under S. 288 Cr. P. C. it is necessary that there should be some reason why it should be preferred. That is a matter of prudence and not of law. (27 C. 295).—46 B. 97.

2. Attention of witness concerned must be drawn to the passages in question.—It is now settled law that statements should not be put in under S 288 Cr. P. C. without the attention of the witness being drawn to the portion of the statement which it is desired to use.—3 Pat T 398

3. Statements made before Monegar.—Statement of prosecution witness made and signed before the monegar cannot be used as substantive evidence of this witnesses against the accused, as it is not a statement recorded on oath in the presence of the accused by a Magistrate empowered to take down evidence. The only use of such a statement would be to corroborate or contradict statements made on oath at the trial under S. 155 of the Evidence Act.—42 M. J. 278 (26 M. 191 Fd.).

4. Statement should not be admitted without cross-examination by defence.—The Sessions Court has absolute discretion to allow the statement of witness made before the Committing Magistrate to be transferred to its own record under S 288 Cr. P. C. but it should not allow the statement to be read out to the witness before the defence has had an opportunity of cross-examining him.—3 L 144

S. 289.

Notes.

1. Duty of Judge, when he is of opinion that there is no evidence against the accused.—Under S. 289 (2), it is not sufficient for the Judge, merely to say to the Jury that the evidence is weak or has very little weight or it does not amount to anything. If it is his intention to invite the Jury to acquit, it is his duty to go further and say that there is no evidence against the accused and to direct the Jury to return a verdict of not guilty.—32 C. J. 89

(Note—In this case, the Jury on account of misdirection actually convicted the accused).

2. Examination of the accused at the Sessions Trial compulsory.—The words "if any" are used in S 289 of the Code, and in spite of these words the relaxation of the rule contained in S. 342 is not allowed in trials by Sessions Courts.—(9 B. R. 356: 9 B. R. 730: 17 B. R. 892: (1903) A N 1: 9 M. 224 (85) 2 Weir 405: 19 C. N. 1043: (1917) 3 U B. 18= 11 Bur T. 134: See also 41 C. 743: Cr. Ref. No 17 of 1919 (Pat.) 10 B. R. 201)
3. (Note—This point has been elaborately discussed by Juala Prasad J. in the case of Raghu Bhujij 5 Pat. J. 430. "S 289 in itself does not make any provision for the examination of the accused person. Its object is to simply lay down the stage at which "the accused shall be asked whether he means to adduce evidence" namely, after the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution and the examination, if any of the accused person which the Court in its discretion may hold under the first part of S. 342. This is with a view to enable the Court to apply the procedure laid down in subsequent clauses (2) (3) and (4) of S. 289, depending upon the answer of the accused that he does or does not mean to adduce evidence. The calling upon the accused to state "whether he means to adduce evidence" is different from and happens to be much earlier in point of time and stage than the calling upon him "to enter on his defence". The latter stage arises only under clause (4) when the Court considers that there is mined the accused person several times or has not examined him at all under the first part of S. 342. The examination if any, referred to in clause (1) of S. 289 is under this part of the S. 342, and it does not relieve the court from its duty of examining the accused, before he is called upon to enter upon his defence as defined in S. 290.")

4. Further Note—The opinion of Jackson and Ainslie JJ in 15 W. R. 16 to the contrary was given under the Codes of 1861 and 1869. The comparatively recent case of Khudiram Bose 9 C. J. 55 which also takes a directly opposite view, must be regarded as of doubtful authority in view of the observations of Sir Lawrence Jenkins C. J. in 19 C. N. 923 and of Beacheroff J in 19 C. N. 1043. The law as enunciated by Juala Prasad J is now the settled law. See the very recent case of Gangadhar Goala decided on March 14, 1921, by Tennon and Ghose JJ in 25 C. N. 609.

Prosecutor's right of reply.

- (b) with the permission of the Court, on a point of law, or
- (c) with the permission of the Court, when any document which does not need to be proved is produced by any accused person after he enters on his defence:

Provided that, in the case referred to in clause (c) the reply shall, unless the Court otherwise permits, be restricted to comment on the document so produced.

Changes introduced.

The amendments have settled the point that an accused person does not lose his right of reply by

- (1) proving a previous statement of a prosecution witness for the purpose of contradicting him during his cross examination, under S. 288,
- or (2) by proving any document which has already been placed on the record by the prosecution. This change is in accordance with the views expressed by Sanderson C. J. in 41 C. 426, Geidt J. in 31 C. 1030 and Beaman J. in 11 B. R. 177.

Notes.

1. Inadmissible confession should not be put to the Jury.—Where the confession made by the accused was made under inducement and was therefore inadmissible in evidence, it was held, that the Judge misdirected the Jury in placing it before them—45 B. 1086

2. How to charge the Jury with regard to the evidence.—To take the witnesses one by one in the order of their examination and to place their disconnected statements before the Jury is not, in general, very helpful. More assistance will be derived by the Jury from a careful collocation of the evidence as it bears on the several allegations of the respective parties.—25 C. N. 623

3. Abstruse points of law should not be put before the Jury.—To read the Jury, the exposition of the law of England re the use of military force to be found in paragraphs 100 to 103 of the 2nd Edition of Mayne's commentaries, could only serve to confuse the Jury and to distract their attention from the facts with which they have to deal—25 C. N. 623

4. Where there is no proper charge to the Jury.—In a Jury trial the record of the heads of the charge to the Jury began thus—"Matters of law laid down for the guidance of the Jury, the definition of hurt and grievous hurt and the applicability of the sections concerning right of private defence. Then followed a statement of the case for the prosecution and of the case for the defence. The charge then concluded: "You will have to consider whether the absurdities, contradictions and deposed to by the Police witness and brought on the record, but the Judge remarked in the margin of the evidence that this portion will not be placed by the Judge to refer to it in the actual charge to the Jury. The statement was inadmissible and the omission of the Judge to point out its inadmissibility in his charge was a misdirection in law which vitiated the trial.—3 Pat. T. 101; 3 Pat. T. 52

6. (2) Where a statement to the Police which was not the first information was proved as such, and was allowed to go as such to the Jury, and the Judge did not tell the Jury that it was not evidence at all, and that except in so far as its contents may have been brought out in evidence for purposes of corroboration or contradiction, they should discard it entirely from their minds, held, that there was misdirection which necessitated a retrial.—23 Cr. 406 (Pat.).

7. Mere reference to pleader's arguments not sufficient.—In dealing with the statement the discre-advanced for the defence. A mere reference to the arguments of the pleaders is insufficient.—34 C. J. 512

5. Omission to warn Jury with regard to inadmissible evidence.—(1) Where a statement in the nature of a confession made to the Police by the accused was

8. Omission to point out that the murdered man was suffering from disease.—The fact that the deceased was suffering from a disease which accelerated his death and also the fact that the injuries described in the medical evidence are in themselves not apparently sufficient to cause immediate death should have been pointed out to the jury. By omitting to do so, the Judge misdirected the jury and that misdirection has in effect caused a carriage of justice.—34 C. J. 515.

9. Warning the Jury against attaching too much importance to small discrepancies—"I am of opinion that in giving the warning to the Jury not to disbelieve a mass of otherwise consistent evidence, because in one or two minor and immaterial points the witness made different statements, the Judge Judge used a wise discretion."—Kemp J in Q. v. Bustee Khan, 1 W. R. 17.

noting the discrepancies and pointing out generally the way in which it either favourably or unfavourably affects the prisoner. It is irregular to comment merely on certain portion of the evidence, and to omit to point out what discrepancies and improbabilities are to be found in the evidence.—(2 Weir 384). It is not however necessary to go into the minutest details (40 C. 367). A Judge presiding at a trial by Jury must always be careful that he does not usurp the functions of the advocate, and that the evidence in the case is presented to the Jury in as dispassionate and impartial a manner as is expected of the presiding officer.—25 C. N. 682

12. Misdirection on law vitiates the trial.—Where the Judge pointed out to the Jury that there was no evidence that the appellants caused grievous hurt and yet directed them that they might convict the actual person or persons who at the time of committing robbery or dacoity, might cause grievous hurt to any person or might attempt to cause death or grievous hurt.—22 M. J. 186.

13. The Judge and not the Jury is to decide whether a confession is voluntary.—The question whether a confession was voluntarily made or not, has to be decided by the Judge himself for the purpose of admitting it in or excluding it from the evidence in the case. He ought not, in any circumstances, to throw on the Jury the duty of saying whether a confession was voluntarily made or not. If the Judge finds that it was voluntarily made and was not caused by any threat or inducement, he may admit in evidence. Once it is so admitted, it is for the Jury to say whether it is true or not.—11 B. R. 332.

14. Duty of Judge with regard to evidence of accomplice.—In the leading case of Elaah Buz B L (Sup) 459=5 W. R. 80, Sir Barnes Peacock C. J. laid down the rule that the evidence of accomplices should not be left to the Jury without pointing out to them the danger of trusting to such evidence, when it is not corroborated by other evidence. The omission to do so is an error of law, and a good ground for setting aside the conviction, when the Appellate Court thinks that the prisoner has been prejudiced by such omission. It is the duty of a Judge to caution a Jury not to accept an approver's evidence unless it is corroborated; and it is a misdirection not to do so. (See Karoo, 6 W. R. 44; Khotub, 6 W. R. 17. Aramaya, 12 M. 196; O'Hara 17 C. 642; Ram bin Babaji, Cr. R. 24 of 1896; Dhondi, Rat. 818. Imam, 3 B. H. 57). In the case of Nauab Jan 8 W. R. 19, the omission or the Judge to advise the Jury not to convict upon the uncorroborated testimony of an approver, was held to amount to misdirection. "The Judge should tell the Jury not only that it is unusual to convict on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice but also that it is unsafe and contrary to practice to do so (6 B. H. 57). In a trial by Jury the Sessions Judge should state not only that the evidence of an accomplice requires corroboration, but that the corroboration should relate to the identity of each accused. Dhondi, Rat. 818.

308. (1) When in a case tried before the Court of Session the Judge does not think it necessary to express disagreement with the verdict of the jurors or of a majority of the jurors, he shall give judgment accordingly.

(2) If the accused is acquitted, the Judge shall record judgment of acquittal. If the accused is convicted, the Judge shall unless he proceeds in accordance with the provisions of S. 562 pass sentence on him accordance to law.

Changes introduced.

The addition of the words "unless he proceeds in accordance with the provisions of S 562," is necessary in view of the much enlarged scope of S. 562, as re-enacted. The exercise of the powers under that section is no longer confined to Magistrates but extends also to Sessions Judges as appellate courts and the High Court.

307. (1) If in any such case the Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jurors, or of a majority of the jurors, on all or any of the charges on which any accused person has been tried, and is clearly of opinion that it is necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case in respect of such accused person to the High Court, he shall submit the case accordingly, recording the grounds of his opinion, and, when the verdict is one of acquittal, stating the offence which he considers to have been committed and in such case, if the accused is further charged under the provisions of section 310, shall proceed to try him on such charge as if such verdict had been one of conviction.

(2) Whenever the Judge submits a case under this section, he shall not record judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which such accused has been tried, but he may either remand such accused to custody or admit him to bail.

(3) In dealing with the case so submitted the High Court may exercise any of the powers which it may exercise on an appeal, and subject thereto it shall, after considering the evidence and after giving due weight to the opinions of the Sessions Judge and the Jury, acquit or convict such accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it; and, if it convicts him, may pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session.

Changes introduced.

(1) The words "any accused person" have been substituted for the words "the accused."

(2) The words "and in such case * one of conviction" were added by the first Select Committee (of 1916) for the following reasons: "We think however, that a further amendment is required in S. 307, to provide for the case of a person who is also charged with a previous conviction under S 210 propose therefore to insert at the end of S. 307(1) a provision for the trial of the further charge under S. 310.

Notes.

1. Duty of the referring Judge to record the opinions of the Jury.—On a reference under S 307 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, this Court has to pass its order acquitting or convicting the accused after considering the entire evidence and after giving due weight to the opinion of the Sessions Judge and Jury." It was pointed out by Mr. Justice Davies in the case of Emperor v. Chellan, (29 M 91) that the Legislature, in directing that this Court should duly weigh the opinions of the Jury gives an implied authority for the taking of such opinions. And the Sessions Judge would have done well, before referring the case to the High Court, to have recorded the opinions of the Jury. We also agree with the judgment of Sir Subramania Ayyar, officiating Chief Justice and Mr. Justice

Boddam that the circumstances that no such reasons have been ascertained, does not warrant referred to.) The above-mentioned cases also

(b) In the case of a trial held with the aid of assessors, the Court may, in its discretion, proceed or refrain from proceeding with the trial of the accused on the charge of the previous conviction.

Changes introduced.

(1) The section has been redrafted with a view to bring out more clearly that no reference to previous conviction is to be made in any shape or form, before the prisoner has either been convicted or declared guilty by the Jury. The redraft incorporates in a succinct form the dicta in a long series of decisions (cited in S 310 (2-3))

(2) A discretion is given to the Sessions Judge in cases tried with the aid of assessors to refuse to proceed under S. 310. (This overrules Cr. R. 17 of 25-6 '93-310 (16)).

Notes.

Principle of this section ought to be observed by Magistrate—Though this section does not in terms apply to trials before Magistrates still clauses (b) which may be given by the High Court, summon a sufficient number of Jurors from its own list, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for summoning jurors to the Court of Session.

Changes introduced.

The provisions of S. 316 are now extended to High Courts outside the Presidency-towns.

326 (1) The Sessions Judge shall ordinarily, seven days at least before the day which he may from time to time fix for holding the sessions, send a letter to the District Magistrate requesting a him to summon as many persons named in the said revised list or the said special list as seem to the Sessions Judge to be needed for trials by jury and trials with the aid of assessors at the said sessions, the number to be summoned not being less than double the number required for any such trial, and including, where any accused person is an European or an American, as many Europeans or Americans as may be required for the purpose of choosing jurors or assessors for the trial.

(2) The names of the persons to be summoned shall be drawn by lot in open Court, excluding those who have served within six months unless the number cannot be made up without them; and the names so drawn shall be specified in the said letter.

(3) Where the accused requires and is entitled to be tried the under provisions of S. 275, there shall be chosen by lot, in the manner prescribed by or under S. 276, from the whole number of persons returned the jurors who are to constitute the jury until a jury containing the proper number of Europeans or Europeans and Americans or of Indians, as the case may be, has been obtained :

Provided that, in any case in which the proper number of Europeans or Americans cannot otherwise be obtained, the Court may, in its discretion for the purpose of constituting the jury, summon any person excluded from the list on the ground of his being exempted under S. 320.

(4) Where, under the proviso to sub-sec (3), the Court proposes to summon as a juror any person in His Majesty's Army, the provisions of S. 317 shall apply in like manner as they apply for the purpose of the summoning of military jurors for a trial under S. 316.

Changed introduced.

The changes are consequential upon the transformation made of the provisions relating to the trial of European British and American subjects. (See the new chapter XXXIII infra). For similar changes.—See ss. 274, 275, 284A and 285A supra

Acquittal without framing a charge.—An acquittal without a charge against an accused is justified (1) in summons-cases by the operation of S. 248 Cr. P. C., (2) under S. 345, when there has been a composition, and (3) under S. 333, when the Advocate General withdraws from the case and where the Court considers it proper, even though a charge has not been framed, to acquit the accused. The last is a rare contingency.—24 Cr. 120; (Peshawar)

Provided that, where the offence is under inquiry or trial, no Magistrate of the first class other than the District Magistrate shall exercise the power hereby conferred unless he is the Magistrate making the inquiry or holding the trial, and, where the offence is under investigation, no such Magistrate shall exercise the said power unless he is a Magistrate having jurisdiction in a place where the offence might be inquired into or tried and the sanction of the District Magistrate has been obtained to the exercise thereof.

(1A) Every Magistrate who tenders a pardon under sub-sec (1) shall record his reasons for so doing, and shall, on application made by the accused, furnish him with a copy of such record :

Provided that the accused shall pay for the same unless the Magistrate for some special reason thinks fit to furnish it free of cost :

Changed introduced.

- (1) The provisions of the section have now been extended to offences punishable with imprisonment which may extend to ten years or any offence under any of the following sections of the I. P. Code.—viz.—ss. 211, 216A, 369, 401, 435 and 477A.

(The amendment adopts the decision noted in 337 (1)) and renders the following rulings obsolete:
- (6) The new sub sec. (2A) has been introduced for the following reasons. "We think all cases in which there is an approver should be committed for trial, and we have deleted the provision which enabled cases to be transferred to S. 30 Magistrates."—Sel. Com. 1922 (This adopts the view in 10 C. N. 847).

- (7) As to sub sec. (4) which has been omitted altogether, the following reasons were given by the Joint Committee: "We have deleted the words 'other than a Presidency Magistrate.' We see no reasons why Presidency Magistrates should not record their reasons for tendering a pardon." The provision as to record of reasons has been made in sub sec. (1A). All cases having been made triable only by the Court of Session and the High Court, the words "he shall not try the case himself" appearing in sub sec. (4) are unnecessary.

Notes.

1. Application of the section.—S. 337 of the Criminal Procedure Code applies where there is a bonafide enquiry into what it is believed at the time, may prove to be an offence triable by the Court of Session.—22 Cr. 676 (L)

(Note—If the subsequent proceedings show that the offence was of a less serious nature, the section still applies, if a case under the lesser section materialises and there is a commitment to the Sessions.—ibid)

2. Keeping faith with approvers.—In making a full and true disclosure, an approver may often disclose facts against himself, which may form the basis of his prosecution on a charge different from the one under enquiry. In such a case, if the statement proceeds from him under the impression that "he had delivered himself from the consequences of the disclosure" by obtaining a pardon, and if the statement is inseparable from a full and true narrative of the crime which he is bound under the law to make, it would be illegal and wholly unfair to prosecute him for the offence so disclosed. (See Russell on Crimes 4th Ed Vol III p. 597). As Straight J. has remarked in 11 A. 79 ('86): "though approvers may be infamous persons, they are nevertheless entitled to have faith kept with them by the Courts."—See 19 A. J. 717.
3. Pardon may be tendered even after framing a charge.—There is nothing in S. 337 Cr. P. C. which prevents a pardon being tendered during the hearing of the case to one of the persons being tried even after a charge has been framed against him.—22 Cr. 235 (L).
4. If the prosecution do not desire to proceed against the principal offender the accused may be discharged.—If the prosecution do not desire to proceed further with the case against the principal offender, the Magistrate has power to discharge the approver from custody. Sub sec. (3) of S. 337 Cr. P. C. implies that there is a trial in progress and its object is to secure the evidence of the approver for such trial. If there is no such trial, and no likelihood of such a trial, then cessante ratione lex ipsa cessat.—46 B. 120

- f. Admissibility of retracted statement of approver.—A retracted statement of an approver is admissible cannot be relied on against the prisoner—See 10 M. 295; 15 M. 352; 21 A. 175; 12 L. W. 355.

6. Pardon tendered at a time when there is no enquiry is not valid.—A pardon tendered under S. 337 Cr. P. C. at a time when no enquiry is being conducted into the case, is not a valid pardon and a statement made by the person to whom such pardon is tendered is not admissible in evidence, and cannot form the basis of an alternative charge for perjury.—46 B. 61

I. Evidence of Accomplices.

7. Can evidence of an accomplice standing by itself suffice for a conviction?—Under S. 133 Act I of 1872 (Evidence Act) an accomplice is a competent witness against an accused person. But this general rule of law is considerably modified by the well-known illustration (b) to S. 114 of the Act which says that the evidence of an accomplice is an unworthy of belief unless corroborated in material particulars. It is however recognised that this is a rule of general and usual practice, the application of which is for the discretion of the Judge by whom the case is tried, and not an inflexible rule of law. As S. 114 enacts a rule of presumption and read with S. 4 of the Act, it indicates that it is not a hard and fast presumption, incapable of rebuttal a presumptio juris et de jure. (E. v. Shrinivas—(1903) 7 B. R. 969) But it is only where there are special grounds applicable to a particular case for rebutting this presumption that a conviction can be sustained on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice. Nya Na. (1903) U. B. (Ev.) 1 : (07) 9 Cr. 360 (363). See 4 M. H. (Appx) 7 : W. R. 11 : 10 W. R. 63 : 19

W. R. 48 : 2 Shome 13 (Ekamash Patrol). "The law as expressed in ss. 141 ill. (1) and 153 of the Evidence Act is in no respect different from the law of England, but simply reproduces a rule of practice—viz.—that a conviction based on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice is not illegal, that it is not unlawful. But experience teaches us that it is not safe to rely upon the evidence of an accomplice unless it is corroborated, and hence it is the practice of the Judges, both in England and in India, when sitting alone, to guard their minds carefully against acting upon such evidence when uncorroborated; and when trying a case with a jury to warn it that such a course is unsafe" see (1883) Q. v. Imdad, S. A. 120 : (1884) Q. v. Kallu, 7 A. 160. (1885) Q. v. Ram Saran, 8 A. 306). As has been pointed out in the case of Kunja Menon, 1 M. J. 397 that although a conviction based on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice is legal, having regard to human conduct, it ought not to be believed unless corroborated as to some material facts which go to prove that the prisoner was connected with the crime charged. "The evidence of the accomplice requires to be accepted with a great deal of caution and scrutiny, because among other things, he is likely to swear falsely in order to shift the guilt from himself" (7 B. R. 969). The law may be summed up in the words of Edge C. J. and Straight J. as follows : "As a general rule, it would be most unsafe to convict an accused person on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice. But such evidence must like the evidence of any other witnesses, be considered and weighed by the Judge, who in doing so, should not overlook the position in which the accomplice at the time of giving his evidence may stand, and the motives which he may have for stating what is false. If the Judge after making due allowance for those considerations and the probabilities of the story comes to the conclusion that the evidence of the accomplice although uncorroborated is true, it is his duty to act upon the strength of his conviction" (1837) Gobardhan, 9 A. 528. (see (1878) Reg. v. Ram Sami Padayachi, 1 M. 394. Goda Raut, 5 W. R. 11). In Reg. v. Ram Sami Padayachi, 1 M. 394. Goda Raut, 5 W. R. 11).

8. Meaning of the words "may be taken into consideration" in S. 30 of the Evidence Act.—"The section does not provide, as has been repeatedly pointed out by this Court, that such confession is evidence, still less does it say that it shall be the foundation of a case against the person implicated. The Legislature very guardedly says that it may be taken into consideration" and I think the obvious intention of the Legislature in so saying was that, when, as against any such person, there is evidence tending to his conviction, the truth or completeness of this evidence being the matter in question, the circumstance of such person being implicated by the confession of one of those who are being jointly tried with him, should be taken into consideration as bearing on the truth or sufficiency of such evidence" (Jackson J. in 24 W. R. 42) "While admissions, a word which embraces confessions are by S. 21 relevant and may be proved as against the persons making them, all that S. 30 provides is that the Court may take them into consideration as against other persons. The distinction of language is significant, and it appears to me that its true effect is, that the Court can only treat a confession as lending assurance to other evidence against a co-accused. Thus, to illustrate my meaning, in the view I take, a conviction on the confession of a co-accused alone would be bad in law. This reading of the section appears to me to gain confirmation from the language of S. 35." (Per Sir Lawrence Jenkins C. J. in 38 C. 539)—See also 33 M. 46. 23 Cr. 129 (N); Con. 4 C. 481 (F. B.); 38 B. 156. 29 A. 431.

II. The meaning of corroboration.

9. In the leading case of (1874) Malaya 11 B. R. (C. C.) 196 it was laid down that the evidence requisite for the corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice, must proceed from an independent and reliable source. Indeed, the corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice when required, should be such corroboration in material particulars as would induce a prudent man, on a consideration of all the circumstances, to believe that the evidence is true. (1873) 7 B. R. 969. 24 C. 379.

ence as distinguished from that derived from the earlier statements of the same accomplice or the statements of other accomplices (See 1 B. 475. 1 (06) Rat. 810. 2 B. R. 610; Con. 4 C. P. 1). The principle is that tainted evidence is not improved by being corroborated by other tainted evidence. (5 W. R. 18. 25 W. R. 3; see 19 W. R. 69. 23 Cr. 158 (L). The confirmation usually required of an accomplice witness must be not merely as to the circumstances of the crime, but as to the identity of each person. (1896) Rat. 840).

10. The Law as expounded by Kotval A. J. C.—The law in this country regarding corroboration of an accomplice's evidence does not differ from the English Law. The latest English ruling on the point in which the previous case law has been reviewed is Reg. v. Bristow (1916) 2 K. B. 658 in which the judgment of the Court of Criminal Appeal was delivered by Lord Reading C. regards the nature and extent of the cor required, the proposition laid down in Reg v. Mullins (1848) 3 Cox C. C. 526 (531) by Maule J. that "confirmation does not mean that there should be independent evidence of that which the accomplice relates or his testimony would be unnecessary" was accepted as law. It was observed that if it were required that the accomplice should be confirmed in every detail of the crime, his evidence would not be essential to the case, it would be merely confirmatory of other and independent testimony. It was further held that corroboration must be by some evidence other than that of an accomplice and therefore one accomplice's evidence is not corroboration of the testimony of another accomplice. At page 667 it was held that: "Evidence in corroboration must be independent testimony which affects the accused by connecting or tending to connect him with the crime. In other words, it must be evidence which implicates him, that is, which confirms in some particular not only the evidence that the crime has been committed, but also that the prisoner committed it. * * * The nature of the corroboration will vary according to the particular circumstances of the offence charged. It would be in a high degree dangerous to attempt to formulate the kind of evidence which would be regarded as corroboration except to say that corroborative evidence is evidence which shows or tends to show that the story of the accomplice that the accused committed the crime is true, not merely that the crime has been committed but that it was committed by the accused. The corroboration need not be direct evidence that the accused committed the crime, it is sufficient if it is merely circumstantial evidence of his connection with the crime—were the law otherwise many crimes which are usually committed between accomplices in secret, such as incest, offences with female or the present case, could never be brought to justice." —Per Kotiah A. J. C in 23 Cr. 391 (N)

11. Can confession of one accused corroborate the confession of another?—The law may be stated to be as follows:—

- (a) The confession of an accused person cannot be accepted as evidence against a co-accused who has not confessed —38 B. 156 : 22 Cr. 90 (L).
- (b) The confession of an accused person is corroborated by the confession of a co-accused, that is to say, the confessions of two persons being tried together do corroborate each other —22 Cr 390(L).

tender has, either by wilfully concealing anything essential or by giving false evidence, not complied with the condition on which the tender was made, such person may be tried for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or any other offence of which he appears to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

Provided that such person shall not be tried jointly with any of the other accused, and that he shall be entitled to plead at such trial that he has complied the conditions upon which such tender was made; in which case it shall be for the prosecution to prove that such conditions have not been complied with.

(2) The statement made by a person who has accepted a tender of pardon may be given in evidence against him at such trial.

(3) No prosecution for the offence of giving false evidence in respect of such statement shall be entertained without the sanction of the High Court.

Com. 1916).

The law before the amendment was very accurately and succinctly stated in the following decision of the Lower Burma Chief Court (8 L. B. 447): "If an approver fails to make a full and true disclosure, it is not open to the Magistrate or Judge trying the case in which the approver is giving evidence, to decide whether the pardon has been forfeited. At the termination of the trial, in which the pardon was given to the approver, he must be discharged by the Court. Then, if so advised, the Crown may re-arrest and proceed against him for the offence in respect of which he was given a conditional pardon."

The Crown is now precluded from starting the prosecution, unless the Public Prosecutor certifies that the approver is liable to prosecution. In this view, the leading cases.—30 B 611 (F.B.), 37 A 331 and 37 C. 845 must be regarded as obsolete in so far as this particular point is concerned. 1 L 218, 22 Cr. 128 (L) and 176 P. L. 1905 are obsolete.

The provision for separate trial of the approver is in accordance with the decisions in 14 W. R. 10 :

Note.—The change of law as effected by Act XVIII of 1923 should be noted.]

4. Breach of condition must be established.—A pardon cannot be forfeited unless the prosecution succeeds in proving the breach of the condition. Trifling discrepancies elicited in cross examination do not justify the forfeiture of the pardon. It must be affirmatively proved that the approver has wilfully concealed material facts or has given false evidence.—34 P. R. 1902. See I P R. 1998. 15 P. R. 1895.

339A. (1) The Court trying under section 339 a person who has accepted a tender of pardon Procedure in trial of person under section 339 shall—

(a) if the Court is a High Court or Court of Session, before the charge is read out and explained to the accused under S. 271, sub-sec (1), and

(b) if the Court is the Court of a Magistrate, before the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution is taken, ask the accused whether he pleads that he has complied with the conditions on which the tender of the pardon was made.

(2) If the accused does so plead, the Court shall record the plea and proceed with the trial, and the jury, or the Court with the aid of the assessors, or the Magistrate, as the case may be, shall, before judgment is passed in the case, find whether or not the accused has complied with the conditions of the pardon, and, if it is found that he has so complied, the Court shall, notwithstanding anything contained in this Code, pass judgment of acquittal.

Changed introduced.

"The Bill contains no indication as to when this plea is to be raised and what is to be the effect of it, and difficulties of procedure may obviously arise with reference to Ss. 255, 271(2) and 272. We therefore, propose a new section to be added after S. 339, which lays down that when a person to whom a pardon is tendered is being tried under that section, she shall at the commencement of the proceedings be asked whether he raises the plea that he has complied with the conditions on which the pardon was granted, and if he does so plead, the court shall record a finding on the point, and if it finds that the conditions have been complied with, shall acquit the accused. The provision we have inserted as a new clause 86A in the Bill" (Joint Com. 1922). This accords with the rulings in 7 M. T. 121 : 32 M. 173 : 30 B. 611 : 3 O. C. 245.

Right of person against whom proceedings are instituted to be defended and his competency to be a witness.

340 (1) Any person accused of an offence before a Criminal Court, or against whom proceedings are instituted under this Code in any such Court, may of right be defended by a pleader.

(2) Any person against whom proceedings are instituted in any such Court under section 107, or under Chapter X, Chapter XI, Chapter XII or Chapter XXXVI, or under S. 552, may offer himself as a witness in such proceedings.

Changed introduced.

(1) In S. 340, the most important change introduced is that no doubt is left as to the right of a person against whom proceedings such as those under Ch. VIII, X, XI, XII, XXXVI or S. 552, are instituted, to be defended by a pleader (See in this connection 340 (2)).

(2) Cl. (2) gives the defendant in proceeding under Ch. X, XI, XII, XXXVI or S. 552, the right if he so chooses, to be examined as a witness. As to proceedings under Ch. XXXVI, the Legislature has merely enacted what was already recognised by the Courts. (See S. 488 (35)).

Notes.

Counsel for accused, also a prosecution witness.—The mere fact that counsel for an accused person has been cited as a witness for the prosecution in the case, would not debar him from appearing and conducting the defence of the accused, and would therefore, not render the rule as to the exclusion of witnesses from Court room until they have been examined, applicable to him.—44 M. 916. As to duties of a pleader. See 49 C. 732.

S. 342.

Notes.

1. Object of S. 342.—The purpose of the examination of an accused person under S. 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code is to enable him to explain any circumstances appearing against him; it is a provision for the benefit of the accused, and to enable him to obtain the full benefit of the section, he must be examined after the cross-examination and re-examination of the prosecution witnesses is over. Failure to examine an accused person at that stage is not merely an irregularity but an illegality which vitiates the trial.—6 Pat. J. 644 : 27 C. N. 99 : 24 Cr. 248 (C).

(Note.—When an accused person is examined under S. 342 Cr. P. C., the answers given by him may be taken into consideration at the trial and proper inferences drawn therefrom.—6 Pat. J. 241.

2. Presidency Magistrates bound to examine accused under S. 342.—A Presidency Magistrate trying an accused person for an offence punishable under S. 332 of the Penal Code is bound, before convicting, to examine the accused person in the manner prescribed by S. 342 Cr. P. C., and an omission to do so, is an illegality which vitiates the proceedings.—45 B. 672.

2. Examination before close of prosecution evidence is illegal.—The examination of an accused person before all the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined is illegal, as it contravenes the provisions of S. 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and the illegality is sufficient to vitiate the trial.—2 Pat. T. 741 : 22 Cr. 506 (Pat.), 49 C. 1075.

3. (Note.—The examination of a witness for the prosecution after recording the statement of accused is an error, but if the case has been decided on the merits, the error in no way affects the result, so as to vitiate the trial.—24 Cr. 67 (A)

4. Written statement cannot take the place of oral examination.—A written statement of defence cannot, I think, be allowed to take the place of an examination of the accused person. (1903) A. N. 1 Fd.—2 L. 27. 2 Pat. T. 355 : 3 Pat. T. 322 : 5 Pat. J. 430 : 14 L. W. 418 : But see.—1 Pat. T. 60

5. Summons cases.—The provisions of S. 342 Cr. P. C. are applicable to summons cases. These provisions are mandatory, and the omission to examine an accused person after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined is an error.

6. Failure to comply with ss. 342 and 364 vitiates the trial.—A failure to comply with the provisions of ss. 342 and 364 Cr. P. C. vitiates a trial. It is essential that the questions and answers put to the accused should be recorded at the time, that they should be read over to him in a language which he understands and that he should be given an opportunity of correcting and adding to them, as required by S. 364 Cr. P. C.—6 Pat. J. 147 : 2 Pat. T. 455 see 5 Pat. J. 430 : 24 Cr. 248 (C).

7. Accused must be examined at the sessions.—In the course of the preliminary enquiry, when examined before the framing of the charge, the accused stated "I am not guilty. I will make a statement later." In the trial Court, there was no further examination of the accused, under the provisions of S. 239 and S. 342 of the Cr. P. C. Held, that the irregularity vitiated the trial.—25 C. N. 609

8. Summary trials.—Neither of the ss. 263 and 264 nor any other provision in the chapter for summary trials does away expressly with the requirements of ss. 342 and 364 of the Code relating to the examination of the accused. The Magistrate is not absolved from the responsibility of recording the examination of the accused simply because the trial is summary.—3 Pat. T. 347.

and explained to the accused. These safeguards appear to have been deemed sufficient to protect the interests of the prosecution, or the accused in the case. The trial, does not commence de novo, so that if the accused has already been called upon to enter on his defence, there is no further obligation upon the Magistrate to examine the accused under S. 342 of the Code.—3 Pat. T. 91.

10. Points on which questions ought to be put.—The only questions put by the Sessions Judge to the accused were whether his statements in the lower Court were correct, whether he wished to add anything, and whether he was going to examine defence witnesses in the Committing Magistrate's Court the only question put to him before the charge, was the stereotyped one, "you have heard the witnesses, what do you say?" And the accused answered "I shall state in the Sessions Court." Again after the charge was read to him, he was only asked if he had any witnesses. In the Sessions Court a document, which was termed "accused's written statement" but was not signed by him, and signed only by accused's wakil, was allowed to be placed on record. Held that the omission of a Sessions Judge to comply with the mandatory provisions of S. 342 vitiated the trial and that a written statement filed by an 11. Sufficiency of examination.—It is impossible to lay down any very definite hard and fast rule as to the sufficiency of an examination made under S. 342. Where an accused is undefended, the Tribunal may well point out to him the elements of the evidence against him, which seems in his own interest to demand his explanations but where an accused is defended by a legal practitioner, it would be undesirable to expect a Tribunal to enter upon a lengthy examination of an accused person, which might easily develop into a recounting of the history of the whole case or into, what would be far worse, some sort of cross-examination.—3 Pat. T. 649.

12. Cross-examination of accused.—It is not competent to the Court under S. 342 to cross-examine the accused. Where questions were put to the accused apparently with the object of trapping him into some sort of admission, after he had relied from his confession, Held, that those questions were improper and should not have been put.—2 L. 129.

13. S. 342 (4) does not prevent accused from an affidavit.—S. 342 (4) does not preclude accused from making an affidavit in support of his application for answer of a case against him. The rule that no oath shall be administered to an accused person, refers to the statements made by him in answer to questions put to him by the Court in accordance with sub-sec. (1)—3 L. 46.

14. (Note—An accused person is liable to punishment for false statements contained in his affidavit as they are not made in answer to questions put by the Court.—1 S. 124.

15. Statements of accused are privileged.—Statements of a defamatory character made by an accused person in the course of the statement which he is invited to make under S. 342 are privileged—5 M. T. 236.

16. Confession by an accused in the course of examination.

S. 344.

Notes.

1. Remands should not exceed 15 days at a time—An accused person should not be remanded to custody for periods exceeding 15 days at a time. In 3 U. P. (L) 78 the Court enjoined on Magistrates the necessity of strictly observing the provisions of S. 344 in future. For the latest case on remands See 49 C 182.

(5) When the accused has been committed for trial or when he has been convicted and an appeal is pending, no composition for the offence shall be allowed without the leave of the Court to which he is committed, or, as the case may be, before which the appeal is to be heard.

(7) No offence shall be compounded except as provided by this section.

Changed introduced.

(1) The word "specified" which has been substituted for the word "described" is the more apposite word

(2) The scope of sub sec. (2) has been enlarged almost beyond recognition. The Committee of 1916 were of opinion that it would be a mistake to include among the offences compoundable with the offences

(3) "We have substituted the words "under the age of 18 years" for the word "a minor."

(4) "We have further provide by a new sub-section that a High Court acting in the exercise of its powers of revision may allow offences to be compounded" (Joint Com 1922) This amendment has the effect of rendering the following rulings cited at 345 (41), obsolete : 43 C. 1143 : 18 C. N. 1212 : 29 M. J. 521 : 35 P. R. 1918 : 37 A. 127 : 21 Cr. 447 (A) : 23 Cr. 80 (Pat) and confirming the following : 32 A. 153 : 13 O. C. 161 : 17 O. C. 92 : 252 F. L. 1904

(5) The words "with whom the offence has been compounded" make it clear that the Court is authorised to acquit only the particular accused person who has effected a compromise and not the rest. This accords with 41 M. 323 and 21 Cr. 437(P) and overrules 7 C. N. 176 : 20 Cr. 824 (Pat) : 1 Pat. T. 32.

Notes.

1. Effect of filing a compromise petition.—Where the parties to a criminal proceeding file a written compromise in Court under S. 315 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, such compromise amounts to an acquittal of the accused, and no further proceedings can be taken against him at the instance of the complainant in respect of the subject-matter of the compromise.—33 C. J. 226
2. Effect of compromise with some only of the accused.—The compounding of the offence against one or some of the accused persons, has not the effect of compounding the case against the remaining accused, and the latter are not entitled to acquittal on the ground that the case as a whole has been compounded.—43 A 483 (41 M. 323 Fd. 7 C. N. 176 : 1 Pat. T. 32. Not Fd.)—Con 23 Cr. 432 (Pat.).
3. The ruling in 3 Pat. T. 458 which follows 43 C 1143 : 18 C. N. 1212 and 29 M. J. 621 is obsolete in view of the amendment introduced by Act XVIII of 1923
4. Principle on which Courts should act in permitting compromise.—It is the duty of the Magistrate to decide in each case whether he will or will not allow a compromise and the responsibility rests entirely with him. Every case must be decided on its own merits. Where the case is not of a very serious nature, and a conviction must have the effect of perpetuating bad blood between the parties, and the parties come to terms at a very early stage and before the prosecution evidence is recorded, a compromise ought to be allowed.—7 P. W. 1922.

5. Compromise in adultery case.—The only person who can compound a case under S. 498 of the Penal Code is the husband of the woman.—23 Cr. 690 (L).
6. (Note)—An agent prosecuting under the powers acquittal based on such a composition is not justified.—24 Cr 120 (Pesh.)

7. Compoundable offences.—An offence under S. 325 I P C was non-compoundable under the Code of 1882 ('93 O') L B 240. An offence under S. 232 I P C is compoundable irrespective of the Court's permission —('86) A N 167.

Notes.

Case cannot be returned—A superior Magistrate cannot simply return a case to the subordinate Magistrate from whom it comes, but must refer it to some other Magistrate or dispose of it himself.—23 Cr. 710 (M) (Rat. 499 (Falira) . Rat. 554 (Purshotam Fd.)

347. (1) If any inquiry before a Magistrate, or in any trial before a Magistrate before signing judgment, it appears to him at any stage of the proceedings that the case is one which ought to be tried by the Court of Session or High Court, and if he is empowered to commit for trial, he shall commit the accused under the provisions herein before contained

Procedure when, after commencement of inquiry or trial, Magistrate finds case should be committed

- (2) If such Magistrate is not empowered to commit for trial, he shall proceed under section 316.

Changes introduced.

The deletion of the words "stop further proceedings" clear up a much debated point. There is a conflict of decisions as to whether the accused was entitled, as of right to further cross examine prosecution witnesses after the Magistrate had made up his mind to commit. (See 16 C J 45, 12 C. N 1014, 23 M. J. 364, 6 L. B 129 (F. B.), 12 B. R. 201 : 20 A 264 20 A 177 which answer the question in the affirmative, and 7 M. T. 87, 36 C. 48 which take the opposite view) The latter rulings 7 M. T. 83 and 36 C. 48 are therefore obsolete.

of any offence punishable under either of those Chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, shall if the Magistrate before whom the case is pending is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused be committed to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be, unless the Magistrate is competent to try the case and is of opinion that he can himself pass an adequate sentence if the accused is convicted.

Provided that if any Magistrate in the district has been invested with powers under Section 30, the case may be transferred to him instead of being committed to the Court of Session.

(2) When any person is committed to the Court of Session or High Court under sub-sec. (1), any other person accused jointly with him in the same inquiry or trial shall be similarly committed, unless the Magistrate discharges such other person under S. 209.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The changes introduced into S. 348 bring it into line with S. 209 (1) Supra. The words "sufficient grounds," as interpreted in the leading case 27 B 84, mean "sufficient evidence to put the accused on his trial" (See Note on the point at p. 402 supra). The law as it formerly stood, compelled the Magistrate to follow one of the two courses, (1) He could commit for trial, or (2) He could himself try if he could pass an adequate sentence. He can now follow a third course. He

The new sub clause (1A) makes it incumbent on the Magistrate, to refer the case of all the accused, although, he might be of opinion that some of them only deserved an enhanced punishment. The

Memorandum of evidence must be signed.—Where a warrant case is tried summarily, the procedure to be followed is that prescribed for the trial of warrant cases, and therefore, the memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness must, as provided by S. 355 (2), be signed by the Magistrate. Non-compliance with the requirements of S. 355 vitiates the trial.—3 Pat. T. 322.

Evidence need not be read over.—S. 360 which requires the evidence to be read over to the witnesses, does not apply to S. 355—1 P. 159 the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language of the Court by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, or in his presence and hearing and under his personal direction and superintendence and shall be signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge.

(2) When the evidence of such witness is given in English, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, and, unless the accused is similar with English, or the

(2A) When the evidence of such witness is given in any other language, not being English, than the language of the Court, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, or cause it to be taken down in that language in his presence and hearing and under his personal direction and superintendence, and an authenticated translation of such evidence in the language of the Court or in English shall form part of the record

Changes introduced.

The amendments enables the Court in cases in which the evidence is given in a language which is neither the language of the Court nor English, to record the evidence in such language. This is an useful innovation.

S. 360.

Notes.

1. S. 360 applies to proceedings under chapter XII.—S. 360 Cr. P. C. applies trials under chapter XII and the word "accused" in that section does include persons against whom an order under S. 145 Cr. P. C. has been drawn up. The new section over the depositions to the witnesses in a previous under S. 145 Cr. P. C. does not, however, invalidate the trial.—23 Cr 125 (Pat).

- z. When the evidence is to be read out.—S 360 Cr. P. C. requires that the evidence of each witness shall be read over to him as it is completed and this procedure should be strictly followed. It is a sufficient compliance with the provisions of the section to read out each sentence of the statement of a witness as it is being recorded.—3 U. P. (L) 78.

3. Provisions of S. 360 mandatory.—The provisions contained in S. 360 of the Criminal Procedure Code is mandatory, so that the evidence given by a witness must be read over to him in the presence of the accused or his pleader. Where this is not done, the witness cannot be prosecuted for perjury in respect of any false statement made by him.—Pat T. 330.

362 (1) In every case tried by a Presidency Magistrate in which an appeal lies, such Magistrate shall either take down the evidence of the witnesses with his own hand, or cause it to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court. All evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate and shall form part of the record

(2) Evidence so taken down shall ordinarily be recorded in the form of a narrative, but the Magistrate may, in his discretion, take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question or answer

(2A) In every case referred to in sub-sec. (1), the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the substance of the examination of the accused. Such memorandum shall be signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

(3) Sentence passed under S 35 on the same occasion shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered as one sentence unless they are sentences of imprisonment ordered to run concurrently.

(4) In cases other than those specified in sub-sec (1), it shall not be necessary for a Presidency Magistrate to record the evidence or frame a charge.

Changes introduced.

The changes in sub-sec. (1) were introduced for the following reasons. "We think that the opening words of S. 362 (1) requires amendment. As the think that the sub-section should read better as follows: "In every case, tried by a Presidency Magistrate in which appeal lies, such Magistrate shall either take down the evidence of the witnesses with his own hand etc." (Compare S. 241 supra) As to this point, the remarks of the Joint Committee of 1922 are interesting. "We are inclined to agree with those critics, who point out that the redraft proposed by sub clause (1) in sub sec. (1) of S. 362 does not get rid of the difficulty that a Magistrate has to make up his mind as to the sentence he will impose before he begins trying the case. We do not see how this difficulty can be got rid of, but

(2) When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the record shall be signed by the accused and the Magistrate or Judge or such Court, and such Magistrate or Judge shall certify under his own hand that the examination was taken in his presence and hearing and that the record contains a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

(3) In cases in which the examination of the accused is not recorded by the Magistrate or Judge himself, he shall be bound, unless he is a Presidency Magistrate, as the examination proceeds, to make a memorandum thereof in the language of the Court, or in English, if he is sufficiently acquainted with the latter language; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Judge with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record. If the Magistrate or Judge is unable to make a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of such inability.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to the examination of an accused under section 263 or section 362, sub-sec. 2A.

Changes introduced.

The change is consequential upon the insertion of the new clause (2A) in S. 362.—See Notes under S. 362.

The substitution of the word "shall" for "may"—makes the framing of rules a matter of necessity.

The other changes in the section are merely drafting amendments. We do not think it necessary

(3) When the conviction is under the Indian Penal Code, and it is doubtful under which of two sections, or under which of two parts of the same section, of that Code the offence falls, the Court shall distinctly express the same and pass judgment in the alternative.

(4) If it be a judgment of acquittal, it shall state the offence of which the accused is acquitted and direct that he be set at liberty.

(6) For the purposes of this section, an order under section 118 or section 123, sub-sec. (3), shall be deemed to be a judgment.

Changes introduced.

- (1) By providing for dictation of judgments the Legislature has facilitated work, 4 C. J. 411 in which such dictation was held to contravene the provisions of this section is now therefore obsolete.
- (2) The new sub section (6) makes it incumbent on Magistrates to record judgments in security cases. "We think it desirable to lay down that orders under ss. 118 and 123 (3) should be deemed to be judgments for the purposes of the section.

13. Judgments under S. 421 Cr. P. C.—S. 421 Cr. P. Changes introduced.

The section as amended is an improvement on the original section of the Code of 1898. The power of alteration or amendment was expressly confined under the Code of 1898, to (1) cases in which a sentence of whipping is found to be incapable of execution (S 393) or (2) cases in which the punishment awarded to a person guilty of contempt of Court is remitted on submission of apology (S 484). (3) Recession and alteration of orders under S 144 Cr P. C. (4) Alteration or cancellation under S 489 of maintenance orders passed under S 484. It has been held that S. 369 should be read as controlled by S. 437 Cr. P. C (28 B. 102). The words "or by any other law for the time being in force" greatly increases the scope of the section

- (2) In the case of a High Court, the power to review its own judgment is now to be regulated by its Letters Patent. "We have redrafted the amendment so as to provide that no Court shall alter or review its judgment save as provided by or under any law for the time being in force or in the case of a High Court in its Letters Patent" (Joint Com. 1922)

Notes.

1. Alteration of judgment by Sessions Judge.—Where in passing a sentence of fine, the Sessions Judge omits to pass a sentence in default of payment of fine, he has no power to correct this oversight by a subsequent order. The proper course in such a case is to submit the proceeding to the High Court and ask the High Court in its revisional jurisdiction to enhance the punishment by inflicting imprisonment in default of payment of fine.—23 B. R. 846
2. Petition dismissed for default can be reheard.—The High Court has power to rehear a criminal petition dismissed for default.—23 Cr. 750 (L) (10 C. J. 80 Fd.).
3. Omission to pass orders under S. 520 Cr. P. C.—Where in setting aside a conviction for theft an Appellate Court omits to pass orders under S. 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code for restoration of the property taken from the accused, it can be subsequently corrected under S. 369 of the Code, if the omission is accidental.—24 Cr. 159 (M)
4. Alteration in High Court judgments.—A judgment of High Court is not complete until it is sealed. Till then it may be altered by the Judge concerned without the necessity of having recourse to any formal procedure by way of review of judgment.—21 A 177 : 27 A. 92

S. 370.

Notes.

1. Omission to give reasons for finding as required by S. 370 Cl. (1).—The omission by a Presidency Magistrate to give reasons for his finding as required by S. 370 (1), was one of the grounds for setting aside the conviction.—31 M T 400
2. S. 441 does not abrogate the terms of S. 370.—As a matter of law it is clear that S. 441 does not abrogate the terms of S. 263 or S. 370. 'I take it that it merely allows the Presidency Magistrate to supplement the reasons which have already been stated under S. 263 and 370'—24 Cr. 84 (M)

(b) issue a warrant to the Collector of the District authorising him to realise the amount by execution according to civil process against the moveable or immovable property, or both, of the defaulter :

for the purposes of the said Code, be deemed to be the Court which passed the decree, and all the provisions of that Code as to execution of decrees shall apply accordingly :

Provided that no such warrant shall be executed by the arrest or detention in prison of the offender.

Changes introduced.

In appreciating the great changes introduced into the procedure laid down by this section, a study of of the remarks of the two committees of 1916 and 1922 will be of great help to the student :

(1) "We agree to the substitution of the word "attachment" for the word "distress" in S. 386 as we think it is more appropriate

"We also agree to the renumbering of this section so amended as 386 (1), and to the new sub-sec. (2) proposed by the Bill. We would however retain the words "moveable property" in sub sec (1) and in lieu of making immovable property

We can see no reason why a property-owner who may be able to conceal his moveables, should not be forced to pay a fine which has been inflicted upon him by a Criminal Court, just as much, and by the same process, as a Civil debt. It seems to be recognised that the liability is so enforceable by S. 70, Indian Penal Code, and the decision in Emp. v. Silanath Mitra, I. L. R. XX Cal. 478, and we think that this should be made clear by the section under consideration. The proper person to effect such realisation is, we think the Collector of the district who will be treated as the decree-holder."—Sel. Com 1916

"We recognise that the procedure prescribed may in some cases involve considerable delay and we attempted to find some more summary method of proceeding against immovable property on the lines of those laws which enable moneys due to the Crown to be recovered as arrears of land-revenue. We have however found ourselves unable to devise any procedure which will not be open to most of the objections put forward against the present clause—Joint Com. 1922.

Effect of the changes.—(1) Immovable property can now be attached and sold in realisation of the fine 23 C. 478, 5 B. H. (C. C.) 63 : 14 P. R. 1871 : 22 Cr. 399 (L) are rendered obsolete. Rulings rendered obsolete—3 W. R. 61 : Rat. 91 : 207. (proviso to cl. (1))—This incorporates the Punj. Cr. Chap. LI p. 264 : See 386 (23).

Notes

Scope of the words "May in his discretion"—The use of the words "may in his discretion" in S. 386 of the Criminal Procedure Code cannot be used for the purpose of interpreting the words "may be recovered" in S. 148 of the same Code. The discretion in S. 386 of the Code only refers to cases where there has been a conviction and sentence—24 Cr. 126 (Pat.).

Effect of such warrant.

Property without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

Changes introduced.

The substitution of the words "A warrant issued under S. 386 sub-sec. (1) cl. (a) by any Court for "such warrant" is a drafting amendment. The word

"attachment" is a necessary substitution for the word "distress" as immovable properties can now be sold under S. 386 (6)

388. (1) When an offender has been sentenced to fine only and to imprisonment in default of payment of the fine, the Court may suspend the execution of the sentence of imprisonment and may release the offender on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before such Court on a date not more than fifteen days from the time of executing the bond; and in the event of the fine not having been realised the Court may direct the sentence of imprisonment to be carried into execution at once.

(2) In any case in which an order for the payment of money has been made, on non-recovery of which imprisonment may be awarded, and the money is not paid forthwith, the Court may require the person ordered to make such payment to enter into a bond as prescribed in sub-sec. (1), and in default of his so doing may at once pass sentence of imprisonment as if the money had not been recovered.

Changes introduced.

The substitution of the words "the Court" for the words "and the Court issues a warrant under S. 386 it" has the effect of giving the Court the power to suspend the sentence before it is actually put in execution. The latter part of the amendment —viz—the substitution of the words "on a date not" for "on the day appointed for the return so such warrant" is consequential. The ruling in 4 L. B. 151 is now obsolete.

391 (1) When the accused (a) is sentenced to whipping only and furnishes bail to the satisfaction of the Court for his appearance at such time and place as the Court may direct, or the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of the sentence, or if an appeal is made within that time, until the sentence is confirmed by the Appellate Court, but the whipping shall be inflicted as soon as practicable after the expiry of the fifteen days, or, in case of an appeal, as soon as practicable after the receipt of the order of the Appellate Court confirming the sentence.

(b) is sentenced to whipping in addition to imprisonment

(2) The whipping shall be inflicted in the presence of the officer in charge of the jail, unless the Judge or Magistrate orders it to be inflicted in his own presence.

(3) No accused person shall be sentenced to whipping in addition to imprisonment, when the term of imprisonment to which he is sentenced is less than three months.

Changes introduced.

These sections have been amended, in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee which considered the "Racial Distinctions Bill" by Act XII of 1923 (Criminal Law Amendment Act).

395. (1) In any case in which, under section 391, a sentence of whipping is wholly or partially prevented from being executed, the offender shall be kept in custody till the Court which passed much of the sentence of whipping as was not executed, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve months or to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees which may be in addition to any other punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the same offence.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise any Court to inflict imprisonment for a term or a fine of an amount exceeding that to which the accused is liable by law, or that which the said Court is competent to inflict

Changes introduced.

The addition of the words "or to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees" make it optional with the Court either to pass an order of imprisonment or to merely impose a fine in lieu of the sentence of whipping.

397 When a person already undergoing sentence of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation Detention of prison under S. 123 Cr. P. C.—The ruling in 15 S. 205 must be taken at a discount in view of the change in law noted above.

401 (1) When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may at any time without conditions or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his sentence or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he has been sentenced.

(2) Whenever an application is made to the Governor General in Council or the Local Government for the suspension or remission of a sentence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government as the case may be, may require the presiding Judge of the Court before or by which the conviction was had or confirmed to state his opinion as to whether the application should be granted or refused, together with his reasons for such opinion, and also to forward with the statement of such opinion a certified copy of the record of the trial or of such record thereof as exists.

(3) If any condition on which a sentence has been suspended or remitted is, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council or of the Local Government, as the case may be, not fulfilled, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may cancel the suspension or remission, and thereupon the person in whose favour the sentence has been suspended or remitted may, if at large, be arrested by any police-officer without warrant and remanded to undergo the unexpired portion of the sentence.

(4) The condition on which a sentence is suspended or remitted under this section, may be one to be fulfilled by the person in whose favour the sentence is suspended or remitted, or one independent of his will.

(4A) The provisions of the above sub-sections shall also apply to any order passed by a Criminal Court under any section of this Code or of any other law, which restricts the liberty of any person or imposes any liberty upon him or his property.

(5) Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the right of His Majesty or of the Governor General when such right is delegated to him to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment.

(5A) Where a conditional pardon is granted by His Majesty or, in virtue of any powers delegated to him by the Governor General, any condition thereby imposed, of whatever nature, shall be deemed to have been imposed by a sentence of a competent Court under this Code and shall be enforceable accordingly.

(6) The Governor General in Council and the Local Government may, by general rules or special orders, give directions as to the suspension of sentences and the conditions on which petitions should be presented and dealt with.

Changed introduced

- (1) The Judge is now required to send a certified copy of the record of the trial along with his opinion et. "It is well known that in the case of proceedings in a High Court, the Judges object to their notes being treated as part of the records and we have therefore referred in our proposed amendment of section of 401 (2) to "a certified copy of the record of the trial", or of such record thereof as exists" — (*Sel. It would appear that the powers under S 401 should be exercisable under sub sec-(1A) in the case of persons imprisoned in default of security under S. 123, or in the cases of forfeiture of security.

- (4) The clause (5A) supplies an omission with regard to the procedure to be followed when a conditional pardon is granted.

432 (1) The Governor General in Council the Local Government may, without the consent of the person sentenced, commute any one of the following sentences for any other mentioned after it:—

death, transportation, penal servitude, rigorous imprisonment for a term not exceeding that to which he might have been sentenced, simple imprisonment for a like term, fine.

(Note—There is a divergence of judicial opinion as to the meaning of the term “competent to try”.

In the latest case 23 Cr. 305 (S) which follows Ganapathy v. E. 36, 308 and 24 M. 611, the words “competent jurisdiction” are held to refer to the character and status of the Court which has decided the case. The opposite view is taken in 37 A. 107 and 24 O. Notes.

Admission of appeal after expiry of limitation.—The accused were convicted on the 30th Sept and the last date for filing their appeal was the 6th Novr, after making allowance for the time required for obtaining copies but the appeal was filed on the 17th Novr. The explanation for the delay was that there was Civil Court Vacation from the 11th Oct to the 16th Novr, and the Vacation

Judge did not arrive on the dates on which he was expected to sit at the headquarters of the district. Held, that the failure to present the appeal in time, was due to the fact that timely notice was not given of the time and place at which the Vacation Judge proposed to hold his sitting and therefore the appeal was not barred.—22 Cr. 426 (C).

Appeal from order requiring security for keeping the peace or for good behaviour.

406 Any person who has been ordered under section 118 to give security for keeping the peace or for good behaviour may appeal against such order—

- (a) if made by a Presidency Magistrate, to the High Court;
- (b) if made by any other Magistrate, to the Court of Session:

Provided that the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct that in any district specified in the notification appeals from such orders made by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate shall lie to the District Magistrate and not to the Court of Session:

Provided, further, that nothing in this section shall apply to persons the proceedings against whom are laid before a Session Judge in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) or sub-section (3A) of section 123.

Changed introduced.

- (1) It will be seen that in the absence of special notification by the Local Government all appeals in the mofassil against security orders will lie to the Sessions Judge instead of the District Magistrate
- (2) The second proviso follows the rulings in 15 P. R

1900. 23 P. R. 1886 : 9 C. 878 (S. 406 (5)) It removes an anomaly. See Note No. 2 below

- (3) An appeal against an order under S. 118 by the District Magistrate, will now now lie to the Sessions Judge.—(198) A. N. 127 is therefore obsolete.

Notes.

- 1. The Additional District Magistrate is a “Magistrate other than the District Magistrate” within the meaning of S. 406 of the Code and consequently an appeal lies from an order, under S. 118 in a proceeding under S. 116, of the Additional District Magistrate to the District Magistrate—48 C. 874.

2. Appeals in cases where reference to Sessions Judge is necessary.—No limitation is laid down in S. 403 as to the right of appeal to the District Magistrate in cases in which a person is ordered to give security for good behaviour under S. 118 by a subordinate District Magistrate. Where however, security is ordered for more than a year, a reference is to the Sessions Judge is necessary, when the accused fails to furnish security. The question therefore arises, does an appeal lie in the latter instance?

the order of the Sessions Judge. This query has been raised by Abdul Kadir J. in 65 P. L. 1922 but not finally decided. However, the proviso introduced by the Amending Act settles the point and takes this class of cases out of the provisions of S. 403—See Note above.

(c) if made by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, to the District Magistrate.

Changes introduced.

against the rejection of surety in such proceedings." (Sel. Com. 1916)

Appeal from sentence of Magistrate of the second or third class.

- (2) The District Magistrate may direct that any appeal under this section, or any class of such appeals, shall be heard by any Magistrate of the first class subordinate to him and empowered by the Local Government to hear such appeals, and thereupon such appeal or class of appeals may be presented to such subordinate Magistrate, or, if already presented to the District Magistrate, may be transferred to such subordinate Magistrate. The District Magistrate may withdraw from such Magistrate any appeal or class of appeals so presented or transferred.

Changes introduced.

The words "or in respect of whom an order has been made or a sentence has been passed under S. 380" have been introduced to meet the ruling in 17 B. R. 895 (See S. 380 (4)). It has been held therein by Shah J that appeals in such cases lie only to the Sessions Judge. This view has now been definitely overruled.

Notes.

1. Orders under the Motor Vehicles Act.—It was convicted of the offence of not producing his driver's license on demand by the Police and sentenced under S. 16 of the Motor Vehicles Act (VIII of 1914) to pay a fine of twenty-five rupees. The Magistrate also passed an order under S. 407 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

2. Magistrate on whom special powers have been conferred under S. 407 (2)—is not a Court to which an appeal "ordinarily" lies within the meaning of S. 195 from the orders of a Magistrate exercising second class powers—2 L. J. 660. (30 C. 391 and 3 N. 50 Fd.).
3. Subdivisional Magistrate, Court of Appeal within the meaning of S. 520 Cr. P. C.—The expression "any Court of appeal" in S. 520 has been construed as meaning "Courts to which appeals ordinarily lie" (S. 42 M. J. 401; Cr. Rev. Cases no. 525 of 1905 and 84 of 1908 (M)). Now a Subdivisional though ordinarily he cannot do so, he can pass the order as a consequential or ex within the meaning of S. 423 (d) if the matter is treated as a part of the proceedings in the appeal itself, (2) that when a District Magistrate has directed a case or a certain class of cases to be heard by a subdivisional Magistrate under S. 407 and he hears the appeal, his court is a court of Appeal within S. 520 Cr. (b) when in any case an Assistant Sessions Judge or a Magistrate specially empowered under section 30 passes any sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding four years, or any sentence of transportation, the appeal of all or any of the accused convicted at such trial shall lie to the High Court ;

(c) when any person is convicted by a Magistrate of an offence under section 121A of the Indian Code, the appeal shall lie to the High Court.

- (2) The words "of all or any of the accused sentenced at such trial" embody the view taken by the Punjab Chief Court in 162 P. R. 1911 and 12 P. R. 1909 and the Lower Burma Chief Court in ('93-00)

(3) The amendment also provides that an appeal from the sentence of a Magistrate of the first class, or any person sentenced under section 319 or in respect of whom an order has been made or a sentence has been passed under section 350 by a Magistrate of the first class, may appeal to the Court of Session :

Notes.

1. Convict on under S. 22, Cattle Trespass Act.—A person who is directed to pay compensation under S. 22 of the Act (I of 1871) can be said to be convicted of an offence but the compensation awarded against him, though recoverable as a fine, is not a fine within the meaning of the Penal Statutes. Therefore, an appeal against his conviction lies under S. 408 Cr. P. C. and does not fall within the restrictive provisions of S. 413 of that Code.—23 B. R. 83.

2. Sentence passed before Code of 1898 appealed against after the Code came into force.—Cert in persons were convicted and sentenced to imprisonment before the Code of 1898 came into force.

Provided that an Additional Sessions Judge shall hear only such appeals as the Local Government may, by general or special order, direct or as the Sessions Judge of the division may make over to him.

Changes introduced

The subordination of an Additional Sessions Judge to the Sessions Judge is further emphasised here (see Note under S 193). It is doubtful as to whether the Court of Additional Sessions Judge can now be regarded as a Court of appeal within the meaning of S 195. The rulings in 4 Pat. J. 374 and 14 Cr 193 (C) must in this view, be regarded as of doubtful authority.—S. 403 (11).

S. 413.

Notes.

Appealable sentence passed against only some of the accused opens up the whole case.—When dealing with the appeal of those accused persons who have received appealable sentences, a Sessions Judge is competent to deal with the application made by the co-accused who have received non-appealable sentences.—3 U. P. 44 (Pat.) (4 Pat. J. 435 Ed.).

415A Notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter, when more persons than one are convicted in one trial, and an appealable judgment or order has been passed in respect of any of such persons, all or any of the persons convicted at such trial shall have a right of appeal.

Changes introduced.

(1) The new section incorporates the decisions of the several High Courts as reported in 38 A 395 42 C 374 17 M J 249 : 4 P J 435 (Per Jwala P.d. J.) : 3 U P 44 (Pa') and o'her rulings noted under S. 413 notes 1, 2 and 3. The following decisions therefore stand overruled - 5 B. H. (C. C.) 35. 40 M. 591 - 9 M. T. 322 : 31 M. 415A to meet the case in which the accused with an appealable sentence, postponed the prosecution of his appeal until the period of limitation was about to expire, providing that the limitation will run from the date on which a first appeal is preferred by a co-accused who has received an appealable sentence. 1. Opinion of the Trial Court on credibility of witnesses is to be ordinarily treated as conclusive—"As laid down in Emperor v. Chaitan Singh (7 P. R. 1904) the Court of first instance which has the witnesses before it, has a great advantage over the Court of appeal in its view of the evidence."

 reasons. These considerations apply with greater force to an appeal from an acquittal, and naturally, the Court is chary of disturbing a finding of the first Court, rejecting the evidence against the accused as unreliable and declaring his innocence. The same judgement further lays down the salutary rule that "the findings of fact of a Court which has the evidence before itself, is ordinarily entitled to great weight and should be set aside by the Court of Appeal only when the indications of mistake are clear and this is especially true in cases where the finding is in favour of the accused's innocence. If in such a case the evidence is all oral, and its credibility is a matter of opinion witout involving other considerations, the opinion of the Court which heard the witnesses must be treated as almost conclusive. Again, if the evidence is such, that opinions may reasonably vary as to its worth the Court of Appeal will hardly adopt the view adverse to the accused, and believe the evidence as to his guilt, which the lower Court has disbelieved, and take upon itself to set aside the verdict of acquittal. The indications of mistake must be obvious, or the evidence too strong to be rejected before the Court will interfere."—Shadi Lal C. J. and Leslie Jones J. in 22 Cr. 172 (L)

2. Misdirection when no justification for interference with an order of acquittal.—A mere failure on the part of the Sessions Judge to point out to the Jury all the matters which may be considered by

Cr. 47 (Pat.).

3. High Court will not interfere unless judgment is perverse.—The High Court will not interfere in a judgment of acquittal unless the lower Court has been perverse in its judgment or taken such unreasonable and distorted conclusions of the facts as to cause a miscarriage of justice.—(4 A. 148; 18 C. N. 666 Fd.)—3 Pat. T. 396. (Pat.)—see 32 8 P.L. 1913.

418 (1) An appeal may lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law except where the trial was by jury, in which case the appeal shall lie on a matter of law only.

Explanation—The alleged severity of a sentence shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a matter of law.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1) or in section 423, sub-section (2), when, in the case of a trial by jury, any person is sentenced to death, any other person convicted in the same trial with the person so sentenced may appeal on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law.

Changes introduced.

The Legislature has now differentiated the case of persons sentenced to death from the case of other persons. A person sentenced to death or any co-accused of such a person can now appeal on facts as well as law.

Notes.

ordinarily, the High Court in a confirmation proceeding under S. 376, has the power to go into facts whether the trial was held with the assistance of assessors or a Jury. There is no reason why a person convicted, say of murder, by the Jury and sentenced to death, and who has appealed, should be in a worse position than a person who has been sentenced to death but who has not appealed, and whose case comes up before the High Court for confirmation in the usual course of law.—See also, 5 S. 103 (F. 1. Where Jail appeal is summarily rejected, second appeal through counsel does not lie—See Note No 1 under S 419 supra

2. Appeal once admitted cannot be summarily dismissed—An order was recorded on the 23rd. January, 1922, in the order sheet as follows: "Admit appeal" The Magistrate heard the pleader on the 13th February, 1922 and then on the 25th, and he dismissed the appeal summarily. The appeal was remitted in order that it might be reheard on the ground that once the appeal is admitted, the court admitting, has no jurisdiction to dismiss it summarily—23 Cr. 733 (C)

3. Complicated cases should not be summarily rejected.—In a case in which there are disputed questions of fact and a large number of documents and the Trial court has come to certain findings after a good deal of discussion of evidence, the appeal should not be summarily rejected without sending it for the record—22 Cr 349 (C)
4. Judgment in appeals dismissed summarily—See Notes under S 367 supra.

Reasonable notice of date and place of hearing must be given—An appellant is entitled to reasonable notice of the date and place of hearing of his appeal A notice to the appellant's pleader that his appeal would be heard next day, at whatever camp he might find the District Magistrate is neither reasonable nor sufficient—22 B. R. 183 : 24 Cr. 89 (M).

7. Excusing delay in presentation of appeals is not an incidental or consequential order—An Appellate Court cannot excuse the delay in presenting an appeal, under S. 423 (1) (d) Cr. P. C., as an order excusing the delay is neither a consequential nor an incidental order—24 Cr. 89 (M)

Instances of Misdirection to the Jury.

- 10(a). In a case of theft, the failure on the part of the went to show that the accused had dealt, constituted a misdirection—(1884) 2 Weir 483

- 11 (b) Where in a case of theft, the only evidence against the accused was the possession of stolen property 5 years after the occurrence, held, that the Judge had misdirected the Jury by saying that "on this evidence, notwithstanding that it is nearly 5 years since the crime occurred, you will decide whether you are satisfied with the prisoner's explanation for his possession of stolen property." The proper course would be to tell them to consider whether, after 5 years, it was reasonable to require the prisoner to prove how he came by the goods or whether his story, not being in itself improbable, ought not to be accepted.—(1894) 2 Weir 197.

12. (C) A direction to the Jury that they should convict the prisoner, if they believed that he had shown the stolen property to the Police, is open to exception. If a person is found in possession or control of stolen property, there is, of course, a presumption that he was the thief. But the mere fact of knowing where such property is, is not equivalent to possession.—(1935) 2 Weir 493.

- 13 Can appellate Court order retrial by another Court?—An Appellate Court may order the retrial of an accused person by another Court of competent Jurisdiction, even where the first trial has been held by a Court of competent jurisdiction.—(193-00) L. B. 233 (210).

Judgments of Appellate Court.—An Appellate Court is not required to write a long and elaborate judgment.

have been duly considered and decided. An Appellate Court, which writes a judgment which a High Court is unable to follow, without reference to the judgment of the Trial Court, obviously fails in the discharge of the duty imposed upon it by the law.—2 L. 398 : 19 A. J. 921.

435. (1) The High Court or any Sessions Judge or District Magistrate or any Sub-divisional Magistrate empowered by the Local Government in this behalf may call for and examine the record of any proceeding, before any inferior Criminal Court situate within the local limits of its or his jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior Court and may, when calling for such record, direct that the execution of any sentence be suspended and, if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond pending the examination of the record.

Explanation.—All Magistrates, whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction, shall be deemed to be inferior to the Sessions Judge for the purposes of this sub-section and of section 437.

(2) If any Sub-divisional Magistrate acting under sub-sec. (1) considers that any such finding, sentence or order is illegal or improper, or that any such proceedings are irregular, he shall forward the record, with such remarks thereon as he thinks fit, to the District Magistrate.

(3) * * *

(4) If an application under this section has been made either to the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate, no further application shall be entertained by the other of them.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The power to grant bail or to suspend execution of sentence is a necessary concomitant of the power to call for records of inferior Courts. The omission to provide for the exercise of this power has now been remedied.
- (2) The explanation clearly adopts the view in such rulings as ('89) A. N. 100 in which it was definitely held that the Court of a District Magistrate of the District Magistrate exercising appellate jurisdiction was held not to be inferior to the Sessions Court.

- (3) "It has been suggested from various quarters that revision should be allowed in respect of proceedings under ss 143 and 144 and Chapter XII. We do not agree that any change should be made in the law in this respect."—(Joint Com. 1922). The Legislature has however omitted Sub-section (3) at the final passage of the Bill.

Notes.

Revision under the Upper Burma Criminal Justice Regulation.—(1) Under the provisions of S XV of the Schedule to the Upper Burma Criminal Justice Regulation, the Judicial Commissioner will not interfere with an order of District Magistrate, even where the procedure is irregular, unless that procedure has occasioned a failure of justice.—(1920) 3 U. B. 270 purports to have been made. If it is within the scope of the section, the court cannot revise the order on its merits, in other words, we are not concerned with the propriety of the order if it is within the scope of S. 144. If it is outside the scope of the section, it is liable to be set aside on the ground that the lower court has no jurisdiction to make it.—22 B. R. 157

4. Revision after expiry of two months.—A High Court will not decline to revise an order passed under S. 144 Cr. P. C. after the expiry of two months from the date of the order. It will examine the order to see whether it was passed with or without jurisdiction, and if in its opinion it is a wrong order, it will express its views about it.—42 M. J. 352 (24 M. 45 and 1 Pat. T. 377 Fd.).

5. High Court will not act under S. 439 unless lower has been moved under S. 435.—It is not the practice of the High Court to entertain an application for revision, under S. 439 Cr. P. C. against an order of a District Magistrate.

6. Enquiries under Bombay District Police Act (IV of 1893).—An order made under S. 41 of the Bombay District Police Act by a District Magistrate is an executive order and not one of an inferior Court with which a High Court can interfere.—15 S. 126 (11 S. 113 : 5 S. 54 : 12 B. R. 1029 Red Reon).

Orders under S. 145 Cr. P. C.—The High Court refused to interfere in the following cases.

- 7 (1) The following irregularities were committed :
(a) the order under sub-sec. (1) did not mention

- 8 (2) In the notice under the section there was no finding about any likelihood of a breach of the peace.—23 Cr. 303 (A). 13 A. J. 1140.

- 9 (3) Where the preliminary order did not contain any finding as to who was in possession on the actual date of the order, the order is illegal but if there is nothing on the record to suggest that there was any change of possession in the interval, the omission will not be regarded as material.—14 L. W. 678 (6 C. N. 841 and 3 C. N. 583 Fd.).

- 10 Refusal to exercise jurisdiction under S. 145.—Where a Magistrate refuses to take action under S. 145 Cr. P. C. merely on the ground that the parties are jointly entitled to the land in question, a High Court has jurisdiction to interfere in revision where such irregularity has been committed.—2 L. 372 (2 L. W. 1205 : 17 Cr. 217 (M). 23 P. R. 1902 Fd.).

(Note.—The principle has always been recognised that where the Magistrate has adopted none of the procedure required under S. 145 Cr. P. C. and has passed an order without reference thereto. The High Court may interfere with such order as not one which has really been made under the section.—(2 P. R. 1899 (F. B.). 24 Cr. 109 (M) : 139 P. L. 1912) where however the irregularities committed are not grave, the High Court will not interfere merely on the ground that substantial justice has not been done.—23 Cr. 724 (L) (see 23 P. R. 1902 and 7 P. R. 1907).

11. District Magistrate as appellate Court inferior to Sessions Judge.—A District Magistrate acting as a Court of Appeal is an inferior Criminal Court to the Sessions Court for the purposes of S. 435

Cr. P. C.—3 L. 23 (14 C. N. ex vi Dist: 375 P. L. 1913: 16 P. R. 1904: 12 C. 73 (F. B.) 7 A. 853 (F. B.) Referred to.)

12. High Court will not ordinarily proceed ex mola Under the very extensive powers contained in S. 437 of the Cr. P. C. the High Court can call for and examine the record of proceeding if the necessity for so doing has been brought to its notice in any manner, and it is satisfied that there are a priori grounds for apprehending a miscarriage of justice, but it should be loth to interfere on behalf of a person convicted in a criminal case, if that person is an adult of ordinary intelligence when that person himself in no way contests the propriety of his conviction.—24 Cr. 117 (A)

13. Fine imposed under Bengal Regulation VI of 1825.—It is only the Collector who can take action and impose a fine under Bengal Regulation VI of 1825. Where the Joint Magistrate proceeds under S. 2 of the Regulation, which he has no jurisdiction to do, he deals with the case as a Magistrate and the Sessions Judge can take action under S. 433 Cr. P. C.—7 A. J. 953.

may direct the District Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrates subordinate to him to make, and the District Magistrate may himself make or direct any Subordinate Magistrate to make, further inquiry into any complaint which has been dismissed under S. 203 or sub-sec. (3) of S. 204, or into the case of any person accused of an offence who has been discharged.

Provided that no Court shall make any direction under this section for inquiry into the case of any person who has been discharged unless such person has had an opportunity of shewing cause why such direction should not be made.

of this amendment.—See 437 (9). This proviso should be studied along with the notes embodied in Chapter V, (notes under S. 437) in which the matter has been exhaustively dealt with (pp 757 and 758). It is now clear that in cases in which the complaint has been summarily dismissed, no notice is necessary (see S. 437 (61)). "We have added a proviso to the present S. 437 to give effect to the rule laid down by the Courts that a fresh enquiry should not be made into the case of a person who has been discharged unless he has had an opportunity of shewing cause." (Joint Com. 1922)

Notes.

Notice to accused.—(1) There is nothing in S. 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which renders previous notice to the accused compulsory before an order setting aside an order of discharge and directing further enquiry into the case, can be passed under that section, but as a matter of judicial discretion it is advisable that such notice should be given.—24 O. C. 142: See 26 M. 41: 4 L. J. 411, 24 Cr 136 (Fesh).

(2) An order for further enquiry against an accused person who has been discharged, should not be passed without first serving notice on him so show cause why the order should not be passed. 20 A. J. 91

3. Meaning of "accused" person.—The term "accused person" in S. 437 Cr. P. C. includes persons against whom proceedings under S. 110 and the following sections of the Cr. P. C. have been taken—(91) A. N. 100.

4. Effect of 'revival of a prosecution' within S. 7 Expl. 2 of the Presidency Magistrate's Act.—A revival of prosecution is not a continuation of the original prosecution from which the accused has been discharged. Upon the revival of such prosecution, all the witnesses on whose evidence the prosecutors intends to rely, as justifying the committal of the accused, must be examined before the Magistrate; and if any of them were examined at the time of the original prosecution they must be examined de novo—5 C. 121.

5. Sufficient reasons must be given.—No Court can properly set aside an order of discharge without having and assigning solid and sufficient reasons for doing so. An order for further enquiry under S. 437, Cr. P. C. (S. 436) without setting out grounds therefore is bad and must be set aside (13) M. N. 638.

6 The essential consideration for ordering further enquiry.—The essential matter for consideration in setting aside an order of discharge and directing a further enquiry under S. 437 Cr. P. C. (S. 436) is the prospect of any public advantage from the case being re-opened. Where there is no prospect by reason of the comparatively insignificant character of the offence, of the considerable time which has elapsed since its commission, a the nature of the evidence available, an order directing further enquiry would be without jurisdiction.—43 M. J. 555.

7. Further enquiry only when order of discharge is perverse or foolish.—Further enquiry under S. 437 (436) should not, as a general rule, be ordered unless the order of discharge is manifestly perverse or foolish or is based on a record of evidence obviously incomplete. The mere fact that the District

8. Retrial will not be ordered when evidence is doubtful—High Court will not order a retrial, where a conviction on the evidence is doubtful—30 M. T. 18.

9. Lapse of time no ground for refusing further enquiry.—Lapse of time is not a sufficient ground for refusing to order further enquiry if the offence appears to have been really committed. It would be encouraging accused persons to delay proceedings if mere lapse of time were admitted as a good reason for not proceeding with the case, when such a course is otherwise justified.—23 Cr. 745 (N).

437. When, on examining the record of any case under S. 435 or otherwise, the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate considers that such case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session and that an accused person has been improperly discharged by the inferior Court, the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate may cause him to be arrested, and may thereupon, instead of directing a fresh inquiry, order him to be committed for trial upon the matter of which he has been, in the opinion of the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate, improperly discharged.

Provided that no Court shall make any direction under this section for inquiry into the case of any person who has been discharged unless such person has had an opportunity of shewing cause why such direction should not be made.

- (a) What the accused has had an opportunity of showing cause to such Judge or Magistrate why the commitment should not be made ;
- (b) that, if such Judge or Magistrate thinks that the evidence shows that some other offence has been committed by the accused, such Judge or Magistrate may direct the inferior Court to inquire into such offence.

Changes introduced.

S 437 was S. 436 of the Code of 1898 before it was amended by Act No XVIII of 1923. As to the reason for the change see under the heading "changes introduced" under S. 436.

Notes.

Notice must be served on the accused.—It is an essential condition precedent to a valid order under S. 436 Cr P C that the accused should have an opportunity ty of showing cause against his commitment.—(29) A. N. 236.

438 (1) The Sessions Judge or District Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, on examining under section 435 or otherwise the record of any proceeding, report to the High Court the result of such examination, and, when such report contains a recommendation that a sentence be reversed or altered, may order that the execution of such sentence be suspended and, if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond.

(2) An Additional Sessions Judge shall have and may exercise all the powers of a Sessions Judge under this Chapter in respect of any case which may be transferred to him by or under any general or special order of the Sessions Judge.

"By or under any general or special order of the Sessions Judge" is introduced in order to facilitate the work of the Additional Sessions Judge by obviating the necessity of issuing a separate order in every case."

1 Commitment can be quashed only on a question of law—A commitment can only be quashed on a question of law. The question whether the evidence already on the record is sufficient to establish the charge is not such a question. It is a question connected more with the propriety of a conviction rather than with the propriety of a commitment—8 O. J. 627.

2 District Magistrate cannot set aside order of acquittal—A District Magistrate has no authority to set aside an order of acquittal by a subordinate Magistrate in revision or to act otherwise than as provided by S. 439 Cr. P. C. A High Court can take action of its own motion and set aside an order of acquittal and direct a retrial—9 O. J. 54.

3. High Court not bound by the term of the report—Although in a report to the High Court under S. 439 Cr. P. C. a Sessions Judge does not recommend that the proceedings against the accused be quashed, yet, as a consequence of the report, the facts of the case are brought to the knowledge of the High Court, that Court has jurisdiction under S. 439 to stop further proceedings if it is satisfied that they are barred—23 Cr. 303 (S).

439. (1) In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself or which has been reported for orders, or which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court by Appeal by sections 123, 126, 127 and 128 or on a Court by section 338, and may enhance the sentence; and when the Judges composing the Court of Revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in manner provided by section 429.

(2) No order under this section shall be made to the prejudice of the accused unless he has had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

(3) Where the sentence dealt with under this section has been passed by a Magistrate acting otherwise than under section 34, the Court shall not inflict a greater punishment for the offence which, in the opinion of such Court, the accused has committed, than might have been inflicted for such offence by a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class.

(4) Nothing in this section applies to an entry made under section 273, or shall be deemed to authorize a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

(5) Where under this Code an appeal lies and no appeal is brought, no proceedings by way of revision shall be entertained at the instance of the party who could have appealed.

(6) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, any convicted person to whom an opportunity has been given under sub-sec. (2) of showing cause why his sentence should not be enhanced shall, in showing cause, be entitled also to show cause against his conviction.

Changes introduced.

(1) "We have introduced an amendment of s. 439 consequential upon the alteration made by the Bill in S. 195" (Joint Com. 1922).

(2) Though an accused person was entitled under sub-sec (2) to show cause why the sentence passed on him should not be enhanced, he was not at the same time entitled to show that the conviction itself was illegal. This privilege has been now expressly conferred on him by law.

Notes.

1. Practice of the High Court—It is not the practice

S. 433 to make a reference to the High Court under S. 438 of the Code.—48 C. 531.

(Note)—Before moving the High Court in revision an application to the lower Court is an essential step in the procedure, irrespective of whether the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge has power to grant the relief or not.—43 A. 497 (41 A. 587 (591) Fd.).

3. Where appeal lies High Court would not act under S. 439.—Where it is open to an accused person to appeal and he does not do so, clause (5) of S. 439 Cr. P. C. bars the entertainment of an application for revision.—14 S. 173.

3. Revision of orders of acquittal—The High Court has no power to convert an acquittal into a conviction, but it has power to direct the Trial Court to conclude the trial in the manner provided by law.—2 U. P. (L) 39.

4. When Govt. refuses to appeal.—Where there is an appeal by a Police Prosecutor or the Crown from an acquittal, the High Court, sets its face against revision. But when an aggrieved complainant moves the Government to appeal under S. 417 Cr. P. C. and the Government refuses, he can move the High Court in revision, but the latter will exercise its jurisdiction sparingly and only where it is urgently demanded in the interests of public justice.—45 M. 913 (4 C. 612 (616) Fd.)

5. Order for retrial of case ending in acquittal.—Upon an application in revision against an order of acquittal, the High Court has no doubt the power to order a re-trial, but this power should be exercised in exceptional cases and with caution. Only when the offence is of a serious character and where there has been a miscarriage of justice—e.g.—the lower Court has misquoted the evidence or rejected evidence which is prima facie reasonable and credible, without assigning any reason, that the High Court will interfere.—19 A. J. 559 : 19 A. J. 382 : 24 O. C. 157.

6. Note.—The High Court can direct only a retrial in such cases. It cannot convert the finding of acquittal into one of conviction.—19 A. J. 382. 44 A. 332

7. Retrial for a graver offence by a competent Court.—Where the evidence discloses an offence of a graver character beyond the jurisdiction of a subordinate tribunal, the High Court may quash the conviction and sentence for the minor offence and direct a trial before a tribunal having jurisdiction over the graver offence. Whether it will do so or not is a question, not of law but of expediency on the facts of the particular case.—(9) 2 Weir 569 : see (20) 2 Weir 569

8. Power to expunge remarks.—Where the Trying Magistrate came to a finding that the prosecution evidence was insufficient and unconvincing and the defence evidence as more convincing, and recorded a judgment of acquittal, but added that his own impression was that the case was "not false" and that is should be entered as "true" in the Police register, held on an application by the accused. (a Police officer) that the remarks were illegal and inconsistent with the judgment of acquittal and should be expunged from the judgment.—3 Pat. T. 239 (Pat.) (5 Bur. T. 20 R.).

jurisdiction, and where rightly or wrongly, he comes to the conclusion that the land is not within his jurisdiction, and passes an order dropping the proceedings, his act does not amount to a failure to exercise jurisdiction to enable the High Court to interfere in revision.—22 Cr. 302 (C).

10. Order passed by Revenue Court under S. 476.—The High Court has no jurisdiction, under S. 439 Cr. P. C. to entertain an application to revise an order passed by a Revenue Court under S. 476 of the Code. Such an order, however, is open to revision under S. 115 Civil Procedure Code or S. 107 of the Government of India Act.—6 Pat. J. 178.

11. Interference on questions of facts.—It is the duty of the High Court, in revision, not to weigh the evidence given on behalf of one side or the other but only to see whether the Court below has approached the consideration of the appeal in a fair way, having regard to the interest not only of the prosecution, but also of the accused. Ordinarily where the evidence has been considered by two Courts, the High Court will not interfere in revision on the facts. (4 O. C. 225 : 13 A. J. 1074 See 13 P. R. 1874 114 P. L. 1912). In cases under S. 110 the High Court will interfere and undo the work of months, only if the evidence home to the accused, complicity with a definite piece of badmash, (19 A. J. 608) When in a revision petition to quash proceedings against the petitioner, it is alleged among other grounds that no offence has been committed on the facts as given in the complaint, it is not desirable that a High Court should give its preliminary finding on those facts. (15 S. 149). The practice of the High Court has long been not to interfere in criminal revision on facts found by the lower Appellate Court, but this rule is not an absolute one. The High Court will examine the record in order to satisfy itself as to the propriety of the finding "and acquit the accused if it is of opinion that the guilt of the accused has not been established beyond reasonable doubt.—20 A. J. 276.

12. Composition of offence can now be allowed in revision.—The Code as amended by Act XVIII of 1923 contains an express provision (see S. 345 case laying down a contrary proposition is 3 Pat. 458 which follows 43 C. 1143: 18 C. N. 1212: 29 M. J. 621: 37 A. 127. All these rulings are now therefore obsolete.

13. Order under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—Under the revisional powers conferred by the Cr. P. C. the High Court has no authority to interfere with an order made by a subordinate Court granting or refusing sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—2 L. 303(26 C. 852 Fd.).
14. High Court will insist on lower Courts having summons and warrants properly executed—It is the business of a Court to see that its summonses and warrants are duly executed and if the accused insists on the Court issuing process for the attendance of his witnesses, he has done all that the law requires of him. Where the Magistrate has disposed of the case without compelling the defence witnesses to attend, the High Court will remand the case for disposal in accordance with law after hearing those witnesses.—19 A. J. 915.
15. Quashing proceedings in revision before the trial takes place.—Where an accused person is only were allowed to continue—(23 Cr. 429 (L)). A High Court has the power to set aside in revision an order of a Magistrate charging the accused with an offence but it should exercise the power only in exceptional cases. (24 Cr. 118 (L). 33 P. L. 1910).

16. Objection that Magistrate has failed to comply with S. 342 may be raised in revision.—An objection that the Magistrate has failed to comply with the requirements of S. 342 of the Cr. P. C. raises a point of law and may be taken for the first time at the hearing of an application for revision, although it was not urged in the Courts below, and is not set forth in the application—3 Pat. T. 347.
17. Interference with sentences.—The sentence to be passed in each case after conviction must be left to the Court.—(24 Cr. 118 (L). 33 P. L. 1910).
18. Enhancement of sentence.—The High Court will not as a rule interfere to enhance a sentence of imprisonment. But where the offence is of a serious nature having far-reaching consequences, and the sentence is manifestly inadequate the High Court would enhance the sentence, even when the convict has taken place after the lapse of three years after the offence was committed.—4 S. 86.
19. Interference with orders of Revenue Courts.—The High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere as the District Registrar had acted as a Revenue Court, and that the proper remedy was to obtain a reversal of the order of the District Registrar by the Board of Revenue or by a decree of a Civil Court—23 Cr. 415 (Pat.).

20. Retrial to supply omission to record evidence of previous conviction.—Where the omission to record evidence of previous conviction is due to the neglect of the Magistrate, the High Court is competent to interfere in revision and order a new trial—13 P. R. 1874: 30 P. R. 1894: 28 P. R. 1879: 19 P. R. 1879: 12 P. R. 1874.
21. Stay of proceedings pending result of Civil litigation.—It cannot be said that, as a general rule, a proceeding in Criminal Court should be stayed, pending a decision of a Civil Suit in regard to the same subject matter. The Legislature has given to a Magistrate the power to regulate the proceedings of his own Court and discretion should ordinarily be left to the Magistrate either to stay proceedings or not, as he, in the circumstances of the case, may think right and proper.—23 C. 610: 31 C. 858: 35 C. 909: 23 B. 785: see 5 C. N. 44: 8 C. N. xxvi: 9 C. N. cclxi: 10 C. N. clv: cxi: 14 C. N. cxxxi: 31 C. 818: 30 M. 220.
22. Conversion of finding of acquittal to one of conviction.—The meaning of S. 439 (4) Cr. P. C. is that, where an accused person has been acquitted on all charges he is not to be convicted, but if he has been convicted at all, S. 439(4) does not apply to him. 28 O. C. 41 (37 M. 119 Fd.): 24 Cr. 17 (M): 24 Cr. 120 (Fesh.).
23. Note.—(1) In Lahore, it has been held that the Court clearly has power, on the revision side, to set aside even an order for acquittal, and may well do so when the order is based on a misapprehension of the law.—3 Cr. 699 (L) (8 P. R. 1918 Fd.).
24. Note (2) “As a rule, an interference is not made in revision with an order of acquittal on the application of a private party, except where such interference is imperatively demanded in the interests of public justice, or where the procedure adopted is so irregular or illegal as to vitiate the whole trial.”—Kankanya Lal J. C. in 24 Cr. 180 (O) (See 37A 110: 24 O. C. 157).
25. Power to rehear criminal petition.—The High Court has power to rehear a criminal petition dismissed for default.—23 Cr. 750 (L) (10 C. J. 80 Fd.).
26. Stay of proceedings.—Proceedings in one of two circumstances of rioting arising out of the same occurrence cannot be stayed, merely on the ground that the prosecution witnesses in one case, if examined as witnesses before the trial of the other case, in which they are accused, will be seriously prejudiced in their defence, nor can proceedings in one of such cases be stayed on the ground that after the disposal of that case, it may not be necessary to try the counter-case.—24 Cr. 235 (C).
27. Stay of criminal proceedings ordered by Civil Court.—The High Court has the power to stay criminal proceedings ordered by a Civil Court for the reason for holding the other way—31 M. 610.

18. Alteration of finding.—The High Court is competent in revision to alter a finding of conviction maintaining the sentence—(87) A. N. 93.
29. Judicial notice of Government letter.—The High Court exercised its revisional powers by taking judicial notice of a letter from the Government enquiring "whether in the opinion of the High Court, the judgment of the Magistrate was legal and equitable" and disposing of it under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—2 A. 522 : see also (87) A. N. 144.
30. Interference with orders under the Legal Practitioner's Act.—The High Court cannot interfere with an order of a subordinate Court under S. 31 of the Legal Practitioner's Act, on the ground that the finding of that Court is against the weight of evidence. It will interfere if at all under S. 15 of the High Courts Act.—21 A. 181.

31. Revisional powers of the High Court as affected by S. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897)—See 1 L. B. 68.
32. Order of discharge can be set aside in revision.—The High Court has power under S. 439 read with S. 423 Cr. P. C. to revise an order of discharge passed by a Presidency Magistrate and to direct a further enquiry, if there are good reasons for doing so, although no question of jurisdiction arises in the case (20 C. N. 1128 : 27 B. 84). An order of discharge, due to misconception of the law, may be set aside under S. 439 (114 P. L. 1912).
33. All forms of judicial injustice within High Court's power of rectification.—There is no form of judicial injustice which the High Court, if need be, cannot reach under the Charter Act—12 C. N. 678.

S. 440.

Notes.

Applicant absconding after grant of bail.—A person who applies for revision to the High Court, and on being released on bail, disappears and is not to be found, is not entitled to be heard through his pleader and the High Court may refuse to proceed with his application—24 Cr. 240 (A).

S. 441.

Notes.

S. 441 does not abrogate the provisions of ss. 263 or S. 370—S. 441 does not abrogate the terms of S. 263 or S. 370. It merely allows the Presidency

Magistrate to supplement the reasons which have already been stated under S. 263 and 370—24 Cr. 84 (M).

PART VIII

SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS

SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO CASES IN WHICH EUROPEAN AND INDIAN BRITISH SUBJECTS ARE CONCERNED.

443. (1) Where, in the course of the trial outside a presidency town of any offence punishable with imprisonment, the accused person, at any time before he is committed for trial under section 213 or is asked to show cause under section 213 or enters on his defence under section 236, as the case may be, claims that the case ought to be tried under the provisions of this Chapter, the Magistrate inquiring into or trying the case, after making such inquiry as he thinks necessary, and after allowing the accused person reasonable time within which to adduce evidence in support of his claim, shall if he is satisfied—
- (a) that the complainant and the accused persons or any of them are respectively Europeans and Indian British subjects or Indian and European British subjects, or
- (b) that, in view of the connection with the case of both an European British subject and an Indian British subject, it is expedient for the ends of justice that the case should be tried under the

- (5A)), conferring power on a High Court exercising revisional jurisdiction under S. 439, to allow any person to compound any offence which he is competent to compound under S. S. 315. The latest case laying down a contrary proposition is 3 Pat. 458 which follows 43 C. 1143 : 18 C. N. 1212 : 29 M. J. 621 : 37 A. 127. All these rulings are now therefore obsolete.
13. Order under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—Under the revisional powers conferred by the Cr. P. C. the High Court has no authority to interfere with an order made by a subordinate Court granting or refusing sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—2 L. 303(20 C. 552 Fd.).
 14. High Court will insist on lower Courts having summons and warrants properly executed.—It is the business of a Court to see that its summonses and warrants are duly executed and if the accused insists on the Court issuing process for the attendance of his witnesses, he has done all that the law requires of him. Where the Magistrate has disposed of the case without compelling the defence witnesses to attend, the High Court will remand the case for disposal in accordance with law after hearing those witnesses.—19 A. J. 945.
 15. Quashing proceedings in revision before the trial takes place.—Where an accused person is only "were allowed to continue—(23 Cr. 429 (L)). A High Court has the power to set aside in revision an order of a Magistrate charging the accused with an offence but it should exercise the power only in exceptional cases. (24 Cr. 118 (L). 33 P. R. 1910).
 16. Objection that Magistrate has failed to comply with S. 342 may be raised in revision.—An objection that the Magistrate has failed to comply with the requirements of S. 342 of the Cr. P. C. raises a point of law and may be taken for the first time at the hearing of an application for revision, although it was not urged in the Courts below, and is not set forth in the application.—3 Pat. T. 347.
 17. Interference with sentences.—The sentence to be passed in each case after conviction must be left to the Court which tried the case.
 18. Enhancement of sentence.—The High Court will not as a rule interfere to enhance a sentence of imprisonment. But where the offence is of a serious nature having far-reaching consequences, and the sentence is manifestly inadequate the High Court would enhance the sentence, even when the convict has taken place after the lapse of three years after the offence was committed.—4 S. 86.
 19. Interference with orders of Revenue Courts.—The High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere as the District Registrar had acted as a Revenue Court, and that the proper remedy was to obtain a reversal of the order of the District Registrar by the Board of Revenue or by a decree of a Civil Court.—23 Cr. 415 (Pat.).
 20. Retrial to supply omission to record evidence of previous conviction.—Where the omission to record evidence of previous conviction is a mere oversight, the Court may order a retrial to supply the omission.—1879 : 12 P. R. 1874.
 21. Stay of proceedings pending result of Civil litigation.—It cannot be said that, as a general rule, a proceeding in Criminal Court should be stayed, pending a decision of a Civil Suit in regard to the same subject matter. The Legislature has given to a Magistrate the power to regulate the proceedings of his own Court and discretion should ordinarily be exercised in favour of the accused.
 - 8 C. N. xxv : 9 C. N. cxlii : 10 C. N. cxlv : cxvi : 14 C. N. cxxxi : 31 C. 818 : 30 M. 220.
 22. Conversion of finding of acquittal to one of conviction.—The meaning of S. 439 (4) Cr. P. C. is that, where an accused person has been acquitted on all charges he is not to be convicted, but if he has been convicted at all, S. 439(4) does not apply to him. 20 C. O. 44 (37 M. 119 Fd.) : 24 Cr. 17 (M). 24 Cr. 120 (Pesh.).
 23. Note.—(1) In Lahore, it has been held that the Court clearly has power, on the revision side, to set aside even an order for acquittal, and may well do so when the order is based on a misapprehension of the law.—3 Cr. 699 (L) (3 P. R. 1918 Fd.).
 24. Note (2) "As a rule, an interference is not made in revision with an order of acquittal on the application of a private party, except where such interference is imperatively demanded in the interests of public justice, or where the procedure adopted is so irregular or illegal as to vitiate the whole trial."—Kanhaya Lal J. C. in 24 Cr. 189 (O) (See 37A 110 : 24 O. C. 157).
 25. Power to rehear criminal petition.—The High Court has power to rehear a criminal petition dismissed for default.—23 Cr. 750 (L) (10 C. J. 80 Fd.).
 26. Stay of proceedings.—Proceedings in one of two counter-cases of rioting arising out of the same occurrence cannot be stayed, merely on the ground that the prosecution witnesses in one case, if examined as witnesses before the trial of the other case, in which they are accused, will be seriously prejudiced in their defence, nor can proceedings in one of such cases be stayed on the ground that after the disposal of that case, it may not be necessary to try the counter-case.—24 Cr. 233 (C).
 27. Stay of criminal proceedings ordered by Civil Court.—The High Court has the power to stay criminal proceedings ordered by a Civil Court. Criminal power itself no district specified in the notification shall be tried as if they were warrant-cases in accordance with the provisions hereinafter in this Chapter laid down for the trial of warrant-cases.

446. (1) Where a Magistrate or a Sessions Judge decides under section 413 that a case ought to be tried under the provisions of this Chapter and the case is a warrant-case, the Magistrate inquiring into or trying the case shall, if he does not discharge the accused under section 209 or section 253, as the case may be, commit the case for trial to the Court of Session, whether the case is or is not exclusively triable by that Court.

(2) Where an accused is committed to the Court of Session under sub-sec. (1), the Court shall proceed to try the case as if the accused had required to be tried in accordance with the provisions of section 275, and the provisions of that section and the other provisions of Chapter XXIII, so far as they are applicable, shall apply accordingly :

Provided that where the trial before the Court of Session would in the ordinary course be with the aid of assessors and the accused, or all of them jointly, require to be tried in accordance with the provisions of S 231A, the trial shall be held with the aid of assessors all of whom shall in the case of European British subjects, be persons who are Europeans or Americans or, in the case of Indian British subjects, be Indians.

447. If at any stage of an inquiry or trial under this Code it appears to be the Magistrate that the case is or might be held to be a case which ought to be tried under the provisions of this Chapter, he shall forthwith inform the accused person of his rights under this Chapter.

ferences to the Sessions Judge shall be construed as references to the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon.

Special provisions relating to appeal

449 (1) Where—

(a) a case is tried by jury in a High Court or Court of Session under the provisions of this Chapter, or

(b) a case which would otherwise have been tried under the provisions of this Chapter is under this Code committed to or transferred to the High Court and is tried by jury in the High Court, or

(c) a case is trial by jury in the High Court in a presidency-town and the High Court grants leave to appeal on the ground that the case would, if it had been tried outside a presidency-town, have been triable under the provisions of this Chapter, then notwithstanding anything contained in section 418 or section 423, sub-section (2), or in the letters patent of any High Court, an appeal may lie to the High Court on a matter of fact as well as on a matter of law.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in the letters patent of any High Court, the Local Government may direct the Public Prosecutor to present on appeal to the High Court from an original order of acquittal passed by the High Court in any such trial as is referred to in sub-sec (1).

(3) An appeal under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall, where the High Court consists of more than one judge, be heard by two judges of the High Court.

Changes introduced.

It will be seen that Chapter XXXIII has been extensively modified. No less than fourteen sections (450 to 463) have been repealed, by the Criminal Law Amendment Act (XII of 1922). It will be seen that Act XII of 1922, besides recasting the entire Chapter, has also introduced several new sections in the Code, viz., 29A, 31A, 284A, 285A, 491A, 526A and 528A to 528D, besides repealing sections 111, 336, 416 and sections 450 to 463. Sections 274, 275, 284, 323, 391, 393, 443-9, 478, 480, 491 and 534 have been amended to meet the altered situation brought about by the Act. The principle that an accused person is entitled to be tried by a jury composed of his peers has apparently been recognised but experience alone can shew whether the changes will put an end to the deplorable instances of miscarriage of justice in the past, due to perverse verdict of the jury based mainly on racial grounds.

Nature of the changes—The changes perpetuate the special privileges enjoyed hitherto by Europeans and Americans in Criminal trials in which they figure as accused persons. The only changes of note are that an Indian Magistrate may try summons cases when sitting with a European Magistrate (S. 445) and Sessions Judges need not be European British Subjects. The decision as to the whether the accused is a European British Subject or not now rests with the Sessions Judge as a final referee. [443 (2)] and a special appeal against acquittals is provided for (S. 449).

CHAPTER XXXIV.LUNATICS.

464. (1) When a Magistrate holding an inquiry or a trial has reason to believe that the accused is of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate shall inquire into the fact of such unsoundness, and shall cause such person to be examined by the Civil Surgeon of the district or such medical officer as the Local Government directs, and thereupon shall examine such Surgeon or other officer as a witness, and shall reduce the examination to writing.

Procedure in case of accused being lunatic.

(1A) Pending such examination and inquiry, the Magistrate may deal with the accused in accordance with the provisions of section 466.

(2) If such Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, he shall record a finding to that effect and shall postpone further proceedings in the case.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The clause (1A) introduces a salutary provision. It enables the Magistrate to release the lunatic on bail pending enquiry
- (2) "The words 'record a finding' make it obligatory on the Magistrate to take and record sufficient evidence to enable him to come to a decision on the point.

465. (1) If any person committed for trial before a Court of Session or a High Court appears to the Court at his trial to be of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, the jury, or the Court with the aid of assessors, shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness and incapacity, and if the jury or Court, as the case may be, is satisfied of the fact, the Judge shall record a finding to that effect, and shall postpone further proceedings in the case and the jury, if any, shall be discharged.
- (2) The trial of the act of the unsoundness of mind and incapacity of the accused shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

Changes Introduced.

word "finding" is substituted for the word "judgment" (see Note under S 464) The provision for the discharge of the jury supplies a decided omission.

466. (1) Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, whether the case is one in which bail may be taken or not, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required before the Magistrate or Court or such officer as the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf.
- (2) If the case is one in which, in the opinion of the Magistrate or Court, bail should not be taken, or if sufficient security is not given, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, shall order the accused to be detained in safe custody in such place and manner as he or it may think fit, and shall report the action taken to the Local Government.

Provided that no order for the detention of the accused in a lunatic asylum shall be made otherwise than in accordance with such rules as the Local Government may have made under the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The Legislature having since 1916 made an amendment of S. 35 (2) of the Indian Lunacy Act 1912, the provision as to the Local Government's power to order the confinement of the accused in a lunatic asylum, etc is superfluous. The new sub-sec (2) therefore merely refers to "such rules as the Local Government may have made under the Indian Lunacy Act 1912." "We would draw attention to the fact that the word "detain" is in the Code, being substituted for the word "confine" (Joint Com 1922)
- (2) The first sub-clause as amended now empowers the Court to release the accused on bail even in non bailable cases.

468. (1) If, when the accused appears or is again brought before the Magistrate or the Court as the case may be, the Magistrate or Court considers him capable of making his defence, the inquiry or trial shall proceed.

Procedure on accused appearing before Magistrate or Court.

- (2) If the Magistrate or Court considers the accused to be still incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 461 or sec. 465, as the case may be, and if the accused is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, shall deal with such accused in accordance with the provisions of section 466.

Changes introduced.

The amendment supplies one of the three necessary alternatives left out by the drafter of the former Codes. A person may be either capable of making his defence (sub-sec. 1), or may be temporarily incapable of doing so (sub-sec. 2). He may also be incapable of making his defence for all times being a confirmed lunatic." In the latter case he is to be dealt with under S. 466. This contingency is now provided for by the words "and if the accused—S. 466" added to sub clause (a).

471. (1) Whenever the finding states that the accused person committed the act alleged, the Magistrate or Court before whom or which the trial has been held, shall, if such act would, but for the incapacity found, have, constituted an offence, order such person to be detained in safe custody in such place and manner as the Magistrate or Court thinks fit, and shall report the action taken to the Local Government.

Provided that no order for the detention of the accused in a lunatic asylum shall be made otherwise than in accordance with such rules as the Local Government may have made under the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912.

(2) The Local Government may empower the officer in charge of the jail in which a person is confined under the provisions of section 466 or this section, to discharge all or any of the functions of the Inspector General of Prisons under * * section 473 or section 471

Power of Local Government to relieve Inspector General of certain functions.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The words "the finding" substituted for the word "the verdict" as found in the preceding section.
- (2) The word "kept" was not a suitable term. The proper expression is "detained" as the final orders rest with the Local Government.
- (3) The addition of the words "and shall report the action taken to the Local Government" is necessary as the order of detention is not final until it is confirmed by the Local Government.
- (4) The reasons for the proviso is given by the Select Committee of 1916 as follows: "We have also made it clear that a detention order must be in accordance with the rules made under the Lunacy Act 1912. "With regard to the first proposed proviso to sub-sec. (1) of S. 471, we note that the Local Government has power under S. 475 to deliver lunatics to relatives after an order has been passed under S. 471, and the Local Government can only exercise its powers under that section on receipt of expert advice. We do not think it desirable to enable a Court to exercise the same power on its own responsibility. (Joint Com. 1922).

Notes.

1. Obligation to keep an order under Section 471

A Court to send the accused to a lunatic asylum. All that is necessary is to see that such safeguards are taken, as would keep the accused from mischief, and it is permissible to order the accused to be kept under the control and custody of his parents—42 M. J. 72.

2. Subsequent Sanity of the accused—Where it is clear from the evidence, the previous and family history of the accused, and want of any real motive for the murder itself, that the accused committed it while she was not accountable for her actions, it is the absolute duty of the Court after acquitting the accused, to make an order in accordance with the statutory provisions of the law. If as a result of the treatment in Lunatic Asylum, the person becomes comparatively well again that is not a matter which concerns the Court. The future orders for the disposition of the accused does not rest with Court, but with the Local Government. (The High Court directed the accused to be kept in safe custody in the jail at Muttra, or if the Superintendent of such jail thought better, in the Lunatic Asylum at Agra, pending further orders in the case by the Local Government)—24 Cr. 225 (A).

472. Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General. [Rep. by Act IV of 1912.]

473. If such person is detained under the provisions of section 466, and in the case of a person detained in a jail, the Inspector-General of Prisons, or, in the case of a person detained in a lunatic asylum, the visitors of such asylum or any two of them shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making his defence, he shall be taken before the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, at such time as the Magistrate or Court appoints, and the Magistrate or Court shall deal with such person under the provisions of section 468; and the certificate of, such Inspector-General or visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Changes introduced.

The amendments are only drafting amendments.

474. (1) If such person is detained under the provisions of section 466 or section 471, and such Procedure where lunatic confined under section 466 or 471 is declared fit to be discharge.

Inspector-General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be released without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon order him to be released or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public lunatic asylum if he has not been already sent to such an asylum; and, in case it orders him to be transferred to an asylum, may appoint a Commission, consisting of a judicial and two medical officers.

(2) Such Commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person, taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, which may order his release or detention as it thinks fit.

Changes introduced.

The amendments in this section are drafting amendments.

475. (1) Whenever any relative or friend of any person detained under the provisions of section 466

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative or friend.

or section 471 desires that he shall be delivered to his care and custody, the Local Government may, upon the application of such relative or friend and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Local Government that the person delivered shall—

(a) be properly taken care of and prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and

(b) be produced for the inspection of such officer, and at such times and places, as the Local Government may direct, and

(c) in the case of a person detained under section 466, be produced when required before such Magistrate or Court, order such person to be delivered to such relative or friend.

(2) If the person so delivered is accused of any offence the trial of which has been postponed by reason of his being of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, and the inspecting officer referred to in sub-section (1), clause (b), certifies at any time to the Magistrate or Court that such person of making his defence, such Magistrate or Court shall call upon the relative or friend to whom such accused was delivered to produce him before the Magistrate or Court; and, upon such production, the Magistrate or Court shall proceed in accordance with the provisions of section 168, and the certificate of the inspecting officer shall be receivable as evidence.

Changes introduced.

The section as redrafted is a decided improvement on the original section. The provisions are set forth in clear and explicit terms. Between them the Ss. 473, 474 and 475 of the Code appear to provide for all contingencies including absolute release or release on security.

CHAPTER XXXV.

PROCEEDINGS IN CASE OF CERTAIN OFFENCES AFFECTING THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

476. (1) When any Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court, is, whether on application made to it in this behalf or otherwise, of opinion that it is expedient in the interests of justice that an inquiry should be made into any offence referred to in section 195, sub-section (1), clause (b) or clause (c), which appears to have been committed in or in relation to a proceeding in that Court, such Court may, after such preliminary inquiry, if any, as it thinks necessary, record a finding to that effect and make a complaint thereof in writing signed by the presiding officer of the Court, and shall forward the same to a Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction, and may take sufficient security for the appearance of the accused before such Magistrate or, if the alleged offence is non-bailable, may, if it thinks necessary so to do, send the accused in custody to such Magistrate, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such Magistrate.

For the purpose of this sub-section, a Chief Presidency Magistrate shall be deemed to be a Magistrate of the first class.

(2) Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law and as if upon complaint made under section 200..

(3) Where it is brought to the notice of such Magistrate, or of any other Magistrate to whom the case may have been transferred, that an appeal is pending against the decision arrived at in the judicial proceeding out of which the matter has arisen, he may, if he thinks fit, at any stage adjourn the hearing of the case until such appeal is decided.

Changes introduced.

We have redrafted S. 476 and added two new Sections 476A and 476B in accordance with our note to clause 36 (S. 195) These new clauses lay down the the procedure to be followed in the case of all complaints by a Court in respect of offences referred to in S. 195 (b) and (c).

"S. 476 (1) provides that the complaint is to be made to the nearest First class Magistrate having jurisdiction—a term which is also to include a Chief

"S. 476A allows the complaint to be made either by the Court before which the offence is alleged to have been committed, or by a Superior Court as defined in S. 195(3) and either on its own motion or upon the application of a party.

"The explanation to this section makes it clear that such application may be made in any criminal proceedings by the Crown.

"S. 476B gives a limited right of appeal to either party to the Superior Courts. The substitution of a complaint by a Court for the old sanction "pro-is no reason why the matter should not be investigated in the ordinary course. The same limited right of appeal against a refusal on the part of the sub-ordinate Court to make a complaint, may, we think, be accorded to a party interested, to meet the case of a perverse refusal to prosecute by the subordinate Court "

"For reasons indicated above we think that the revisional jurisdiction of the Courts should also be excluded" (Sel. Com. 1916).

"The changes that we have made in the proposed S. 476 are not of great importance. We have provided that a Court, can act on application made to it or suo motu and after such preliminary enquiry if any, as it thinks necessary. For the words "committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding" we have substituted the phraseology used in the proposed new S. 195. We have substituted "may make a complaint" for "shall make a complaint" and in view of the criticism of the words "nearest first class Magistrate" we have provided that a complaint should be sent to a first class Magistrate having jurisdiction. For the words "if he thinks expedient in the interests of justice" which we think might hamper a Magistrate in the exercise of his powers of adjournment, we have substituted "if he thinks fit." In order to give effect to the decision arrived at, in our consideration of clause 114, that proceedings under S. 476, etc., should be subject to revision, we have introduced words which will make it necessary for the Court to record an order.

"We have entirely redrafted Ss. 476A and 476B. S. 476A in our redraft is now confined to the case where a superior Court takes action, after no action

Notes—It will be seen that Ss. 476, 476A and 476B incorporate practically the whole of the deleted provisions of S. 195 supra, with this change that whereas S. 195 applied to cases of sanction granted to private parties, S. 476, as modified, gives power only to Courts to deal directly with offences against public justice and contempts of Court. Private them are too often used to wreak vengeance or satisfy a private grudge. Stress has been laid in a current decision, on the importance of scrutinizing application for sanction in order to find out whether the sanction is being sought for an ulterior motive. But this is easier said than done. In the summary proceedings held in these matters the Courts are not able in a majority of cases, to will be so worked as to prevent barefaced attempts at fraud and perjury by litigants and their witnesses which unfortunately form a feature of too many trials.

Notes.

1. Court ought to act directly.—As a rule, a Court ought not to give sanction to a private individual to prosecute for perjury, if the Court before whom perjury has been committed, is of opinion, that it should be tried, it should, under S. 476 Cr. P. C. order the prosecution of the person whom it thinks guilty.—22 Cr. 393(A).
2. Meaning of the word "Court"—The word "Court" in S. 476 Cr. P. C. includes the successor of the Judge before whom the alleged offence was committed or to whose notice the commission of it was brought in the course of a judicial proceeding—19 A. J. 819 (37 C. 642 (F.B.) Fd.): 65 P. L. 1922 7 P. R. 1913 Dist. 24 Cr. 180 (L): (6 P. R. 1909 Dist.) 34 A. 393 32 B. 194: 29 M. 331.

3. Discovery of offence in the course of a subsequent proceeding.—The discovery of the commission of an offence committed with reference to a judicial proceeding may not be made till after the judicial proceeding in which it is said to have been committed is over. It may not be brought to light in the course of an enquiry made in some cognate matter in another judicial proceeding.

It would be stultifying the scope of S. 476, to hold, that a court is not competent to deal with such an offence, unless the discovery is made in the course of the very proceeding in which it has been committed—5 O. J. 622.

4. Duty of Courts to take action under S. 476.—It is the duty of every Court to take action of its own prosecution resulting in a conviction—23 Cr. 609(N) (10 N. 177 and 9 N. 184 R.) see also 23 Cr. 605 (N).

5. Can a Court take action after it is functus officio? "The view which I take is that under the provisions of S. 476 Cr. P. C. proceedings can undoubtedly be taken by a Court after the decision in the substantive case has been delivered and the Court is functus officio in respect of the decision of the substantive case."—Stuart J. in 44 A 642 ((01)A N. 177 Fd.).
6. Can the Court act in the face of opposite conclusion by another Court—Does the circumstance that another Court, which passed the final orders in the case, arrived at a different conclusion on the merits, take away the jurisdiction of the Court, which practically heard all the evidence before the case was transferred for decision to the 2nd. Court; to pass orders under S. 476 Cr. P. C.?—Stuart J in 23 Cr 603 (A) answered the question in the negative.
7. Notice when necessary—It is not necessary that a Court should give notice of its intention to take action under S. 476, Cr. P. C. against a party to a suit. But a notice is necessary where the person proceeded against had no opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses on whose evidence his prosecution has been ordered. 44 M. J. 74: 19 A J. 56: 22 Cr. 233 (Pat).
8. Accused entitled to cross-examine witnesses—A person who is called upon to show cause under S. 476 Cr. P. C. has a right to place his case before Court, either by offering evidence on his own behalf, or by cross-examining the witnesses on behalf of the opposite party.—6 Pat. J. 146.
9. Enquiry must be made and order passed by the same Court—Either the trying Magistrate or the Court hearing the appeal is competent, after the necessary notice and enquiry, to direct the prosecution of a witness for perjury, but the appellate Court cannot direct the Trial Magistrate to make the enquiry and upon his report, order the prosecution. The enquiry must be made and the order passed by the same Court—24 O. C. 235.
10. When no preliminary enquiry is necessary—Where the Court granting the sanction to prosecute is already sufficiently acquainted with the facts of the case, there is no necessity for a preliminary enquiry before granting sanction—(82) A. N. 20.
11. Order which is not in the terms of S. 476—The following order: "A copy of this order will be sent to the District Magistrate... with a request that he will cause proceedings to be instituted against the other three persons. If the District Magistrate decides to institute proceedings, he should inform the C. I. D. who investigated the matter" was held to be an order not in the terms of S. 476—23 Cr. 291 (A).

12. Order must set forth elements of the offence.—A Magistrate should not sanction a prosecution under S. 193, unless he thinks that all the elements necessary for a conviction are present. An order which does not set forth all the elements of an offence covered by it is therefore, without jurisdiction. (14 C. N. 234 (239) Fd.)—3 Pat. T. 103 (Pat.).
13. Conditional order is illegal—It has been held under S. 193 that no sanction can be granted of a provisional character in case certain conditions are satisfied in the future. It is the duty of the Magistrate before granting sanction to satisfy himself that there was, at the time of the order a prima facie case against the petitioners—35 M. 471.
14. Order must contain assignments of perjury—An order directing under S. 476 Cr. P. C. the prosecution of a person under S. 199 I. P. C. is bad if it does not contain the assignments of perjury, inasmuch as the accused is entitled to know the exact words which are alleged to have been used by him—21 Cr. 197 (A).
15. The words "committed before it"—in S. 476 Cr. P. C. are qualified by the words "in the course of a judicial proceeding" where applications containing forged signatures of a pleader were filed for return of documents, after the original suit and the subsequent proceedings in execution were finally disposed of, held, that these applications were not put in the course of judicial proceeding within the meaning of S. 476 Cr. P. C.—24 Cr 202 (C).
16. Prosecution for perjury—A person cannot be convicted of perjury for having acted maliciously or for having failed to make a reasonable enquiry in regard to the facts alleged by him to be true. It must be proved that he made some statement which he knew to be false or which he did not believe to be true. (22 Cr. 303 (A): 36 A 362) Where a question is put to a witness which is absolutely irrelevant and ought not to have been put to him, a false answer would not render him liable to prosecution for perjury (2 Pat. T. 339) A prosecution for a false declaration lies only when the same is made in reference to a judicial proceeding (2 L. J. 535) where a witness makes a statement which is false and at once admits this, and then states what is the real truth, he should not be prosecuted for giving false evidence (230 P. L. 1911) A Joint Magistrate, after dismissing a complaint directed the prosecut on of the complainant under S. 211 I. P. C. The complainant was convicted by the lower Court but acquitted on appeal. Thereupon the Joint Magistrate, who had in the meantime become the District Magistrate, ordered his

1. Resistance to attachment—legality of warrant—Where the warrant for the attachment of property was signed by the Sheristadar of the Court "by order" and was addressed to the Bailif Nazir of the Court, held, that a resistance to the execution of such warrant, come within the purview of S. 476 Cr. P. C.—3 U. P. (Pat.) 41 (3 Pat. J. 636 Fd.)
2. False report to the Police—A report was made to the Police but on enquiry the alleged act was found to be a mere accident. The Police dropped the matter and did not report for any action against the informant and the case was entered as a "mistake of fact"; held that there was no complaint and no judicial enquiry could be held under the law. An order directing the prosecution of the importance under S. 211 I. P. C. was therefore illegal.—(2 Pat. T. 202)
3. Prosecution under S. 465 I. P. C.—An order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. for prosecution of an offence under S. 465 I. P. C. can be passed also against a person who is not a party to the Civil suit—e.g. a witness. 24 O. C. 367 (40 A. 24. 43 B. 300. 1 Pat. J. 293 Fd.)
- Judicial proceedings within S. 476.
20. (a) A proceeding under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act is not a judicial proceeding within the meaning of S. 476.—15 C. N. 269
21. (b) Proceedings in execution of decrees of Civil Court are judicial proceedings.—121 C. J. 618.
22. (c) Proceedings before a Collector acting under S. 69 sub-sec (3) of Berhal Tenancy Act are judicial proceedings.—48 C. 1086.
23. Nature of order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—An order under S. 476 is not really a complaint though in the nature of a complaint.—3 Bur. T. 119.
24. Prosecution on basis of bond not produced in Court.—N and S were prosecuted at the instance of C. under S. 417 I. P. C. on the allegation that he (C) had been deceived into a compromise on the basis of two forged bonds produced in two Civil suits by the bonds, were merely examined by a Court witness but not produced in Courts by C or given in evidence, and N and S were discharged. The Magistrate subsequently ordered the prosecution of N and S under S. 471 P. C. Held, as proceedings to which N and S. were parties, the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to take action! under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—3 P. L. 1920.

25. Prosecution orders under S. 476 will not be stayed pending appeal—When an experienced Civil Court has ordered prosecution under S. 476, the proceedings before the Magistrate will not be stayed pending the decision in the appeal.—23 Cr. 84 (A); But see 31 M. 500 below
26. Power to stay proceedings—The High Court has power to stay proceedings under S. 476 (ordered by a Civil Court) in Criminal Courts till the appeal from that Court is disposed of.—31 M. 610
27. Revision of orders under S. 476 by Civil Court—

C. 367)

28. Orders by Revenue Courts—The High Court has no Jurisdiction, under S. 439 Cr. P. C. to entertain an application to revise an order passed by a Revenue Court, under S. 476 of that Code. Such an order, however, is open to revision under S. 115, Civil Procedure Code—6 Pat. J. 178 (See 40 C. 477 (F.B.))
29. Revision only in cases of serious irregularity—The power of revision can only be exercised where there has been some error of law, irregularity, abuse or failure to exercise jurisdiction, and not merely because the High Court might form a different opinion on the case from that formed by the Court below.—18 P. R. 1902.

476A. The power conferred on Civil, Revenue and Criminal Courts by section 476, sub-section (1), may be exercised, in respect of any offence referred to therein and alleged to have been committed in or in relation to any proceeding in any such Court, by the Court to which such former Court is subordinate within the meaning of section 195, sub-section (3), in any case in which such former Court has neither made a complaint under section 476 in respect of such offence or rejected an application for the making of such complaint; and where the superior Court makes such complaint, the provisions of section 476 shall apply accordingly.

476B Any person on whose application any Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court has refused to make a complaint under section 476 or section 476A, or against whom such a complaint has been made, may appeal to the Court to which such former Court is subordinate within the meaning of section 195, sub-section (3), and the superior Court may thereupon after notice to the parties concerned direct the withdrawal of the complaint, or, as the case may be, itself make the complaint which the subordinate Court might have been under section 476, and if it makes such complaint the provisions of that section shall apply accordingly.

of the Court on the same day may, if it thinks fit, take cognizance of the offence and sentence the offender to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, unless such fine be sooner paid.

(2) Nothing in section 291 or in Chapter XXXIII shall be deemed to apply to proceedings under this section.

Changes introduced.

This section has been amended by the Criminal Law amendment Act (XII of 1923).

Notes.

Particulars to be recorded.—A Court proceeding under S. 480 Cr. P. C. must, in addition to other particulars, record the nature of the interruption or insult attributed to the accused. "It is obvious that the procedure prescribed by S. 480 Cr. P. C. punishing a contempt committed in facie curiae is of a summary character, and the Court taking action under that section is therefore, required to record certain particulars mentioned in S. 481 Cr. P. C. It was probably intended that these particulars, if properly recorded, would provide a safeguard against an abuse of power vested in Court and enable the Appellate Court to decide whether there was any material to warrant the conviction."—Shadi Lal C. J. in 2 L. 308.

Contempts of subordinate Courts.—The question as to whether the High Court can take cognizance of consisting of Jenkins C. J., Mukherjee J. and opinion, such defects as exists, at present, in the law relating to contempts of courts other than the High Courts can be removed only by Legislature and that it is desirable to remove them.

Imputation against trying Judge in written statement.—The accused, while opening his defence, put in a written statement complaining that he was being tried by a prejudiced Judge. When asked to withdraw this expression, he refused. Held, that the accused was guilty of the offence of contempt under S. 228 I. P. C. as his intention was clearly to offer an insult to the Court—46 B. 973.

Towns have the inherent Common Law powers in connection with matters of contempt which were exercised by the old Court of King's Bench and are now exercised by the King's Bench Division

487. (1) Except as provided in sections 480 and 485, no Judge of a Criminal Court or Magistrate, other than a Judge of a High Court * * * * * shall try any person for any offence referred to in section 195, when such offence is committed before himself or in contempt of his authority, or is brought under his notice as such Judge or Magistrate in the course of a judicial proceeding.

(2) Nothing in section 476 or section 482 shall prevent a Magistrate empowered to commit to the Court of Session or High Court from himself committing any case to such Court.

Changes introduced.

OF THE MAINTENANCE OF WIVES AND CHILDREN.

488 (1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain his wife or his legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain itself, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate not exceeding one hundred rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate from time to time directs.

(2) Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order, or if so ordered from the date of the application for maintenance.

(3) If any person so ordered fails without sufficient cause to comply with the order, and such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in manner hereinbefore provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month's allowance remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made :

Enforcement of order. Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing.

Provided, further, that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due.

(4) No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery, or if without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

(5) On proof that any wife in whose favour an order has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order.

(6) All evidence under this Chapter shall be taken in the presence of the husband or father, as the case may be, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in the presence of his pleader, and shall be recorded in the manner prescribed in the case of summons-cases :

Provided that if the Magistrate is satisfied that he is wilfully avoiding service, or wilfully neglects to attend the Court, the Magistrate may proceed to hear and determine the case ex parte. Any order so made may be set aside for good cause shown on application made within three months from the date thereof.

(7) The Court in dealing with applications under this section shall have power to make such order as to costs as may be just.

(8) Proceedings under this section may be taken against any person in any district where he resides or is, or where he last resided with his wife, or as the case may be, the mother of the illegitimate child.

Changes introduced

- (1) "We notice that the original Bill proposed to raise from Rs. 50 to Rs. 100 the amount awardable as maintenance under S 489. This proposal was rejected by the committee of 1916 but in view of the passing of the Maintenance Orders Enforcement Act 1921 which enables our Courts to enforce summary orders up to £ 2 a week, we think the limit in our own law might well be raised to Rs 100" (Joint Com. 1922).
- (2) By substituting the words "without sufficient cause" for the word "wilfully" in cl. (3), the Legislature has removed an unnecessary restriction of the operation of the clause.
- (3) The new proviso to cl. (3) by laying down a time limit to the enforcement of maintenance orders according to the nature of the case.
- cause, as we think that some period of limitation is required for the recovery of outstanding arrears." (Sel. Com. 1915).
- (4) Sub-sec (7) has been omitted in view of the amendment to S 340 supra which makes the retention of this clause unnecessary.
- (5) The amendment to sub-sec (9) is a drafting amendment.

1. Jurisdiction—S. 488 (9) Cr. P. C. requires that an application for maintenance should be made either in the district where the husband resides, or at the place where he last resided with his wife. Such residence does not include casual visits by a person to the house of his mother in law where his wife happens to be at the time—24 O. C. 249.
2. Meaning of "child"—"There is no limit of age placed by S. 488 for the maintenance allowance awarded under that section to be paid. Under the English law, the age is specified under various statutes from 13 to 16 years. But as there is no express specification in the Indian Law, no limit can at all be placed. It has, however, been held that maintenance is to be allowed till the child can maintain itself." Jwala Prasad J.—2 Pat. T. 109 (28 P. W. 1910; 9 L. B. 49 Fd.).
3. Note—The word "child" has been held to be a person who has not attained the age of majority—(37 M. 565; 23 Cr. 167 (N)). Under S. 488 Cr. P. C. a child who has attained majority is not entitled to claim maintenance from his father, as he is capable of earning his own livelihood (23 Cr. 167 (N)).
4. Refusal to cohabit no ground for granting separate maintenance—"I do not think there is anything in the Code which compels the Criminal Court to award separate maintenance to a wife whom the husband agrees to protect and maintain in a manner suitable to her position in life because he refuses to cohabit with her."—Kumaraswami Sastri J. in (1922 M. N. 265 (14 B. 269; 17 M. 260 (263) Fd.)
5. Incompatibility of temper no ground—Incompatibility of temper is no ground for claiming separate maintenance. A wife is not entitled to claim separate maintenance on the husband a contracting a second marriage and compelling her to live in one apartment with the second wife—31 P. R. 1882.
6. Father cannot refuse maintenance because child is not living with him—A father cannot refuse to maintain his children on the ground that they are not living with him—(12 Bur. R. 33). Even a valid divorce of the mother will not free the father from liability to maintain his children. (1 Bur. R. 198). Neither can a father refuse to maintain his children on the ground that they are living with their mother ('92-'96) U. B. 67; 69; 1 L. B. 46). There is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code for cancelling an order awarding maintenance to a child. (17 P. R. 1885).
7. Evidence as to means of husband must be taken—In a maintenance case by a wife, a Magistrate should take evidence as to the means of the husband before deciding the amount of maintenance to be granted ('83) A. N. 233).
8. "If the husband is a person of means, the Magistrate should take evidence as to the means of the husband before deciding the amount of maintenance to be granted ('83) A. N. 233).
9. Accumulation of arrears—In a case where the question arose whether arrears of maintenance for a long period should be recovered by summary procedure provided in S. 489; held, that in each case, the Magistrate ought to ascertain under what circumstances the arrears came to accumulate; and if there was no good reason why the applicant should not have applied with greater promptitude, whether it would be equitable and in accordance with the spirit of the Cr. P. C. to enforce payment of the accumulation. In the nature of things no husband can be held to be liable for arrears of maintenance for a long period. Each case is a case of fact, and the Magistrate must decide the part of the arrears, and if so, for how many years (92) U. B. 3-q21; see (99) U. B. 3-q 19; 4 Bur. R. 29.

10. Rs. 50 per month for each child.—A Magistrate may order the father to pay as much as Rs. 50 for each child, if each child is living separately with a different person; and the fact that all the children were at the time in the custody of the mother cannot affect the question of what should be paid to each child.—Bur. T. 139.
11. Can a wife contract herself out of maintenance?—The language of the section is inconsistent with a wife making a contract to absolve the husband from liability to maintain her. The object of the law is to prevent the wife from being a burden to other people, dependent on the charity of her neighbours. The fact that the husband has a lump sum down, which being properly invested, might have yielded a sufficient income to maintain her, is no answer to a claim for maintenance if it is found that the sum so paid had been run away and the wife was incapable of maintaining herself.—(95) U. R. 45.

12. Talak need not be directly addressed—According to the Hanafi Law, it is not necessary that the words of repudiation should be addressed directly to the wife to constitute a valid divorce. 537 (Cr.); See 36 C. 184; (59) A. N. 85; C. M. 22; 4 C. 588.

monthly allowance, ordered under the same section, the Magistrate may order him to pay a monthly allowance to his wife or child, the Magistrate may make such alteration in the allowance as he thinks fit: Provided that if he increases the allowance the monthly rate of one hundred rupees in the whole be not exceeded.

(2) Where it appears to the Magistrate that, in consequence of any decision of a competent Court, any order made under section 488 should be cancelled or varied, he shall cancel the order or, as the case may be, vary the same accordingly.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The amendment is consequential upon that introduced into S. 488. The Court has now a discretion to award maintenance allowance upto a limit of Rs. 100.
- (2) Sub sec (2) removes a real deficiency. Courts had, previous to the amendment, to give effect to Court decrees as having brought on "a change in the circumstances". The Code now contains no provision for the enforcement of a decision of a competent Civil Court.

Notes.

1. Divorce after the order.—Where a wife whose husband has been ordered to pay her an allowance under S. 488 Cr. P. C. is proved to have been completely and validly divorced, a Magistrate is not only bound to refuse to enforce the order under S. 489 but is also empowered to alter the amount payable under it to "nothing" under S. 489, that is to say, he can set aside the order. In such cases the Magistrate is not only competent but is bound to inquire into the fact and the validity of the divorce.—17 N. 92 (19 W. R. 73; 21 P. R. 1894 Reid. on; 19 A. 50; 5 A. 226; 5 C. 558 Dist.).
2. Meaning of "change in circumstances"—The expression "change in the circumstances" in S. 489 of the Cr. P. C. means not merely a temporary or accidental change in one of such circumstances (such as salary) but a change in all the circumstance-es connected with the conviction of the offence.—(90) 11 A. N. 32.

3. Effect of Civil Court decree on a previous order of maintenance.—Where the husband obtains a decree in Civil Court for the restitution of conjugal rights after an order under S. 488 has been passed against him, and obtained possession of the wife, held, that although a subsequent Court decree superseded a previous order for maintenance, the Criminal Courts are entitled to enforce the conditions of the decree had duly complied with. If it is proved, that the husband is still refusing to maintain the wife as a ill-treating her, it will be open to the wife to apply for enforcement of the previous order passed in her favour under S. 488 Cr. P. C.—1 P. 138 (4 1906 Fd).

S. 490.

Notes.

Divorce as ground for refusing to enforce the order.—Where a wife whose husband has been ordered to pay her an allowance under S. 488 Cr. P. C., is proved to have been completely and validly divorced, a Magistrate is bound to refuse to enforce the order.—17 N. 92; (90-02) L. B. 19.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

OF THE PUBLIC PROSECUTOR.

492. (1) The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may appoint, generally, or in any case, or for any specified class of cases, in any local area, one or more officers to be called Public Prosecutors.

(2) The District Magistrate, or, subject to the control of the District Magistrate, the Sub-divisional Magistrate, may, in the absence of the Public Prosecutor, or where no Public Prosecutor has been appointed, appoint any other person, not being an officer of police below such rank as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf to be Public prosecutor for the purpose of any case.

Changes introduced.

The special provision for cases committed for trial to the Court of Session is done away with and all cases are now placed on a footing of equality. By substituting the words "such rank as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf" for the words "the rank of Assistant District Superintendent" the Code gives an ampler margin of discretion to local Government. "There is a variety of nomenclature and we think it better to leave to the Local Governments to prescribe the rank of Police-Officers who may be appointed Public Prosecutors for the purposes of a particular case. (Joint Com. 1922).

494. Any Public Prosecutor may, with the consent of the Court, in cases tried by jury before the return of the verdict, and in other cases before the judgment is pronounced, withdraw from the prosecution of any person either generally or in respect of any one or more of the offences for which he is tried, and upon such withdrawal,—

- (a) if it is made before a charge has been framed, the accused shall be discharged in respect of such offence or offences
- (b) if it is made after a charge has been framed, or when under this Code no charge is required, he shall be acquitted in respect of such offence or offences.

Changes introduced.

- (1) "We propose to omit at the commencement of S. 494 the words "appointed by the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government." This will confer the power of withdrawal on any Public Prosecutor as defined in S. 4(1) and will, draw from all or any of the charges as he thinks fit. This meets the objection raised in 2 C. J. xviii which is now overruled.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

OF BAIL.

498. When any person other than a person accused of a non-liaible offence is arrested or detained without warrant by an officer in charge of a police-station, or appears or is brought before a Court, and is prepared at any time while in the custody of such officer or at any stage of the proceedings before such Court to give bail, such person shall be released on bail, Provided that such officer or Court, if he or it thinks fit, may, instead of taking bail from such person, discharge him on his appearance as hereinafter provided.

Provided, further, that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 497, sub-section (4), or section 117, sub-section (3),

Changes introduced.

The amendment gives legislative confirmation to the view taken in 22 M. J. 337 and 32 C. 80 which lay down that the provisions of S. 107 cl. (4) are not subject to or controlled by s. 496 Cr. P. C.

(3) An officer or a Court releasing any person on bail under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall record in writing his or its reasons for so doing.

(4) If, at any time after the conclusion of the trial of a person accused of a non-bailable offence and before judgment is delivered, the Court is of opinion that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty of any such offence, it shall release the accused, if he is in custody, on the execution by him of a bond without sureties for his appearance to hear judgment delivered.

CHAPTER XLII.

PROVISIONS AS TO BONDS.

514 (1) Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court by which a bond under this Code has been taken, or of the Court of a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, or when the bond is for appearance before a Court, to the satisfaction of such Court, that such bond has been forfeited, the Court shall record the grounds of such proof, and may upon any person bound by such bond to pay the penalty thereof, or to show cause why it should not be paid

(2) If sufficient cause is not shown and the penalty is not paid, the Court may proceed to cover the same by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person or his estate if he be dead.

(3) Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it, and it shall authorize the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to such person without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

(4) If such penalty is not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the person so bound shall be liable, by order of the Court which issued the warrant, to imprisonment in civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

(5) The Court may, at its discretion, remit any portion of the penalty mentioned and enforce payment in part only.

(6) Where a surety to a bond dies before the bond is forfeited, his estate shall be discharged from all liability in respect of the bond.

(7) When any person who has furnished security under section 106 or section 118 or section 562 is convicted of an offence the commission of which constitutes a breach of the conditions of his bond, of a bond executed in lieu of his bond under section 511B, a certified copy of the judgment of the Court by which he was convicted of such offence may be used as evidence in proceedings under this section against his bail or sureties, and, if such certified copy is so used, the Court shall presume that such offence was committed by him unless the contrary is proved.

Changed introduced.

- (1) The word "attachment" is substituted for the word "distress" to meet the case in (17) M. N. 105 which lays down that "it is difficult to say that the word 'distress' is used in S. 514 with reference to other than tangible moveable property.—See S. 511 (G)."

- (2) Sub-clause (7) as redrafted by the Select Committee of 1916, made a certified copy of the judgment conclusive proof of the conviction. The Select Committee of 1922 has altered the redraft. "It was indeed suggested to us that we should make a certified copy of the judgment of the Court by which he was convicted of such offence may be used as evidence in proceedings under this section against his bail or sureties, and, if such certified copy is so used, the Court shall presume that such offence was committed by him unless the contrary is proved.

- (3) The words "out of the party who gave the bond may be required to find a new security." has been omitted as they were obviously in view the new sections 514 A. and 514 B.

Notes.

1. Liability of surety is irrespective of the legality or illegality of arrest.—Where a person stands surety for the attendance of another person before a Court and the latter fails to attend before that Court on the date fixed in the bonds the surety is liable under the bond even if it turns out that the arrest of the principal was illegal.—2 L 204
2. Fine cannot be deducted from surety's deposit.—Fine cannot be deducted from the money deposited by a surety for the appearance of the accused, even if the surety and the accused are brothers and even if they be assumed to be members of a Joint Hindu family.—19 A. J. 887.
3. Surety bond should be strictly construed.—A surety bond in criminal cases must be strictly construed, and a surety cannot be required to pay the amount of his bond as the result of an opinion held by a Court, as to what was in his mind when he signed it. He can be required to forfeit the amount only if the terms expressed in the bond are broken. Where therefore, a surety binds himself to produce an accused person on a particular date and he does so, his liability is discharged, and he is not bound for the non appearance of the accused on any subsequent date.—(1921) 4 U. B. 71
4. Notice to show cause must be given.—Before a warrant can issue attaching the property of a surety, he should be called on to show cause why he should not pay the penalty mentioned in his bond, and it must appear clearly on the face of the record that he had such notice given him.—15 W. R. 82
5. Prima facie proof of forfeiture necessary before issue of notice.—Sec. 514 lays down that it must be proved to the satisfaction of the court that the bond has been forfeited and the court shall record the grounds of such proof, and it is after such grounds have been recorded that the person bound by the bond may be called on to show cause why the amount should not be paid.—23 Cr. 478 (Pat.) [11 B II 170 Fd.]
6. Order may be made after lapse of period if proceedings initiated within period.—Where the proceedings for forfeiture of the bond were initiated within the time provided by the bond, but for one reason or other the enquiring was not taken up before the period had lapsed, held that there was no legal bar to the proceedings.—23 Cr. 623 (A) [26 A 202 Dist I C L 134 Diss.]

CHAPTER XLIII.

OF THE DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY.

516A. When any property regarding which any offence appears to have been committed, or which appears to have been used for the commission of any offence,

Order for custody and disposal of property pending trial in certain cases.

is produced before any Criminal Court during any inquiry or trial, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the proper custody of such property pending the conclusion of the inquiry or trial, and, if the property is subject to speedy or natural decay, may, after recording such evidence as it thinks necessary, order to be sold or otherwise disposed of.

Changes introduced.

S 517 provides for the disposal of property regarding which or by means of which an offence has been committed at the conclusion of the trial. The new section 516A is intended to enable the Court to make orders for proper custody or disposal before conclusion of the trial, when such property is liable to speedy or natural decay. In view of this change in law, the rulings in Cr R 10 of '95 Pat. 957 : 24 M. J. 1 must be regarded as obsolet [517-525 (64)]

517 (1) When an inquiry or a trial in any Criminal Court is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal by destruction, confiscation, or delivery to any person claiming to be entitled to possession thereof or otherwise, of any property or document produced before it or in its custody or regarding which any offence appears to have been committed, or which has been used for the commission of any offence.

(2) When a High Court or a Court of Session makes such order and cannot through its own officers conveniently deliver the property to the person entitled thereto, such Court may direct that the order be carried into effect by the District Magistrate.

(3) When an order is made under this section such order shall, not, except where the property is livestock or subject to speedy and natural decay, and save as provided by sub-section (4) be carried out for one month, or, when an appeal is presented, until such appeal has been disposed of.

Explanation—In this section the term “property” includes in the case of property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed, not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange, whether immediately or otherwise.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any Court from delivering any property under the provisions of sub-section (1) to any person claiming to be entitled to the possession thereof, on his executing a bond with or without sureties to the satisfaction of the Court, engaging to restore such property to the Court if the order made under this section is modified or set aside on appeal.

Changes introduced.

- (1) “We prefer the term “delivery” to “restoration,” and we think that in section 517 (3) it would be sufficient to allow one month for the presentation of an appeal, or an application for revision where this is allowed.”—[Sel. Com. 1916]
- (2) The word “confiscation” now inserted in cl (1)

meets the case in 9 C. N. 957 in which an order of confiscation was held to be illegal.

- (3) By providing for the taking of bonds for production of the property delivered to a party the Legislature has definitely overruled 19 M. J. 519 [See 517-525 (13)]

Notes.

- 1 Party cannot be ordered to return property.—Sec. 517 Cr. P. C. is not applicable to a case where the property has already passed out of the custody of a court. Therefore a party who has taken delivery from the Police of crops attached cannot be ordered to return the same to the opposite party.—(1921) Pat. 123

2. Bonafide pawnee of misappropriated goods.—Where the accused was convicted in respect of certain jewellery for criminal breach of trust, it is not competent to the court to order the pawnee of the jewellery, in the absence of anything in the transaction to raise a presumption of guilty knowledge to return it to the rightful owner.—11 L. B. 217 [4 L. B. 25 Fd : 4 L. B. 13 Div.]
3. Appeals.—See Notes under S. 520 post.
4. Return of goods to pawnee.—Where the pawnor stole the articles pawned from the pawnee and sold to an apparently innocent purchaser—held that the articles, after conviction, should be made over to the pawnee and not to the purchaser. The purchaser could reimburse himself from the proceeds of the sale by the pawnee, if anything remained after the pawnee had paid himself in full.—24 Cr. 238 (C)

5. Is judicial investigation necessary preliminary to order for disposal?—“I think that, as a general rule, the Magistrate acting under S. 517 Cr. P. C. should pass orders according to his discretion, without making further enquiry” except in exceptional cases.—[Neubould J.]—16id

Notes.

Appeal lies to the District Magistrate.—An appeal from an order under S. 517 Cr. P. C. by a stationary Sub-Magistrate directing the return of the subject-matter of a charge to the complainant lies to a District Magistrate and not to a sub-divisional Magistrate inasmuch as the latter exercises appellate powers only on delegation by the former.—23 Cr. 387 (M) [Cr. Rev. Cases no 525 of 1905 and No. 84 of 1908 Fd.] : Com. 24 Cr. 162 (M)

Omission by Appellate Court to order restitution.—Where in setting aside a conviction for theft an Appellate Court omits to pass orders under S. 520 Cr. P. C. for restoration of the property taken from the accused, if the omission is accidental, it can be subsequently corrected under S. 369 Cr. P. C. : 43 M J 87.

522. (1) Whenever a person is convicted of an offence attended by criminal force or show of force or by criminal intimidation and it appears to the Court that by such force or show of force or criminal intimidation any person has been dispossessed of any immovable property, the Court may, if it thinks fit when convicting such person or at any time within one month from the date of the conviction order the person dispossessed to be restored to the possession of the same
- (2) No such order shall prejudice any right or interest to or in such immovable property which any person may be able to establish in a civil suit
- (3) An order under this section may be made by any Court of appeal, confirmation, reference or revision.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The scope of section is enlarged by the addition of the words “or show of force or by criminal intimidation.” This meets the case in 38 P. W. 1912 which held that S. 522 has no application in the absence of a finding that criminal force has been used.—[517-525 (14A)]
- (2) The words “the person dispossessed” substituted for the words “such person” are modelled after the decision in 5 C. K. 374 that S. 522 enables the Court merely to restore the state of things which existed at the time of dispossession [See 517-525 (14)].
- (3) The new sub-clause (3) extends the operation of the section to Courts other than Courts of original jurisdiction vide “the words” courts of appeal confirmation, reference or revision.”

The sub-clause adopts the view of the High Courts in 19 C. N. 990 : 29 C. 724 : 27 A. 415 : 3 A. J. 770 (1906) A. N. 236 : 17 B. R. 922 : 14 Cr. 172 (C) and is opposed to 25 C. 630 : 39 C. 1020 : 14 P. R. 1919 which must be regarded as overruled.—See Notes 517-525 (131-133).

- (4) The words “which may be made by any Court of appeal, confirmation, reference or revision” are substituted for the words “which may be made by any Court of appeal, confirmation, reference or revision” with slight verbal alterations and substituting a period of one month for six months from the date of conviction, as the time within which an application for restoration must be made. We do not think that an order of restoration need be made simultaneously with the conviction; but we think that any application for such an order should be made promptly and that one month is a reasonable time to allow for this purpose.

Notes.

1. Criminal force used against property as opposed to person—A conviction for criminal trespass will not entitle the complainant to seek his remedy under S. 522 Cr. P. C., unless there is a finding of the Court convicting the accused, that the offence was attended with the use of criminal force as defined in S. 350 I. P. C. against the person (and not the property of the complainant)—2 Pat. T. 120; see 31 M. T. 20; 26 M. 49.
2. (Note—In order to make S. 522 applicable to immovable property, it is not necessary that force should be an ingredient of the offence of which the accused is convicted, provided the use of force appears from the evidence—12 L. W. 227.
3. Order to be passed in favour of dispossessed party—An order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. is not passed against any person, but in favour of the party dispossessed, provided the conditions necessary to give jurisdiction to make that order are proved (Cr. 575 (Pat)).

4. Order cannot be passed after acquittal—A Magistrate after acquitting the accused cannot pass an order under S. 522. The wording of the section is very clear and gives jurisdiction only when a person is convicted of an offence attended with criminal force.—24 O. C. 352.
5. Order for restoration should be made on appeal from conviction—Where the Appellate Court on appeal from conviction finds that no criminal force was used, it is its duty to restore the property in the position in which it was before possession was wrongfully given to the alleged offender (1922) M. N. 356 (18 C. N. 1147 Fd.).

S. 523.

Notes.

1. Procedure where the person entitled to possession is not known.—Where the person entitled to possession of the property stolen is not known, the Magistrate should under S. 523, detain it and issue the proclamation required by the section. The property should be handed over after the lapse of six months to the person who establishes a claim to it—(1889) 2 Weir 676.

2. Inquiry as to title is unnecessary—S. 523(2) does not require a Magistrate to make any inquiry as to title. He proceeds on such materials available before him and has to decide the question not who was in possession at the time the property was seized by the Police, but who was entitled to possession—J S 3.

525. If the person entitled to the possession of such property is unknown or absent and the property is subject to speedy and natural decay, or the Magistrate to whom its seizure is reported is of opinion that its sale would be for the benefit of the owner or that the value of such property is less than ten rupees, the Magistrate may at any time direct it to be sold; and the provisions of sections 523 and 524 shall, so far as may be practicable, apply to the nett proceeds of such sale.

Changes introduced.

The amendment is one principally of drafting. The words "or that the value of such property is less than ten rupees" is a salutary provision.

Before the amendment a Magistrate could only order the sale of such property as was "subject to speedy and natural decay."

OF THE TRANSFER OF CRIMINAL CASES.

High Court may transfer case or itself try it. 526. (1) Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court :—

- (a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or
- (b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or
- (c) that a view of the place in or near which any offence has been committed may be required for the satisfactory inquiry into or trial of the same, or
- (d) that an order under this section will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses, or
- (e) that such an order is expedient for the ends of justice or is required by any provision of this Code, it may order—

- (i) that any offence be required into or tried by any Court not empowered under sections 177 to 184 (both inclusive) but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence ;

- (ii) that any particular case or appeal, or class of cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction ;

so Public Prosecutor of application section. have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

(6A) Where any application for the exercise of the power conferred by this section is dismissed, Court may, if it is of opinion that the application was frivolous or vexatious, order the app^y to pay by way of costs to any person who has opposed the application any expenses reasonably incurred by such person in consequence of the application.

(7) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any order made under section 197.

(8) If, in the course of any inquiry or trial, or before the commencement of the hearing of any appeal, the Public Prosecutor, the complainant or the accused notifies to the Court before which the case or appeal is pending his intention to make an application under this section in respect of such case or appeal, the Court shall adjourn the case or postpone the appeal for such a period as will afford a reasonable time for the application to be made and an order to be obtained thereon.

(9) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, a Judge presiding in a Court of Session shall not be required to adjourn a trial under sub-section (8) if he is of opinion that the person notifying his intention of making an application under this section has had a reasonable opportunity of making such an application and has failed without sufficient cause to take advantage of it.

Changes introduced.

- (1) The omission of the words "criminal" and "such" in cl (ii) makes S. 526 applicable to miscellaneous proceedings such as those under chapter VIII or XII. The rulings cited in S. 526 (8) relating to transfer of proceedings under S. 110, in Note No. 1 relating to transfer of cases.

- (2) The following reasons given for the other amendments introduced into this section are interesting : "We have found S. 526 difficult to deal with. One class of opinion presses for greater safeguards against frivolous vexatious or dilatory applications for transfer. Another class deprecates any measure which makes a transfer more difficult to obtain. We think it is unavoidable to retain in the Code some provision for the compulsory adjournment of a case when an intention to apply for a transfer has been notified. But we recognise that the provisions of the section, as they stand have lent themselves to gross abuse, and therefore we feel that greater safeguards are necessary. Further" will enable the High Court, in cases where it is of opinion that a transfer is necessary, to order a transfer.

It is obvious that we think the last sentence of new sub sec. (6A) was superfluous in view of the provisions of S. 547.

- (3) "We consider that the new sub-sec. (8) proposed by the Bill was unsatisfactory in several respects. The opening words of the sub-sec. contemplated notification at any stage of the case, provided that it was made before the commencement of a day's hearing. But words occurring later in the sub-sec. indicated that its application was confined to a notification made before the accused was called upon to enter on his defence. The proviso, therefore, which dealt with an intention to apply for a transfer formed after the accused had entered on his defence, was not a true proviso to that sub-sec. We considered whether sub sec. (8) should not refer to an application made at any stage, and whether in such case, discretion as to an adjournment should not be left with the Court except when the applicant gave security, in which case, the adjournment should be compulsory. On the whole, however, we have decided in favour of rejecting the proposal to provide for a bond. A part from other objections, we think it was calculated to enhance the delays involved by S. 526. Our amendment of the Bill therefore provides for a compulsory adjournment at any stage of the case except that a Sessions Court may refuse to adjourn when it is of opinion that the application has been unreasonably delayed. (See Com. 1922). The following rulings have lost their authority in view of the amendments in heated above : 33 C. 1183, 1 S. 35, 10 O. J. 218, 4 Baur. T. 213 : 8 C. N. 77 : 35 M. 701 : 85 P. L. 1901.

Notes.

1. Object of the provisions.—In making provision for the transfer of cases, the law has regard not so suspicion and distrust of the Tribunal and so to the administration of justice as to the administration of order

v. Date

2. Refusal to adjourn under sub-sec. (8) vitiates the trial.—A Magistrate is bound to postpone the hearing of a case for the purpose of enabling a party to apply to a higher Court for a transfer, and his refusal to do so renders the subsequent proceedings voidable, if not void.—33 C. 1183 : 1 P. R. 1913 : 22 Cr 717 (L).

When refusal to adjourn is justified.—Under S.

for his defence. But where, before he is called on for his defence, he has ample time to make such an application, and does not do so, the legality of the proceedings of the Magistrate cannot be questioned.—18 A. J. 1145 : 11 C. N. 507 : 8 C. N. 77 Not Pd. : (12) M. N. 1121 Appd.)

Affidavit by the accused is permissible under the law.—When an accused person makes an application for the transfer of a case against him, he is not precluded by S. 342 Cr. P. C. from making an affidavit in support of such application, nor would there be any bar to his being prosecuted for making a false statement in the affidavit.—3 L. 46 (23 A. 331 Diss.)

What are valid grounds for transfer.—

(1) The fact that the trying Magistrate has permitted a private individual to discuss with him the case, and to write to him slips and chits about it is a sufficient ground.—2 Pat. T. 198

(2) The fact that a Magistrate exhibits haste in recording the statement of an accused person before all the evidence for the prosecution is concluded, is sufficient to create an apprehension.—18 A. J. 1145 (12 A. J. 736 : 19 A. 64 R.).

7. (3) The fact that a Magistrate acts with some rapidity in the trial of a case, and refuses to grant a short adjournment to enable the accused to prepare his cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses, thereby depriving him of a full opportunity of putting forward a defence.—2 Pat. T. 297.

8. (4) Where in framing charges against the accused the Magistrate uses the expression, "Jurm sabit hai" (the offence is established) it is sufficient to entitle the accused to get the case transferred to some other Magistrate.—23 Cr. 168 (L).

9. (5) Where the Magistrate just before he heard the case, went to the scene of occurrence with the complainant, his act was improper and the case should be transferred from his file.—165 P. L. 1901.

10. (6) Discussion of a criminal case at a club by the Civil Surgeon or any of the other officers who are likely to be concerned in the disposal of it before a Sessions Judge who is to try the case, is a sufficient ground for transfer of the case from the Court of that Sessions Judge.—19 A. J. 946

What are not valid grounds for transfer—

11. (1) Where certain strikers against a Navigation Company are placed on their trial under ss. 506 and 143 P. C. before the District Magistrate, it is no grounds for the transfer of the case that the District Magistrate has been taking precautions against the intimidation and illegal picketting indulged in by the strikers.—23 Cr. 88 (C).

12. (2) The fact that a Sessions Judge has tried the appeals of some of several persons convicted of dacoity and dismissed the appeals is not a valid ground for transfer of the appeals of the remaining persons.—2 U. P. (A) 421.

6A. (1) Where any person subject to the Naval Discipline Act or to the Army Act or to the Air Force Act is accused of any offence such as is referred to Court to transfer for trial to itself in cases.

in proviso (a) to section 41 of the Army Act, the Advocate General shall, if so instructed by the competent authority, the High Court for the committal or transfer of the case to that High Court and thereupon the High Court shall order that the case be committed for trial to or be transferred to itself and shall thereafter try the case by jury res Introduced.

(2) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare any to be the competent authority for the purpose of issuing instructions under sub-section (1) in regard class of cases specified in the notification.

—This section has been inserted by the Criminal Law Amendment Act (XII of 1923).

27. (1) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct transfer of any particular case or appeal from one High Court to another High Court, from any Criminal Court subordinate to one High Court, to any other Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction subordinate to another High Court, whenever it appears to him that such transfer will promote the ends of justice, or tend to the general convenience of parties or witnesses.

(2) The Court to which such case or appeal is transferred shall deal with the same as if it had been originally instituted in, or presented to, such Court.

Changes introduced.

The amendment makes S. 527 applicable to miscellaneous proceedings.

Sessions Judge may withdraw cases from Assistant Sessions Judge.

528. (1) Any Session Judge may withdraw any case from, or recall any case which he has made over to, any Assistant Sessions Judge subordinate to him.

(2) Any Chief Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may withdraw any case from, or recall any case which he has made over to, any Magistrate subordinate to him, and may inquire into or try such case himself, or refer it for inquiry or trial to any other such Magistrate competent to inquire into or try the same.

District or Sub-divisional Magistrate may withdraw or refer cases.

(3) The Local Government may authorise the District Magistrate to withdraw from any Magistrate subordinate to him either such classes of cases as he thinks proper, or particular classes of cases.

Power to authorize District Magistrate to withdraw classes of cases.

(4) Any Magistrate may recall any case made over by him under section 192, sub-section (2), to any other Magistrate and may inquire into or try such case himself.

(5) A Magistrate making an order under this section shall record in writing his reasons for making the same.

(6) The head of a village under the Madras Village-Police Regulation, 1816, or the Madras Village-Police Regulation, 1821, is a Magistrate for the purposes of this section.

Changes introduced.

(1) The operation of this section is now extended to Sessions Judges, who, be it noted, had no power of withdrawal of cases made over by them to Assistant Sessions Judge, before the amendment.

(2) The new sub-sec. (4) follows the case 9 Cr. 300 which lays down that a Magistrate authorised under S. 523 to transfer a case is competent to withdraw it to his own file. This power is already given by S. 192 Supra.

(3) The new sub-clause (6) overrules 25 M. 394 and 15 M. 94 (see 523 (43)) which laid down that the operation of S. 523 is limited only to cases of theft tried by village Magistrates.

Notes.

Notice and record of reasons.—Although strictly speaking, it is not necessary to issue notice before transferring a case under S. 523 Cr. P. C. the practice is to do so. The order of a District Magistrate transferring a case under S. 523 Cr. P. C. without recording reasons for the transfer is bad and is liable to be set aside.—24 Cr. 137 (L).

CHAPTER XLIV (A).

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS RELATING TO EUROPEAN AND INDIAN BRITISH SUBJECTS AND OTHERS.

528A. (1) Where, in any case to which the provisions of Chapter XXXIII do not apply, any person claims to be dealt with as an European or Indian British subject, or where any person claims to be dealt with as an European (other than an European British subject) or an American, he shall state the grounds of such claim to the Procedure of claim of a person to be dealt with as European or Indian British subject, or as European or American,

Magistrate before whom he is brought for the purpose of the inquiry or trial; and such Magistrate shall inquire into the truth of such statement and allow the person making it a reasonable time within which to prove that it is true, and shall then decide whether he is or is not an European British subject or an Indian British subject, or an European or an American, as the case may be, and shall deal with him accordingly.

(2) When any such claim is rejected by the Magistrate and the person by whom it was made is committed by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session, and such person repeats the claim before such Court, such Court shall, after such further inquiry, if any, as it thinks fit, decide the claim, and shall deal with such person accordingly.

(3) When any Court before which any person is tried rejects any such claim as aforesaid, the decision shall form a ground of appeal from the sentence or order passed in such trial.

528C. Where a person, not being an European British subject, is dealt with as an European British subject or, not being an Indian British subject, is dealt with as an Indian British subject or, not being an European (other than an European British subject) or American, is dealt with as an European or American, and such person does not object, the inquiry, commitment, trial, or sentence, as the case may be, shall not, by reason of such dealing, be invalid.

Trial of person as belonging to class to which he does not belong.

528D. (1) Unless there is something repugnant in the context, all enactments made by the Governor General in Council or the Indian Legislature which confer on Magistrates or on the Court of Session jurisdiction over offences shall be deemed to apply to European British subjects, although such persons are not expressly referred to therein.

Application of Acts conferring jurisdiction on Magistrates or Court of Session.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise any Court to exceed the limits prescribed by this Code as to the amount of punishment which it may inflict on an European British subject or to confer jurisdiction on any Magistrate of the second or third class for the trial of such subjects.

Changes introduced.

Note—A new Chapter XLIV (A) containing ss. 528A to 528D has been inserted by the Criminal Law Amendment Act (XII of 1923).

S. 531.

Notes.

1. Case made over to Additional Sessions Judge ultimately heard by the Sessions Judge—Where a Sessions Judge makes over a criminal appeal for decision to an Additional Sessions Judge, working in the same Jurisdiction as himself and empowered to try cases or appeals made over to him by the Sessions Judge but subsequently, after notice to the parties hears the appeal himself, he does not act outside his jurisdiction inasmuch as the making over a case is not "transfer" of the case—19 A. J. 95

2. Offence committed outside jurisdiction.—In the absence of prejudice, or of a failure of justice, the conviction of an accused person for an offence under S. 4 P. C. by a Magistrate outside whose territorial jurisdiction the offence was committed, is a mere irregularity cured by S. 531 Cr. P. C.—34 C. J. 200

S. 533.

Notes.

1. S. 533 applies only when there is a written record.—S. 533 Cr. P. C. can only be invoked when there is some written record but that record is defective, through some error in not strictly following the provisions of S. 361, the object being to take such records out of the excluding provisions of S. 91 of the Evidence Act—(1921) M. N. 779.
2. Omission to enquire whether confession voluntary not covered by S. 533.—The omission to question the accused before recording his confession as to whether he was making it voluntarily was a material omission which prejudiced him, and we are of opinion that the defect is a fatal one, not curable by S. 533 and that the confessions must, therefore, be excluded.—2 L. 325 (3 L. B. 173 : 3 L. B. 213 : 9 M. 224 : 17 C. 862 : 52 P. R. 1887 R.).

3. Informalities may be cured by evidence of records Magistrate.—"S. 533 Cr. P. C. completely cures any formal defects which might have been made in the recording of the confession. The Magistrate himself was called, and he swore that he had all Police removed from the Court room and had the handcuffs removed from the accused's hands, he asked the accused whether he was tutored by anybody and after being satisfied that the accused was not tutored by anybody, he recorded his confession. He admitted having recorded the confession in English but says that he translated to the accused who admitted the statement to be correct and fixed his thumb mark thereto." Stuart and Ryves JJ in 24 Cr. 6 (A) ((91) A. N. 53 (92) A. N. 60 : 23 B. 221 Fd. : 17 C. 862 Diss.).

534. An omission to inform under section 447 of a person of his rights under Chapter XXXIII, shall not affect the validity of any proceeding

Changes introduced.

This section has been amended by the Criminal Law Amendment Act XII of 1923.

Conviction under S. 352 I. P. C. after charging under S. 147 is cured by S. 535 Cr. P. C.—Where the accused were charged under S. 147 I. P. C. but ultimately Finding or sentence when reversible by reason of error or omission in charge or other proceedings,

537. Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered under Chapter XXVII or an appeal or revision on account—

- (a) of any error, omission or irregularity in the complaint, summons, warrant, charge, proclamation, order, judgment or other proceedings before or during trial or in any inquiry or other proceedings under this Code, or

(b) * * * * *

- (c) of the omission to revise any list of jurors or assessors in accordance with section 324, or

(d) of any misdirection in any charge to a jury unless such error, omission, irregularity, or misdirection has in fact occasioned a failure of justice.

Explanation.—In determining whether any error, omission or irregularity in any proceeding under this Code has occasioned a failure of justice, the Court shall have regard to the fact whether the objection could and should have been raised at an earlier stage in the proceedings.

Changes introduced.

"Having regard to the new sections introduced into the Code, the amendments are—"

I. Charges.

Objection may be taken at any stage—An objection as to misjoinder of charges in a criminal case whenever and wherever taken is fatal to the conviction and there must be a retrial.—19 C J. 633.

Violation of the provision of S. 233 Cr. P. C.—S. 233 Cr. P. C. requires that a separate charge should be framed in respect of every distinct offence where the learned Judge lumped all the charges together in a manner which is contrary to the provisions of S. 233, but the irregularity in the absence of prejudice was held not to vitiate the trial.—8 O. J. 10. 23 Cr 320 (S) (41 C. 66. 19 C N 972 Fd.).

Disregard of express provisions—Where one of the three offences was not committed in the course of the same transaction but all the three were tried together held that the disregard of an express provision of law as to the mode of trial is not a mere irregularity such as could be remedied by S 537 Cr. P. C.—23 Cr. 268 (L).

Stolen property recovered separately from the accused—Where stolen property is recovered from the possession of several persons at different times, there should be a separate trial under S. 411 I. P. C. of each of such persons. The joint trial of such persons is illegal, and the illegality is not curable by the application of S. 537 Cr. P. C.—19 A. J. 515

Failure to enter actual words in a charge of perjury.—

—8 O. J. 100 (L).

II. Examination of the accused.

Examination before evidence completed.—The examination of an accused person before all the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined is a fatal defect.—430 : 24 Cr.

Examination is summons cases.—The procedure prescribed by S. 342 Cr. P. C. is binding on the Courts, even in summons-cases, and the omission to comply with the provisions of that section is not a mere irregularity such as can be cured under S. 537 Cr. P. C. but is an illegality vitiating the trial.—23 Cr 154 (L) (1 P. R. 1918. 45 B. 672 Fd.)

Omission to examine after charge —Where in a warrant case the accused is examined only before the charge is framed, and not also after the prosecution witnesses have been recalled for further cross-examination under S. 256 Cr. P. C. the procedure cannot be regarded as a mere error, omission or irregularity such as is contemplated in S 537 (a) of that Code, because the accused is entitled to an opportunity of stating his case both before and after the charge is framed.—24 Cr. 124 (M) (41 C. 743 : 6 Pat. J. 644 Fd.).

III. Judgments.

Judgment written after setting accused at liberty.—Where Judgment pronounced by another Magistrate.—A Magistrate before delivering the judgment became too ill to come to Court and sent it to another Magistrate to be delivered. Held, that the irregularity was completely covered by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—24 Cr. 173 (A).

IV. Misdirection.

How to find out whether jury has been misdirected—In determining whether there has been misdirection to a jury, the charge must be judged as a whole, and it must be seen whether the case for both sides has been fairly put, so that the jury understood what they had to decide and could come to a right decision.—34 C. J. 512

Rule as to accomplices evidence.—The omission on the part of the Judge to tell the Jury that it is dangerous to convict on the evidence of an accomplice alone when uncorroborated in material particulars by independent testimony is an error in law which if it materially prejudiced the prisoner, justifies the High Court in setting aside the verdict.—(1889) Pat. 466.

Misdirection in a charge under S. 211 I. P. C.—Where in a charge under S. 211 I. P. C.

merely directed the jury that, if they believed the charge of dacoity, which had been instituted by the accused to be false, they should find the accused charge of dacoity, there was no just ground for the charge, the conviction should be set aside and fresh trial should be ordered.—1 C. N. 301.

V. Other irregularities.

Simultaneous trial of two cases with the aid of same assessors.—Where the accused in two separate cases were placed in the dock simultaneously and both cases were heard, simultaneously with the aid of the same set of assessors, held, as the mode of trial was illegal as being „ prohibited in the mode,” S. 537 had no application.—11 L. R. 73

Refusal to adjourn to give opportunity for transfer.—The refusal of a Magistrate to give opportunity to an accused person to apply for a transfer of a case, is an illegality which vitiates the whole proceeding.—22 Cr. 717 (L) (33 C. 1183 Fd).

Final order passed by the First Magistrate after a referred to another Magistrate.—Where a Magistrate has directed the party, in a proceedings under S. 133 to appear before himself he cannot refer the matter for enquiry to some other Magistrate and the party is not bound to appear before the latter.

Sanctions.—The rulings in 48 C. 867 (F. B.) and 10 R. 77 relate to sanction and are therefore obsolete.

S. 537 does not cure want of sanction required by special Acts.—S. 537 only cures the want of sanction in those cases which are covered by S. 195 Cr. P. C. the absence of sanction required by any other provision of the law cannot be remedied.—[23 C. 305 (S)] An irregularity in a sanction, as required by S. 314 of the U. P. Municipalities Act, cannot be cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C. which is not applicable to sanction under that section. (19 A. J. 942).

538. No attachment made under this Code shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, writ of attachment or other proceedings relating thereto.

Changes introduced.

ment introduced in S. 386. supra.

539A. (1) When any application is made to any Court in the course of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, and allegations are made there-

An affidavit to be used before any Court other than a High Court under this section may be sworn or affirmed in the manner prescribed in section 539, or before any Magistrate.

Affidavits under this section shall be confined to, and shall state separately, such facts as the deponent is able to prove from his own knowledge and such facts as he has reasonable grounds to believe to be true, and in the latter case, the deponent shall clearly state the grounds of such belief.

(2) The Court may order any scandalous and irrelevant matter in an affidavit to be struck out or amended.

Changes introduced.

(1) “ We think that the provisions of the section should apply to all criminal proceedings including appeals. We would allow the applicant to give evidence by affidavit and would leave the Court a discretion to require this to be done in any case, provided that no accused person should be compelled to make an affidavit himself (Sel. Com. 1916) The Select Committee of 1922 deleted the word "appeals" and the proviso with regard to the accused. "We have omitted the proviso contained in sub sec (1) of the proposed new S. 539 providing that an accused person shall not be compelled to make an affidavit, as, in the first place, it will be extremely difficult to say what the expression "accused person" means, and secondly the proviso is in conflict with the provisions of sub-sec. (4) of S. 526 (Sel. Com. 1922).

- (2) The word "any Magistrate" renders obsolete 14 C. 653 which laid down that a Deputy Magistrate had no power to administer oath to a person making a declaration in the form of an affidavit and affirms 8 C. N. xi

- (3) "We think it desirable that the copy of the memorandum referred to in sub-sec. (2) of the new S. 539B shall be given free of cost. "(Joint Com. 1922).

Notes.

Prosecution witness examined on initiative of Court—
A witness whom the prosecution declines to examine and who is examined by the Court on its own initiative, is a witness called by the Court within the meaning of S. 540 Cr. P. C.—24 Cr. 193 (C).

540A. (1) At any stage of an inquiry or trial under this Code, where two or more accused are before the Court, if the Judge or Magistrate is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded, that any one or more of such accused is or are incapable of remaining before the Court, he may, if such used is represented by a pleader, dispense with his attendance and proceed with such inquiry or trial in absence, and may at any subsequent stage of the proceedings direct the personal attendance of such used.

(2) If the accused in any such case is not represented by a pleader, or if the Judge or Magistrate considers his personal attendance necessary, he may, if he thinks fit, and for reasons to be recorded by him, adjourn such inquiry or trial, or order that the case of such accused be taken up or tried separately.

Changes introduced.

- (4) "Our sub-sec (1) provides for the case of an accused who is represented by a pleader, and whose personal attendance can be dispensed with. Sub-sec (2) provides for the case of an accused who is not so represented, or whose continued personal attendance may be necessary, and allows the Court in such a case either to adjourn the trial of all the accused, or so order the particular accused to be tried separately." (Sel. Com. 1916) confirms in appeal, revision or otherwise a sentence of fine, or a sentence of which fine forms a part, the Court may, when passing judgment, order the whole or any part of the fine recovered to be applied—

- (a) In defraying expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;
- (b) in the payment to any person of compensation for any loss or inquiry caused by the offence when substantial compensation is, in the opinion of the Court, recoverable by such person in a Civil Court.
- (c) when any person is convicted of any offence which includes theft, criminal misappropriation, criminal breach of trust, or cheating, or of having dishonestly received or retained, or of having voluntarily assisted in disposing of, stolen property knowing or having reason to believe the same to be stolen, in compensating any bona fide purchaser of such property for the loss of the same if such property is restored to the possession of the person entitled thereto

(2) If the fine is imposed in a case which is subject to appeal, no such payment shall be made before the period allowed for presenting the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal be presented, before the decision of the appeal.

Notes.

1. Compensation to innocent purchaser of stolen property—is now allowed by law. See Note No. (1) above. The ruling in 46 B. 393 (B) is now obsolete
2. Courtfees awarded to complainant in cognizable case—Where a person accused of a non-cognizable offence is convicted of a cognizable offence, the Court cannot legally direct him to pay the expenses incurred by the complainant under S. 31 of the Court-fees Act, inasmuch as that section applies only to cases where the accused has been convicted of a non-cognizable offence. The expenses so incurred can, however, be awarded to the complainant as compensation under S. 545 Cr. P. C.—Rat. 397.

Order of payment of certain fees paid by complainant in non-cognizable cases, 546A. (1) Whenever any complaint of a noncognizable offence is made to a Court, the Court, if it convicts the accused, may, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to pay to the complainant—

- (a) the fee (if any) paid on the petition of complaint, or for the examination of the complainant, and
- (b) any fees paid by the complainant for serving processes on his witnesses or on the accused, and may further order that, in default of payment, the accused shall suffer simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days.
- (2) An order under this section may also be made by an Appellate Court, or by the High Court, when exercising its powers of revision.

Changes introduced.

- (1) This new section confers on the Court the power to compel the accused to pay, in the case of conviction, the process fees incurred by the complainant in prosecuting the case.
- (2) "We have added a new sub sec. 516A (2) to enable an order under this section to be made by a High Court in revision."

(3) "We think the Court, should not be bound to exercise the power conferred by the new S. 516A in trivial cases, and have accordingly substituted the word "may" in sub sec. (1) of the proposed new subsection with consequential alteration in sub-sec. (2)" (Sel. Com. 1012.)

547. Any money (other than a fine) payable by virtue of any order made under this Code, and the method of recovery of which is not otherwise expressly provided for shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

Changes introduced.

"We think that a small amendment is required in S. 547, as the Code already contains various provisions for the recovery of e.g. costs (S. 148 (3)), compensation (S. 250 (2)) maintenance (S. 493 (3)), as if they were fines. We propose therefore to amend S. 547 by inserting after the words "under this Code," the words "and not otherwise specifically provided for" (Joint Com. 1022).

Notes.

Scope of the section—S. 547 Cr. P. C., only provides a summary method of realising "money payable" and these words cannot be stretched so as to include livestock or other goods—23 Cr. 157 (L).

556.

Notes.

The explanation to the section.—The explanation to S. 556 Cr. P. C. has been amended as follows:

District Magistrate acting as Inspector of Factories—A District Magistrate, who as Inspector of Factories directs the District Engineer to visit a factory and see whether certain directions have been carried out, is precluded by the provisions of S. 556 Cr. P. C. from trying a prosecution based upon the report of the District Engineer—22 Cr. 71 (L); see (97-01) U. B. 125; (97-01) U. B. 133; (97-01) U. B. 135

Scope of the words "try any case."—The words "try any case" in S. 556 Cr. P. C. are comprehensive enough to include the hearing of an appeal. Where, upon the allegations of an official Receiver, a District Judge presents a complaint against an insolvent under S. 67 (5) of the Provincial Insolvency Act he is a party to the case, although he has little or nothing to do with the prosecution. Consequently in the event of the insolvent being convicted the District Judge would be disqualified under S. 556 Cr. P. C. from hearing an appeal against the conviction as Sessions Judge—14 P. W. 1022 (23 C. 44 (45) Fd.] 9 N. 81. (99) A. N. 74. But see 24 Cr. 144 (A).

Consent of the party.—The consent of a party concerned cannot effect the absolute disqualification imposed by S. 556 Cr. P. C.—see (32 A. 613 Fd.)

member or an office-bearer of a Municipality is debarred from trying a case, whether singly or as member of a Bench, arising out of the proceedings of the Municipality or to which the Municipality is a party—23 Cr. 704 (L) (2 P. R. 1895 : 5 P. R. 1896 : 5 S. 137 : 2 C. 23. Fd.)

Cantonment Magistrate also Secretary of the Cantonment Committee—Where a prosecution is ordered by a Cantonment Magistrate in his capacity as Secretary of the Cantonment Committee, it is advisable that the case should be tried by some Magistrate other than the Cantonment Magistrate—24 Cr. 128 (A).

Instrumentality of the trying Magistrate in bringing about the prosecution.—A Municipal Commissioner invited the attention of the Executive officer of the Committee to the infringement of a Municipal Bye-law by the accused. The Executive Officer called the attention of the Health Officer who instituted proceeding against the accused. The case was tried by a Bench of Honorary Magistrate of which that Municipal Commissioner was a member, held, that the Municipal Commissioner was neither personally interested in the success of the prosecution, nor a party to it within the meaning of S. 556 Cr. P. C.—24 Cr. 135 (A) : 2 Weir 721 (Adinarayan)

Provision for powers of Judges and Magistrates being exercised by their successors in office.

(2) When there is any doubt as to who is the successor in office of any Magistrate, the Chief Presidency Magistrate in a Presidency-town, and the District Magistrate outside such towns, shall determine by order in writing the Magistrate who shall, for the purposes of this Code or of any proceedings or order thereunder, be deemed to be the successor in office of such Magistrate.

(3) When there is any doubt as to who is the successor in office of any Additional or Assistant Sessions Judge, the Sessions Judge shall determine by order in writing the Judge who shall, for the purposes of this Code or of any proceedings or order thereunder, be deemed to be the successor in office of such Additional or Assistant Sessions Judge.

Changes introduced.

"It would appear that the retention of S. 559 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898, was accidental, its provisions being covered by those of S 14 of the General Clause Act 1897. We have accordingly inserted the new S. 559A proposed by the Bill as S. 559 in the place of the present section' (Joint Com. 1922). The new section removes the difficulty sometimes experienced in ascertaining as to who is the successor of a particular transferred Magistrate.

561A. Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent power of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice.

Changes introduced.

S. 561A is modelled on S 153 of the Civil Procedure Code, with the difference that the inherent power of the Court to prevent abuse of process or to secure the ends of justice by making such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order made under the Code, is recognized only in the case of the High Courts (See Note No. 4 under S. 435). "We think that it will be sufficient by the new S. 561A to recognise the inherent powers of the High Court in this direction" (Sel Com 1916). We have slightly elaborated the provisions of this clause. We understand that a High Court has recently held that it has no power to direct the expunction of objectionable matter from record. We think it desirable that it should be made clear that this clause is intended to meet such a case (Joint Com 1922).

First Offenders.

562. (1) When any person not under twenty-one years of age is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than seven years, or when any person under twenty-one years of age or any woman is convicted of an offence not punishable with death or transportation for life, and no previous conviction is proved against the offender, if it appears to the Court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character or antecedents of the offender and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed, that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period (not exceeding three years) as the Court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour :

Provided that, where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the third class or a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised he shall record his opinion to that effect, and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class or Sub-divisional Magistrate, forwarding the accused or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in manner provided by section 380

(2) An order under this section may be made by any Appellate Court or by the High Court when exercising its power of revision.

(3) When an order has been made under this section in respect of any offender, the High Court may, on appeal when there is a right of appeal to such Court or when exercising its powers of revision, set aside such order, and in lieu thereof pass sentence on such offender according to law.

Provided that the High Court shall not under this subsection inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by the Court by which the offender was convicted.

(4) The provisions of sections 122, 126A and 406A shall, so far as may be, apply in the case of sureties offered in pursuance of the provisions of this section

Changes introduced.

(1) "We have made several alterations in the new S. 562 proposed by the Bill

(2) "We have substituted the words "imprisonment for not more than three years" for the words "not more than three years imprisonment and fine"

(3) "We have added to the section of the Penal Code enumerated on sub-sec (1) S. 380 (theft in a dwelling house, and 420 (cheating and dishonestly inducing delivery of property, which we think may be appropriately included

(4) The other alterations which we have made are merely verbal. (Sd. Com. 1916)

(5) "We are of opinion that the salutary provisions of S. 562 of the Code are capable of extension—more especially in view of the provisions of sub-sec. (3) of the new section proposed by the Bill. We have accordingly provided that any offender who is over the age of 21 years may be bound over on conviction of any offence not punishable with imprisonment exceeding seven years, and that all women and all persons under the age of 21 may be so bound over, when convicted of an offence not punishable with death or transportation for life. We have altered the proviso to read— "(3) We think that the High Court should in no case inflict a more severe sentence than could have been inflicted by the Court which tried the case. (Just. Com. 1922.)
